SCHOOL REPORT.

We have in our schools 176 town scholars and a few children from adjoining towns who by paying, are instructed in Campton. All of our pupils are of average ability, and some of great promise.

We trust all will avail themselves of the books from the Public Library now open. It is proposed to keep catalogues in each school house, that the pupils may pursue an instructive course of reading with their studies.

The past year especial attention has been given to writing and grammar, under composition, by all the teachers who followed out the directions of the Committee.

We find that the teachers who prepare themselves for teaching give the best results and follow best the directions of the School Board, and it is hoped that the Normal School graduates who have put time and money into equipping themselves for teaching, will receive more patronage from towns near Plymouth. The Normal School is abreast with the times and it is a pity that Western and Southern states know more of Prof. Rounds and his works, than Campton knows. Let us profit by a blessing so near at hand and be thankful for it!

Prize speaking, at the close of the Spring term, stimulates the pupils to strong effort in that direction and develops courage, self-reliance, and voice power, all necessary acquirements.

The assembling of all the teachers in the town to meet the Committee, the first day of each term, works well. A plan is laid for the teachers to follow, so that all our schools are conducted the same. At the last Teachers' Assembly, held at Blair's, the State Superintendent, Mr. Fred Gowing, was present and addressed us.

This all tends to a better system of schools than this town could boast of in the past.

The power engendered, by respecting public or other people's property, evinces the development of civilization's crowning glory—true manhood and womanhood. On this ground it pays a town to expend money on improving and even beautifying the school surroundings, in order to teach the growing town folks, these branches of education, respect and self-restraint. So other things being equal let this be a motto for future action—"Attractive teachers, attractive school-rooms, well-kept buildings, clean, healthful out-buildings, and tidy and even beautiful school-grounds."

There has been a marked effort lately for improvement on the above items and best of all, co-operation on the part of scholars in helping to keep things in good condition, which last is a long step in education. The defacing of public property is such a relic of ignorance and barbarism, that it should be one of the first efforts of the educational element to eliminate from our midst.

We must fit all of our scholars for the White House, or give a basis for such a fitting, not knowing who of our town may be called to fill the President's chair. So give the children the same chance throughout the town; we must be no respectors of numbers, location or districts. Working on this rule, the School Board appointed twenty-one weeks of teaching throughout the town. We have done our best to mete out justice; conveying the children, of school age, in those districts where no school was held, and if the children of this town have not all partaken of this equal opportunity, it is their parents responsibility and the children's loss.

It is my earnest hope, to see at some future day, this town offering financial assistance to such of her pupils as need it, to further them to a higher education than this town offers. Giving some sort of scholarship, according to the ability of the pupil. Money invested in smart citizens is money invested well! as the Paris school system shows.

Some such plan adopted, (with Plymouth High School so advanced, and near us), would overcome our lack of a High School, a growing need of which is felt already.

The best education a citizen can have is that which teaches him to deal wisely in the community wherein he dwelleth. That the children of this town may early become familiar with the town surroundings, acquainted with each other and form a basis for wider development. It has with this object in view, seemed expedient to the School Board to have a number of meetings of the children; among them are the so-called spelling schools in different parts of the town, a prize of money (out of the pockets of the Board) offered for some competition, drew the children together, but a deeper purpose actuated the Committee regarding these meetings, inducing them even, to personally convey scholars when the parents did not co-operate, to further these union sessions. That satisfactory results may be gained, we earnestly ask parents, in the future to bring the children themselves and be present at these meetings.

The Committee on working for the town of the future, we ask the help of the town folks of to day; a word of commendation from headquarters goes a long way in keeping the scholars willing and ready, where as a word injudiciously spoken at home can turn the pupils into rebellious little subjects, difficult to handle and hard to educate wisely. The School Board needs strong thoughtful home influence to help accomplish any permanant good. We ask it from one and all of the town.

I am your servant,

MARY E. HILDRETH,

Chairman of the School Board.

February, 1894.
