REPORT

OF THE

SUPERINTENDING SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

FELLOW CITIZENS:—To describe each school critically, and do justice to teachers, scholars, committees and parents, would require more space than I am here allowed. I must omit much which should receive your attention.

IN DISTRICT, No. 1 a female teacher was employed 10 weeks.— Her term commenced May 23. Whole number of scholars 48.— Average attendance 39. Wages per month, including board, $19.

A male teacher was employed 9 weeks. His term commenced Nov. 14. Scholars 31. Average 23. Wages $36.

IN DISTRICT, No. 2 a female teacher was employed 8 weeks. Her term commenced May 2. Scholars 11. Average 9. Wages $13.

Another female teacher was employed 13 weeks. Her term commenced Oct. 24. Scholars 14. Average 12. Wages not known.

IN DISTRICT, No. 3. a female teacher was employed 12 weeks.— Her term commenced Oct. 3. Scholars 18. Average 16. Wages $21.

IN DISTRICT, No. 4 a female teacher was employed 9 weeks. Her term commenced May 16. Scholars 19. Average 15. Wages $16. Another female teacher was employed 11.6 weeks. Her term commenced September 12. Scholars 18. Average 13. Wages $21.60.

IN DISTRICT, No. 5 a female teacher was employed 8 weeks. Her term commenced May 9. Scholars 55. Average 38. Wages $20.

Another female teacher employed 10.4 weeks. Her term commenced, August 15. Scholars 50. Average 39. Wages $20.

IN DISTRICT, No. 6 a female teacher was employed two terms.— The first term commenced May 16, and continued 8 weeks. Scholars

29. Average 24. Wages 18. The second term commenced Aug. 8, and continued 15 weeks. Scholars 26. Average 22. Wages $18.

IN DISTRICT, No. 7 a female teacher was employed 8 weeks. Her term commenced May 16. Scholars 50. Average 43. Wages $20.

Another female teacher was employed 14 weeks. Her term commenced August 6. Scholars 50. Average 40. Wages $24.

IN DISTRICT, No. 8 a female teacher was employed 16 weeks. Her term commenced May 2. Scholars 77. Average 55. Wages $20. A male teacher was employed 7.2 weeks. His term commenced Nov. 14. Scholars 74. Average 59. Wages $37.

These schools were profitable. Some of them unusually so. But they were not all that the interests of the community demand.

Many teachers have talents not-employed to advantage in the school room, from want of such a training as should have been received in a good Normal School, or well conducted Teachers' Institute. The fact that some such institutions have been a failure, does not prove that we should not have in New-Hampshire an acknowledged success, whereby all, who are to instruct our children, may have advantage of the experience and wisdom of the profession, to qualify them for the special duties of their very important work.

I would remind Prudential Committees, to whom is entrusted the delicate duty of procuring teachers, that they cannot be too early nor too careful in securing those who are best approved.

I would not specially censure the teachers of the schools noticed in this report. With the average of teachers they rank well. Some of them rank highly. Much might be said in commendation of their schools; while it should also be remarked that they labored under disadvantages which should be removed by the people.

Parents should do more by way of co-operating with teachers in maintaining good order and having their children constant and punctual in attendance. In these respects a few have been good examples to others.

My views of the importance of uniting contiguous districts and grading the schools, or of establishing a central high school, are the same as when I addressed you on this subject two years ago.

To make proper improvements in every needed way requires a deeper and more intelligent interest on the part of the parents and guardians.

This town contains many capable children, whose course in life will depend very much on the advantages which our public schools shall afford. Let us make these what they should be, and let all the children of proper age attend regularly; then, while some may seek still higher advantages and become eminent in the learned professions, all others may acquire an education, that, if connected with "the fear of God which is the beginning of wisdom," will ensure them high respectability in the various departments of useful enterprise.

Respectfully submitted,

J. H. STEARNS,

Superintending School Committee.

EPHING, February 25, 1865.
