Superintendent's Report

With which are submitted the Reports of the Headmaster of the High School, the Truant Officer, the School Physician, and the School Nurse.

School Board of Littleton:

Gentlemen:

Your attention is called to the fact that nearly one year of trial has been given to the new educational law. Certainly Littleton has benefitted financially by the provision of the State school funds for equalization. Over $10,000 have been allotted to Littleton for the support of the elementary schools for 1919-1920. Every school child in New Hampshire is receiving the advantages of expert supervision. Standard schools are maintained everywhere in the State. Under the direction of the State Board of Education the duties and responsibilities of all school officials have been enhanced and coordinated. New Hampshire is receiving nation-wide recognition for having put into actual practice this most progressive educational statute.

ATTENDANCE

Although the year 1918-1919 was deplorably broken the per cent of attendance was over 90, average attendance, 761, average absence, 77.5, average membership, 638.61. The last of February of the present school year, 1919-1920, we had reached a total registration of 870, with an actual membership of 785. Three factors are making for improved attendance: the excellent work of the truant officer, the cooperative effort of the school physician and the school nurse, and the organization of the schools for the elimination of unexcusable absence and tardiness.

AMERICANIZATION

All the activities of the schools are organized in the faith that good citizenship in school is the guarantee of good citizenship through life. In the words of Commissioner Butterfield, "training in the duties, responsibilities, and privileges of citizenship," is the aim of our education. School work is centered in the life and industry of Littleton. Thrift, health, social cooperation, patriotism, and the other qualities of good Americanism are concretely taught through actual practice. Each teacher is trying to measure up to her responsibility to the future of our democracy.

In one vital way the schools are responding to the call of Americanization. For 20 years there has been a need of continuation schools in Littleton. It was met January 6 of this year when we opened our evening school with a registration of more than 30. There have been three sessions a week with an average attendance of over 20. Two classes were organized. The beginners in reading and writing English are taught by Miss Antoinette Auger, who had experience in similar work last year in Claremont. Mr. Doody is in charge of the intermediate division. Both teachers are making the ideals of American citizenship the aim of their instruction. Certainly no finer service is being done anywhere than in these evening classes. The presence of these earnest men and women is an inspiration to any true American. The evening school should be a permanent feature of our school system.

THE HIGH SCHOOL

November 20 and 21, 1919, Mr. Walter M. May, State high school agent, inspected the high school. He reported it as "one of the strongest schools in the state." He found the "instruction good and the discipline excellent." He commended the supervision and management.

The report of Headmaster Doody is submitted herewith.

THE TEACHERS

All the schools are supervised and directed according to the standards set by the State Board of Education. Success is due to the character of the teaching force, a loyal corps of teachers who are doing their tasks efficiently. Our chief concern must be to maintain this high standard of the personnel of our teaching staff. Teachers now in service must be so far as possible retained. But we can not keep them unless we pay them adequate salaries. I should be remiss in my duty if I did not emphasize this.

The State Board of Education has asked the school boards of New Hampshire to give this problem their most careful consideration. Surrounding towns are meeting the conditions. In many cases salaries have been advanced during the school year. The school boards are arranging their budgets to meet the demands for increases. It is my belief that Littleton will not be found wanting in this important need.

In bringing my report to its close I can not help recalling that when my present term of office expires the last of next August I shall have completed a decade in the service of the schools of Littleton. The time has seemed unbelievably short. I think you and the public for making my tenth year so profitable and enjoyable.

Respectfully submitted,

GUY E. SPEARE,

Superintendent of Schools.

Report of Headmaster

Mr. Guy E. Speare, Superintendent of Schools:

I herewith submit my report as Headmaster of Littleton High school for the school year 1919-1920:

School opened September 2, 1919, with an enrollment of 171 pupils, a little smaller than that of previous years. This is due to the fact that the entering class was smaller. The three upper classes are slightly above the average size. In fact the class that will graduate in June will be the largest in the history of the school. Thus far seven pupils have left and three have entered from other high schools.

Littleton High school has always sent a large percentage of its graduates to institutions of higher learning. At the present time a number of these young men and women are making excellent records in our New Hampshire Normal schools, New Hampshire State, Dartmouth and several colleges outside the State. In this year's senior class 65 per cent of the pupils have already made their plans to continue their education next year.

The teaching staff has eight new members who have entered into the work of the school with much enthusiasm. The spirit of cooperation between the teachers and pupils is excellent and has made this school year a very pleasant one.

The school has been approved by the State Board of Education as a high school of the first class. The privilege to certify students to colleges under the New England Entrance Board has been extended for a period of three years. This means that graduates of high standing are admitted to the colleges in that list without examination. High scholarship has always been of great advantage to students seeking admission to colleges and it will be even more important in the future. Many institutions are paying less attention to the course of study that the candidate has pursued than to his standing in his class. In the fall of 1921, Dartmouth college will say to the prospective student, "Were you in the first fourth of your class?" New Hampshire State college and the Normal schools at Plymouth and Keene admit without examination graduates of approved New Hampshire secondary schools who meet the requirements in the different departments of those institutions. For those who do not plan to go beyond the high school, scholarship is just as essential.

