School Money Unexpended—Corner School NORTH SCHOOL.

This school was particularly fortunate in the selection of Miss Cora M. Follette of Newton, an experienced teacher, who proved herself fully competent to direct the school, and secure the confidence and affection of her pupils. We have heard no unpleasant allusions, in regard to the school, but the teacher apparently gained the respect of the parents, who co-operated in her work, thus producing gratifying results. Evidence was manifest that the best work was being done, at all times, in a quiet unostentations manner under the teachers gnidance.

Hallie B. Shufelt was not absent, tardy or dismissed for the first 16 weeks, nor Walter J. Webster for the last 28 weeks. Sarah J. Webster and Charlie K. Webster were perfect in attendance throughout the year.

CORNER SCHOOL.

Daring the Summer and fall, the school was under the instruction of Miss Sylvia Ladd, of Epping. When visited, the school appeared well, and the closing reviews evinced the teacher's desire to have her pupils thorough, in the branches pursued. The scholars scarcely did themselves, or their teacher credit, in their reading, as their voices, in many cases, were so low, as hardly to be distinguishable. Alvin C. Noyes is registered, as not being absent for 21 weeks.

A winter term was commenced under a uspicious circum stances by Mr. J. A. Blodgett of Kensington, but was of only sufficient duration to prove that much might have been accomplished under his direction, had not the school money failed. It was regretted by parents, and others, that the term was so brief, for a favorable impression had been formed.

POUND SCHOOL.

Of the character of this school, under the control of Miss A. E. Watson, the highly successful teacher of the past year, little need be said. The school speaks for itself. With the different watures, and so numerous as they are, for a teacher to work with here, it requires a person of tact and rare adaptability, and a disinterested love for children and youth, to move along progressively and at the same time pleasantly. Upon entering the school, a person was at once impressed with the idea that all were willing workers, taken captive by the teacher's gentle persuasiveness.

Her health failing, she was obliged to give up teaching for a short time, and Miss Susie M. Clifford of Danville, was employed to fill the vacancy. She has had much successful experience, but was placed in a peculiarly trying position in this school, as many of the pupils seemed to think no one was adapted to their wants but their former teacher. There were also some outside the school whose influence tended to evil. Under the circumstances, we think Miss Clifford did the best that could have been done. When visited, the order was good and all seemed to be progressing.

Having regained her health, Miss Watson took charge of the winter school. The closing exercises, consisting of recitations, dialogues, and reviews, interspersed with music were highly commendable. Although stormy, 29 visitors were present, showing the high appreciation with which she was regarded.

The following scholars were not absent: first term, Freddie J. Buswell, George M. Davis, George A. Philbrick, Mabel A. Perkins; second term, Annie M. Morse; for two terms, Carrie L. M. Rowell; for the third term, Abbie Ramsell; and for the last two terms, Frank N. Philbrick, and Oscar L. Philbrick. Etta E. Bachelder was not absent through the year.

FALLS SCHOOL.

Miss S. E. Lane of Exeter, teacher for the year. Her former reputation in this school was a sufficient guarantee for success. It apparently required no exertion, to preserve order, so she could devote her whole energies to imparting instruction, for which she seems especially fitted. All remarks in last years report, are equally applicable for the present. It has always been a pleasure to spend an hour or two in this school, the recitations always being characterized by confidence and promptness. A teacher alone cannot make a school perfect. Much praise is due the pupils for their exemplary conduct, and their endeavors to make the school the best one in town.

The exercises at the final examination, including declamation, dialogues, and music, reflected credit on both, teacher and pupils.

Ruth A. Currier and Genie II. Edney were not absent, tardy or dismissed through the year. and Jesse S. Rowell only one day.

GENERAL REMARKS.

Whatever may be the grade of a school, whether its exercises* shall be dull, monotonous and apparently mechanical, or quick, keen, and awakening to the intellect, thereby expanding it more effectually, depends more on the teacher than many imagine. It has been truthfully remarked, that a school in successive terms, under the same teacher, acquires that teachers ways, and why should it not be so? Do not our common schools bring the children at the most impressible age, under the influence of the teacher, and will not their thoughts and springs of action be directed into channels which may influence their whole future? If we consider these points, we all see the immense advantage, both morally and mentally in retaining those teachers, term after term, whose influence is such as parents like to have exerted over their children. There is hardly a child but can be made interested in some department of school work, if the teacher has the happy faculty of discerning the points in character that should be influenced.

Our schools frequently suffer from disturbance outside. Perhaps all do not know how stringent the law is on this point. It reads,

Sect. 1. Any parent, guardian, or other person, not a member of this school, who shall wilfully interrupt or disturb any school, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail, not exceeding thirty days. Approved July, 1, 1874.

Sargent's Readers having been in the schools since 1866, and having become so familiar to the pupils, it was thought to be for their interest, to make a change, consequently, Munroe's were introduced, with most gratifying results.

Whole number of scholars in town, as reported by selectmen, April 1, 1875, 159; Boys, 84, Girls, 75.

Number not attending nchool, an nearly as can be ascertained, between the age five and fifteen, 13; Girls, 8, Boys, 5.

All of which is respectfully submitted.
