REPORT.

It gives the Committee great pleasure to be able to congratulate you on the marked prosperity and success which have attended your schools during the past year, especially as their power for good, when rightly instructed, cannot be over-estimated. While they have not accomplished all that the most sanguine desire, they have accomplished all that could reasonably be expected, inviting all the children and youth of suitable age to their advantages, and thoroughly and faithfully instructing them.

SCHOOL ROOMS.

While some of the school rooms are most pleasant, comfortable, commodious, and even "beautiful for situation," others are exceedingly uncomfortable, and others still, wholly unsuitable for school purposes. The school room should have about it an air of neatness and comfort, which not only invites the pupil to its instruction, but silently teaches him most valuable lessons of purity and order. A little special attention and serious thought, in regard to the uncomfortable seats, and uninviting condition of some school rooms, would not fail to put at work influences which would result in providing pleasant school rooms, neatly and comfortably furnished, such as the children and youth in all the districts deserve, and such as the citizens of Newmarket cannot afford to withhold.

APPARATUS.

A full supply of the necessary apparatus in the school room is too valuable an aid in the work of teaching to be dispensed with; and yet some of the schools are entirely destitute of, while others are only partially supplied with, the most approved apparatus. These means of instruction cannot be dispensed with, and secure the largest and best educational results, any more than our great manufactories can dispense with the modern improvements in machinery, and produce the largest amount of the most valuable fabrics.

To supply this deficiency, in part, your Committee and the Selectmen, taking advantage of an act of the Legislature authorizing them to purchase for the use of their schools as many copies of the map of New Hampshire as they may deem best, have procured a supply for all the schools, of a new map of the State of New Hampshire, "which for completeness of detail, and fulness of practical information, surpasses any work of the kind yet published in this country," and is especially adapted to the use of schools.

TEACHERS.

You have been fortunate in securing a corps of teachers so well furnished for their responsible and difficult work, —a work which demands the best talent most liberally cultivated. It is a great mistake to suppose that a mere knowledge of the text books to be studied is a sufficient qualification for teaching. Successful teachers will aim to sweep with their mental vision the whole circle of knowledge, and to embody in themselves all excellences. Their winning personal bearing, their correct moral deportment, high sense of honor and right, their power to govern, not so much by force as by the love and respect which they command, their self-control, and their ability to awaken in the mind of their pupils an enthusiastic interest in their studies, and love for them, are indispensable qualifications for the highest success.

But however thoroughly furnished for their work, they will need and should have the hearty sympathy and co-operation of all parents and citizens. No word should ever fall from their lips, in the presence of scholars, which will in the least tend to diminish their respect for their teachers, or weaken their authority. They are supreme in their sphere, and while they occupy the position of teachers they should be upheld in their supremacy.

Secure the best teachers at your command, and give them your undivided sympathy and co-operation in their difficult, most important, and often perplexing work, while they occupy the responsible position of teachers in your schools, and you may count upon the most satisfactory results.

REGULARITY OF ATTENDANCE.

While there has been some improvement in regularity of attendance, there is still great deficiency in this respect, and this deficiency is a decided injury to the delinquents, and throw an insuperable obstacle in the way of the highest success of the schools.

Scholars who are frequently absent not only keep themselves back in their studies, but keep their classes back. A much larger number have been perfect in their attendance this year than last year, including four who were perfect last year, and their names have been inserted in the accompanying table, with the hope that this roll of honor will be increased each year.

MORAL INFLUENCE.

The instruction of the Common School is not limited to the text book, but embraces the principles of a lofty morality, and these every teacher is expected to inculcate, and only as this is done will our schools best qualify their pupils for good citizens, and subserve the end for which they were established.

“Knowledge is power,” says one of the greatest English writers, and it will be a power for evil if it is not conjoined with the principles of rectitude; hence the prime importance of inculcating, in connection with a knowledge of the text book, the principles of a lofty morality.

COURSE OF STUDY AND REGULATIONS.

The course of study and regulations, which were printed last year, have not been materially altered, and therefore it was not deemed best to incur the expense of re-printing them.

While the prescribed course of study has not been essentially changed, it has been more fully and thoroughly pursued, the Middle class in the High School taking two studies, Chemistry and Surveying, which have in previous years been omitted. An effort has also been made to secure what all our schools demand, and what only the thoroughly furnished teacher can impart,—a large amount of oral instruction.

APPROPRIATION.

The liberal sum which you have in past years appropriated for school purposes, you will doubtless deem it wise to continue in the future, for no money which you expend will yield so large a dividend of valuable results. It is far less expensive to liberally support your public schools, and thus qualify your children and youth to be valuable citizens, than to let them grow up uneducated, and be compelled to punish the crimes which are the outgrowth of ignorance and its attendant evils. And besides this, the discipline and knowledge which your public schools give to their pupils cannot, like material wealth, be taken away from them; it becomes a most valuable part of their being, fitting them to be an honor to society, and furnishing them with unfailing sources of happiness.

HIGH SCHOOL.

The High School is doing a most valuable work, not only for its pupils, but for the cause of education, elevating the standard, and awakening fresh enthusiasm, as the large audiences which have attended its graduating exercises demonstrate; and it should be tenderly and wisely nourished, that it may grow into the proportions which its position demands.

We cannot for the present expect it to be crowded, but doubtless a larger number, from year to year, will continue their studies beyond the Grammar School, and not a few from the surrounding districts and towns will be attracted by its advantages. Its graduates this year, as in the two previous years, are an honor to it, and their disciplined minds, richly stored with a knowledge of the higher branches of learning, will not fail to commend to others its inestimable advantages.