There are many activities which go with a modern high school that form a part of the education of every boy and girl. Littleton High school has endeavored to maintain these activities, always bearing in mind that they must be secondary to work in the classroom. Athletics, socials, the "Record," the "Agora," and the senior play are the main outside activities of this school.

The boys on the athletic teams have tried to conduct themselves in a sportsmanlike manner when engaged in athletic contests. From reports received from Principals and Headmasters there is every reason to believe that a feeling of friendly rivalry exists between Littleton High school and these other schools. A message sent to an eastern football team playing on the Pacific coast seems to sum up the proper view of athletics. "There is a victory in doing your best of which no one can deprive you."

The passing mark of the school is 70 per cent, but no student should be satisfied with the minimum. The leaders in the industrial and professional world today are not looking for 70 per-centers. If boys and girls can decide early in their high school course what they are preparing for they will be given the best kind of an incentive to do good work. Their plans may have to be changed later, but they should have some definite aim in view all the time. The proper combination of work and play, regular attendance, punctuality and the careful preparation of work from day to day will bring success to the individual student and to the school.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank you, Mr. Superintendent, the Board of Education, the parents of High school pupils and the people of Littleton for your interest in Littleton High school and your hearty support of all its activities.

Respectfully submitted,

STEPHEN A. DOODY.

Report of Truant Officer

1918-1920

To the Superintendent of Schools:

During 1918-1919 I investigated about 100 cases of truancy, coming from half as many families, with nearly as many thus far this year. My methods of treatment necessarily depend on what I find in my first visit. Many of the families are well-meaning, and with these it is easy to deal. Oftentimes someone in the family is sick and parents think that they must have the children at home to help. When they understand the law, however, arrangements are generally made to get the boy or girl into school at once. Of course, sometimes the pupils are ill, and in such an event I am very glad to notify the teacher. It would save a great deal of embarrassment on the part of both the parents and myself if in case of illness word to that effect were sent to the school.

In a few instances there is something the trouble with one or more of the children most of the time, due to lack of care, or improper food. The services of the school nurse prove invaluable here, as the cases are reported to her at once and she sees that necessary treatment is secured.

There are other families who are afflicted with chronic truancy, who have been troublesome since their children began school, and who will probably continue to give more or less bother until the children are old enough to leave school. These parents are indifferent whether their children attend school or not, and they make no effort to keep them there. Moreover they will back the young truants in anything they do or say. With these families I make the law quite clear, and after two or three visits, turn them over to Judge Heald.

I am very glad to report, however, that, although the number of cases investigated is larger this year than last, the number of cases of chronic truancy is smaller, and I hope that before long all of these may be cleared up.

GEORGE W. SMITH, Truant Officer.

Report of School Physician.

To the Superintendent of Schools:

I submit my report of inspections of the village and rural schools.

Number of children inspected, 700; total number found with physical defects, 353; number found with defective teeth, 282; number found with hypertrophied tonsils, 113. Of these two secured treatment during November, and 13 cases were treated during the summer.

Number found with adenoids, 16; number found with orthopedic defects, 12. Two of these have secured treatment.

Number found with hearing defects, 6; number found with vision defects, 18. Ten have secured treatment.

Number found with nervous diseases, 3; number found with cardiac disease, 3; number found with pediculosis, 10. All of the 10 have been treated.

Number found with skin disease, 2. Both have been treated.

Number found with goitre, 6; pulmonary suspect, 1; venereal suspects, 2. Both were removed from school.

Number cases malnutrition, 4. Two have improved.

There was one case of diphtheria in the village school. The rest of the children in the grade were examined and several cultures made, which were negative.

The follow up work of the nurse, Miss Gillette, was of great benefit to the children and resulted in several defects being remedied.

JOHN M. PAGE, School Physician.

Report of the School Nurse.

To the Superintendent of Schools:

It is impossible to read any school health statistics without a feeling of amazement at the small number of children who are free from some form of physical defects. A study of the statistics, however, is somewhat reassuring for the finding of a child who is listed as "defective" on account of some easily remedial trouble, such as carious teeth, enlarged tonsils, or eye strain should not be regarded as a source of discouragement, but rather a spur to action.

The relation of remedial physical defects, adenoids, tonsils, carious teeth, etc., to the general health has been demonstrated so often that to restate it here would be merely superfluous. The means to get defects corrected might be mentioned. One of our aims must be to teach the elementary principles of personal and public hygiene, the Health Crusade in the grades, which can only be accomplished through the interest and cooperation shown by our teachers.

