SCHOOL REPORT.

DISTRICT No. 1.—BLANCHARD.

Summer and fall terms taught by Miss Clara A. Johnson. Wages per month: summer term, $20; fall term, $20.40. No. of weeks: summer, 10; fall, 8. Whole number of scholars: summer, 29, average, 26; fall, 28, average, 23.

Miss Johnson came with an experience of two former terms in this district, and just what was expected was abundantly realized—a complete success. This teacher holds position in the front rank with worthy teachers.

Winter term by Miss H. Paulina Heath, who, though a stranger, came well reported with an experience of thirty former terms, and the result was very marked improvement throughout. Indeed too much can hardly be said in praise of the several terms.

This school, from being one of disorder and ill-repute, has grown to be one among the best—really, in some respects, a model school. And while we render credit to a good teacher, we must not forget that much of the improvement is due to a general interest manifested by parents and others in the frequent visits of the several terms. The register shows that the schools have been visited 117 times, thereby giving aid and encouragement to teachers and pupils.

DISTRICT No. 2.—EMERY.

Summer term taught by Miss Anna E. Sanborn. Wages per month, $16. No. of weeks, 7; No. of scholars, 12; average 11. Miss Sanborn is a faithful and hard-working teacher, and should have received a more cordial support from the district. The school appeared well, however, and the examination was very satisfactory, notwithstanding your committee visited it before the time appointed.

Miss Emma J. Morrill taught the winter term. Wages per month, $16; number of weeks, 9; number of scholars, 16; average, 14. Miss Morrill has deservedly found favor in this district. She has taught the school some five or more terms, and consequently brings to her assistance a knowledge of the wants of individual scholars, which cannot fail to be of value to any teacher. Considerable attention was paid to penmanship, and commendable improvement was made, not only in the style of the writing, but also in the care of the books. The register shows twenty-five visits of citizens and others, during the year.

DISTRICT No. 3.—BOROUGH.

Miss Mabel C. Gage, teacher of summer term. Miss Bessie S. Morrill, of fall term. Wages per month, $16; number of weeks: summer, 10; fall, 11; number of scholars: summer, 11; fall, 10; average, 9.

The government of this school is an easy matter, as the scholars are orderly and well-disposed. The improvement in reading was quite marked. The use of the black-board for the spelling and other lessons—an exercise in which all engaged—was decidedly a step in the right direction. Twenty-one visits are recorded in the register.

DISTRICT No. 4.—BAPTIST.

Fall Term.—Wages per month, $28; number of weeks, 8; number of scholars, 12; average attendance, 10. The fall term was taught by J. W. Brown, of Loudon, a young man of excellent character and attainments, but without experience in teaching. He evidently labored faithfully and conscientiously in the discharge of his duties, but failing to get control of the school at the beginning, disorderly conduct on the part of some of the scholars greatly impaired his usefulness.

Winter Term.—Wages per month, $28; number of weeks, 8 3-5; number of scholars, 11; average attendance, 9. The winter term was under the charge of Miss Ellen C. Bean, of Tilton. The school was visited by your committee near the close of the first week of the term, when it was found to be under the most perfect discipline, and we felt assured that the district could hardly fail to enjoy a profitable term. We have no doubt the assurance was realized, though owing to a mis-carriage of notice we were unable to be present at the closing exercises. Twenty visits registered.

DISTRICT NO. 5.—HACKLEBOROUGH.

Summer Term.—Wages, $20 ; number of weeks, 7 ; number of scholars, 15 ; average attendance, 14. Miss Emma J. Jones, the teacher of this term, has been so often and favorably reported to the citizens of Canterbury, that perhaps it is hardly necessary to say more than that she did justice to herself and her deservedly high reputation, and that her labors were made pleasant and profitable by earnest efforts on the part of her pupils to profit by them.

Winter Term.—Wages, $26 ; number of weeks, 8 2-5 ; number of scholars, 16 ; average attendance, 14. This term was taught by Miss Jennie L. Cochran, a teacher of energy and experience. The closing exercises indicated a faithful performance of duty, on her part, and a cheerful co-operation on the part of the scholars, though in some points the school hardly sustained its former high reputation. There were thirty-two visits by citizens and others.

DISTRICT NO. 6.—HILL'S CORNER.

Summer Term.—Wages per month, $22 ; number of weeks, 9 ; number of scholars, 13 ; average attendance, 9. We think that, considering the circumstances, this may be considered a profitable term. The teacher, Miss Mary P. Payson, was thorough and methodical in her manner of teaching, and tried hard to implant the same habits in her pupils, not without good results, which we could have wished more of the parents might have witnessed at the final examination.

Winter Term.—Wages, per month, $24 ; number of weeks, 9 ; number of scholars, 13 ; average attendance, 10. Mr. Amos C. Lyford, of Tilton, teacher. Sickness, we were informed, interfered somewhat with the progress of the school, and at the closing examination only six pupils were present. These, however, were ready in their answers, though not so accurate in some points as would be desirable. Ten visits reported.

DISTRICT No. 7.—CENTRE.

