SEVENTIETH ANNUAL REPORT

— OF THE —

SCHOOL BOARD OF DUBLIN, N. H., MARCH 1, 1892.

---

The town at its last annual meeting appropriated $100 for repair of school houses. The old seats and desks have been removed from No. 1 school room. A new floor, lined underneath with paper, was laid in the school room. The seats and desks and teacher's desk, formerly used in the high school room in the town house, were placed in school room No. 1. Six new seats and desks of smaller size were added, making 48 seats and 42 desks for pupils in the room. The underpinning of this school house was reset, cracks and joints cemented and the foundation well banked with earth. The school room can now be kept comfortably warmed in cold weather. The amount expended for repairs on school house No. 1 is $120.74.

In school room No. 3 a new seven inch pipe for the stove was procured at an expense of $9.05.

The underpinning at school house No. 6 was reset at an expense of $3.80. Additional repairs are needed on the foundation.

School house No. 5 is in need of repairs.

With the exception of the barbaric custom of breaking glass at No. 6, our school houses have suffered less abuse during the past year than usual.

No school was taught in school room No. 5 during the year. One scholar was provided with a tutor for 14 weeks at an expense of $7. $18 has been allowed for travel or conveyance. A term of 10 weeks, commencing the last week in April, was held in each of the other school houses. Also a term of 14 weeks during the autumn. In No.'s 4 and 6 an extra week was added to make up past omissions. This gave 24 weeks for the year in three, and 25 weeks in two of the school houses. An average of 4 weeks more than last year.

GENERAL REMARKS.

We think we remember as many and some worse failures on the part of teachers and schools, before the town system was adopted, than have occurred during the same number of years since. We want teachers of natural adaptation and enthusiastic in their work—those who have been trained and fitted for teachers by education, experience and observation of the best methods of other competent instructors. We believe the work of our Normal School and Teacher's Institute is invaluable in the state. It is true that to make the successful teacher there must be natural intelligence, the love of children and the inborn faculty of control, without which no amount of education and training avails as an equivalent. But most of our best teachers who have never attended a normal school, have been under the instruction of those who have, or they have gained valuable ideas by attending teachers' institutes or in visiting the schools of other progressive teachers.

A very important point insisted upon in our normal schools is that the teacher before entering the school room for the day, shall plan the work, look over the different lessons and be prepared to give such information as may be obtained outside the text book, bearing upon the topics of each lesson. This was the practice of nearly all our teachers for the past year and did much to increase the pupils' interest in their studies. It is unfortunate when a teacher thinks there is need of no further information.

The holding a teachers' institute in a town awakens in that community a more live, earnest interest in the cause of education. Without the feeling that the highest attainable good of our children, morally, physically and intellectually, is of paramount importance, we fall short of best results, even with liberal appropriations, good school houses, abundant school apparatus and excellent teachers.

While the text book law has its disadvantages, which we trust will in the near future be overcome in part, it certainly has important advantages over the old way of furnishing books. The teacher's desk is now supplied with necessary books. The scholars are better supplied. The books are alike for each study in its grade.

During the past year we have introduced in one school, Dicken's Child's History of England, in another, Butler's Physical Geography and Eggleston's History of the United States. In two schools, Harper's Readers. For teachers' use in all the schools, Hyde's Primary Lessons in English. Also for advanced scholars, Avery's First Principles of Philosophy and Dole's American Citizen. Six maps, one for each school room, have been added to our list. The increased interest manifested by the scholars we think proves the wisdom of introducing some new books.

GENERAL REPORT.

Two of the five teachers employed during the first term had given proof of their fitness for their positions. Of the other three, one had taught in a neighboring town and two were inexperienced. There was a difference in the value of the work performed, but there were no failures.

Second term. It is seldom that our schools have done so uniformly well and given so general satisfaction as was the case in this long term.

Each teacher employed was well fitted for her or his position. Their earnest efforts for the good of those in their charge were not hindered by any case of insubordination. Good order was a characteristic in each of the five schools. The interest in school work was generally well sustained to the end.

All our schools suffer by having too many classes, but this is unavoidable in ungraded schools.

The interest of parents and others was manifested by frequent visits and attendance at the closing examination.

SPECIAL REPORTS.

No. 1.