Where there is financial need, free medical, surgical and dental treatment is necessary. Our physicians and dentists have been most generous in giving their services.

The hot noon lunches established under the auspices of the Red Cross, prepared and served by the Domestic Science Department for High and Kilburn, as well as those prepared by teachers and pupils in Apthorp, are much appreciated by the pupils who are obliged to bring a cold lunch, and we believe will prove beneficial to them.

We hope during the coming months to have, as part of our school health program, games and physical exercises. Games give grace and poise and are natural correctives of nearly all bad posture of the school room. Games promote physical efficiency, alertness, self control, and respect for the rights of others.

The follow up work of the nurse, her cooperation with the parents, superintendent of schools, teachers and children, is essential in bringing about our ideal, the normal child.

Respectfully submitted,

LUCY GILLETTE, R. N.

LIBRARY NOTES

Library activities during the past year come under what is known in library progress as the "reconstruction period," and while this reconstruction period pertains more especially to the work done in the larger town and city library, the small and medium sized libraries have a duty as well, and should awake to the call, and so strive for a higher plane of service. The motto given to libraries throughout the land is "Therefore let us be earnest and diligent in this special work of developing the usefulness of the public library to the utmost." In reviewing our own library activities for the past year, the statistics give no material change, and the work done is much the same as in the past few years. It is no doubt somewhat of a satisfaction in any business, at the close of its year, to realize that it is not "running behind," but it is not what would be called a growing success, to just keep in the same old unprogressive state, and sooner or later there will be a noticeable falling off in activities, and then comes the struggle to regain past records, and so push on to higher standards. Is it not the better judgment to face the new responsibilities at the onset, rather than to apply restoratives too late, when, the library like a patient needing medical attention, puts off the needed care, and thus is obliged to spend more time, money and energy to be restored to normal conditions again? We must be alert and never allow the library to reach any such state where it will require special treatment to be kept alive; and while there may not seem to be any immediate danger of reaching such a state, much remains to be done if we are to keep up in this work which now confront all libraries; and as a library in an active town of a state that is forging ahead, we must not ignore these duties.

The work accomplished by the American Library Association during the war, is well known to those interested enough to read its records of achievements; and the work has not ceased, but continues with renewed interests, in ever increasing proportions. All libraries are now acknowledged as integral parts of the Educational System of the country, and during the past few years, our own state began to be awake to the growing necessities of library needs, and finally through the united efforts of the Federated Woman's Club, and other enthusiastic library workers, the Legislature passed the bill acknowledging the needs of the town and country library; and in accordance with the principles of other enlightened states, a sum of money was voted to be used in library extension, and now New Hampshire can march in rank and file with other progressive states.

This advance in library matters is known as the New Hampshire Library Commission, and is an organized body with officers chosen from library workers in the state, and a qualified secretary, who is now established in quarters at the State Library, and whose duty it is to give assistance to any library in the State where expert advice or service may be required. Miss Kingsland, the secretary, has made one visit to this library, and though the time allotted was short, she was able to see the possible opportunities for advance work. This new advance in library methods should be understood by the community as well as by the trustees of the library and the library attendants, and as the Commission points out, "that it takes two to make a bargain," so the secretary can aid the libraries only as they desire to receive aid, and our opportunity is at hand. The one most important work which must be considered and decided upon at the annual library meeting, will be the recataloging of parts of the library according to modern methods, and this work can now be done with better facilities under the direction of the Library Commission Secretary, and after this work is done, the library card catalog can then be put into shape and service. This is a work necessary for the upkeep of the library for the future.

The old library motto—"The Best Books for the Greatest Number at the Least Cost" no longer applies, but must be changed to the "Best Books for the Greatest Number at the High Cost" is what now confronts the library trustees in the choosing of books.

There will be no reduction in the price of books, magazines, or library supplies of all kinds for a long time, and with the idea of serving all classes can the library afford to retrench? It would only mean a retrograd movement and would fall far short of any high ideals of service to the public. The library had a most valuable legacy handed down from wise and cultured library workers in the past, and as a result the library has had many exceptional opportunities for effective work with the schools, and those desiring advanced work, and now is not the time to shirk the new duties, but build for the future, as was done for the present generation in the past. While it is the duty of the library to furnish books to the public for leisure reading, in a reasonable degree, it is not the mission or duty of the library to conform to that class of reading to such an extent that the pressing demands of the special class of readers, who seek helpful books be ignored, and these special books are usually the costly books for the library to purchase, but are the most essential. In all this that has been written, it is assumed, that the library has been, and is at the present time giving a service which entitles it to increase its demands for more adequate support for the future. If it has been doing its level best with the present means, it can rise to no higher plane of usefulness without increased support, and with a broader work would be in keeping with the increasing activities in town, and the library according to modern standards should not be the institution to be thrust aside with no special thought by enterprising citizens.

Respectfully submitted,

JENNIE E. SMITH, Librarian.