Summer and Fall Term.—Taught by Miss M. Lizzie Putnam. Wages, per month: summer, $28; fall, $32; number of weeks: summer, 10; fall, 10; number of pupils, 34; average attendance, 33. Miss Putnam is a lady of scholarly attainments and a hard-worker, but for some reason she failed, in the summer term, to infuse much zeal and energy into her school. Strict accuracy in all cases was not sufficiently insisted upon, and there was an evident lack of method and system. As a result, on examination day, though some of the scholars did well, the exercises as a whole were not what we had reason to expect. Many of the answers could not be heard across the room, which naturally favored the inference of a lack of confidence on the part of those so answering. In the fall, however, we observed a better state of things. The school appeared to take a new interest in the work before them, and at the close we were glad to notice marked improvement in several directions. The tone of voice was elevated, the answers were more correct, the reading was less mechanical, and the general tenor of the exercises was a decided advance upon the last term. There was considerable attention paid to penmanship, during the summer and fall, and some very creditable specimens of map drawing were shown.

The winter term was under the instruction of Mr. Robert Frame, a young man of energy and perseverance, and possessed of some experience as a teacher. Wages, per month, $34; number of weeks, 10; number of scholars, 31; average attendance, 26. This term has been quite successful, notwithstanding the fact that the attendance has been very irregular owing to the prevalence of sickness.

The examination exercises showed that much good work had been done, and that while the higher branches had been successfully taught, the elements had not been neglected. The performance of the reading classes was quite a noticeable feature of the examination. The attendance of citizens and others upon the several examinations was large, and numerous visits were made during term time.

DISTRICT NO. 8.—SHAKERS.

This school had a session of sixteen weeks, in summer, and fourteen, in winter; both terms being under the superintendence of Asenath C. Stickney, assisted during the first term by L. Jeanette Forest. The teacher's natural qualifications for her work have been developed and ripened by study and experience, and under her careful management the school has, in very many respects, become a model. Their arrangements are such as to allow reasonable freedom of movement on the part of the smaller pupils without producing confusion; and the instruction imparted was of an eminently practical character, aiming to teach the abstract through the medium of the concrete. The reading exercises were rendered with a great deal of expression and good articulation; and music and drawing were attended to with very gratifying results. Wages, in summer, $26; number of scholars, 20; average attendance, 18. Wages, in winter, $34; number of scholars, 33; average attendance, 20.

DISTRICT NO. 9.—UNION.

Owing to the failure on the part of those whose duty it is to give proper notification, your committee is unable to report the condition of this school.

DISTRICT NO. 10.—DEPOT.

One term, instructed by Mr. John Pickard. Wages, per month, $28; number of weeks, 10; number of scholars, 10; average, 7. Your committee visited the school after it had been in session one week, and was very much pleased with the mode of instruction, the perfect order, the promptness with which his pupils responded to questions, and his aptness to communicate. We were convinced that this term must be successful, but owing to very severe sickness in our family, we were unable to be present at the closing examination. We are informed, however, that our convictions were more than realized. The instruction was eminently practical, and strict accuracy insisted upon. Considerable attention was paid to composition, and some really good specimens of letters were shown. Number of visits by parents and others, 13.

DISTRICT NO. 11.—UPPER INTERVAL.

Wages, per month, $20; number of weeks, 11; number of pupils, 14; average attendance 11. This school has been under the direction of Miss Etta F. Heath, for the year. Miss H. is an earnest and conscientious teacher, and under her care the school has sustained its former good character, and made creditable progress. Number of visits registered, 20.

DISTRICT NO. 12.—CARTER.

Single term of nine weeks, taught by Miss Minnie F. Gale. Wages, per month, $20; number of pupils, 12; average attendance, 10. With two exceptions, the scholars came from neighboring districts, the term being so arranged as to admit of their coming until near the close, when they were called away by the opening of their own schools. Those who were present at the examination did very well—the reading classes showing to good advantage. Number of visits registered, 11.

FELLOW CITIZENS: We have presented to you the preceding detailed statement of the condition and progress of the several schools in town, during the past year, as it has impressed itself upon our minds, while in the discharge of our official duties. We believe it to be our duty to present to you a correct and impartial statement as to our schools, and in this belief we have approached the subject with the sincere intention, according to the best of our ability, to do strict justice to all; if it shall appear that we have failed in any case, we hope it may be viewed as an error of judgment, rather than intention. We are more than ever impressed with the magnitude of the interests involved.

Other officers of the town will report to you the financial standing of the town, but to this you look largely to learn the influences which have surrounded all that is most precious to you now, and all that will be most important in our future, for parents trust far too much to other people, and see too little for themselves, of the school life of their children. We are most happy to be able to say that our schools, as a whole, have made an advance from their position in former years—there may be individual instances to the contrary, but we think the general movement has been onward and upward—and, if allowable in this connection, would say that the action of your committee for a few years past, in withholding certificates of qualification in some cases, has resulted in securing a higher average of literary attainment among our teachers. But while we consider our common schools of inestimable value, in their present imperfect condition, they need cherishing and improving—improving to that extent that much of the instruction now sought in distant academies may be found in our common schools, thus retaining children longer under home influences. The methods of securing these results have been so often and thoroughly discussed that we will not venture repetition here, but indulge the hope that so much good seed may soon produce fruit.

Respectfully submitted,

C. W. EMERY,	} Superintending