First term. The instruction was of a high order of excellence. The direct results, as shown at the closing examination, were noticeable in the neatness of the school room, cultivated appearance of the scholars, distinct articulation and good general improvement.

The second term was a continuation of the first. One new and interesting feature at its close was the wand drill.

No. 2.

First term. This was the teacher's first experience. His ardent enthusiasm, untiring energy and able control of the school produced good results. The scholars were prompt and attentive. A good amount of profitable work was accomplished.

Second term of fourteen weeks was divided between two teachers. The first, by her intelligence, large experience and thorough devotion to her work was eminently fitted for the needs of this school. At the close of her work it was evident that the school had been very profitably taught, and had performed valuable work during the seven weeks. We felt that it would be difficult for another teacher to take up the work and do as well.

The committee were fortunate in securing the services of one whose qualifications and former experience here adapted him to the place. The school did excellent work during the second seven weeks. At the final examination the promptness and correctness with which the pupils performed their work, and the clear, distinct tones, loud enough to be heard by all in the room, were very gratifying.

No. 3.

First term. The teacher has the tact to make the work of the school room interesting and attractive to her scholars. Much interest in their school is manifested by the parents. At the closing examination the opening exercises were impressive, the work of the different classes quite correct and indicated good progress. The school room was very clean and tastefully decorated with leaves, ferns, mosses and flowers.

The second term was a continuation of the good work of the first. At the close of the fourteen weeks the scholars expressed regret that their school days for the year were past.

No. 4.

First term. Much of the instruction was profitable. Reading received good attention. Writing and drawing showed to advantage. The younger pupils made good progress. More preparatory work by the teacher outside of school hours would have given increased interest to the older scholars in their studies.

Second term. The children in several families were afflicted with whooping cough, which at times seriously disturbed the school and caused a large number of absences. With due allowance for this the term was a profitable one. The teacher, by her education, training and large experience, was well adapted to the situation. The scholars of this school are remarkable for being on time. Not a single instance of tardiness is recorded during the year.

No. 6.

First term. The school at first was discouraging to the teacher, who had not the advantage of previous experience. By her perseverance and determination to succeed she gradually overcame difficulties. We noticed improvement in the control at each visit made, and were gratified at the closing examination to find a good amount of improvement and profitable work accomplished.

Second term. This was under the instruction of an experienced teacher. The order was good, instruction thorough. A good amount of progress made in the different studies. Correct work put upon the black boards. Scholars were somewhat deficient in animation and spoke in too low tones. In this school sickness interfered with the attendance.

HIGH SCHOOL.

The town at its last annual meeting appropriated $100, to be expended by the trustees of the Appleton fund, towards the support of what we designate as a high school.

The term was under the instruction of Mr. Geo. C. Smith of Northwood, N. H., a member of the junior class in Dartmouth college, and commenced Dec. 28th last, closing March 2, 1892.

Number of pupils attending two or more weeks, 26. Studies pursued: Attending to Reading 26, Arithmetic 25, Spelling 24, Geography 11, History 10, Grammar 8, Algebra 8, Composition 7, Philosophy 5, English Literature 3, Civil Government 2, Latin 2.

Average number of pupils 25. Average daily attendance 23. Percentage of attendance .92. Not absent during the term 11. Neither late nor absent 6, viz., Edna Perry, Mark Baldwin, Deloss Bond, Linwood Howe, Claude Pierce, Marshall Willard. Number of visitors during the term 22. Wages of teacher per month including board $60. Amount expended from Appleton fund $60.

The text books, except in Latin and English literature, were supplied by the town.

Worcester's Unabridged Dictionary was nearly ruined by some of the older boys wantonly throwing it about the school room. We suggest that those boys would be esteemed more highly in the community if they had risen early in the morning and worked off their surplus energy at their fathers' woodpiles, and then attended school behaving like young gentlemen. Rudeness and the abuse of public property do not indicate good sense or breeding.

Profanity is an indication of vulgarity.

The instruction of the teacher was thorough, his explanations clear and correct. His intelligence and general information enabled him to add much not found in the text books, to make recitations interesting and impart useful knowledge. The pupils made good progress in their studies.

Much attention is needed in cultivating the quality and volume of voice and distinctness of articulation in pupils, in reading and reciting lessons in the school room. It would have been far more interesting to the visitors present at the close of this school if the scholars could have been distinctly heard in all their work.
