From the above tabulation, it will be noted that the number of pupils registered and average membership have declined somewhat as in the past three years. The percent of attendance is good and there is a considerable drop in the amount of tardiness. Only the schools in the Contoocook Elementary building had the required 360 half sessions. The number of high school tuition pupils was five. Two high school pupils and one elementary pupil attended schools in Concord. Making allowance for these there were 285 pupils residing in the district and attending public schools, a decrease of fourteen from last year.

During the year the new agricultural farm shop was completed. In the fall term of 1941, an 8 week course in wood-working for out-of-school youth, 17-24 years of age, was held in this building under the direction of Mr. Francis Blanchard. Through the State Board of Education, necessary tools including a Delta bench saw were furnished by the Federal Government which also paid the cost of all light, heat and power, janitor expense and salary of Mr. Blanchard. At present, the same plan is being followed in a course in Automobile and Tractor Repairing. Mr. Ward is the instructor of this group.

In behalf of the teachers and the school district we wish to thank Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cressy for the excellent piano which they presented to the Hopkinton Village School. They also had the instrument moved into the school building without expense to the district. We wish to acknowledge also a gift of valuable books from Mrs. Elden Cilley to the High School and the gift of a 60-foot flag pole to the Contoocook Graded School by E. Roger Montgomery Post, and to thank the donors for this timely assistance. The pole was set up on the school grounds by the Public Service Company of New Hampshire at no cost to the district, and we are grateful to them for this expert installation. In conclusion we wish to express our appreciation for the support and assistance of all parents and others who have in any way contributed to the welfare or advancement of the interests of the schools.

Shortage of Teachers

We wish to direct the attention of the board and the parents of pupils in the district to the serious shortage of teachers. During the past two years, this has been becoming more acute, particularly among elementary teachers. Now, it is greatly accentuated and is extended to high school teachers. The reasons for this are: (a) Large numbers of young men have enlisted in the army or navy. (b) Others, both men and women have gone and will go to work in essential industries where they receive much higher wages or salaries than they would in teaching. The latter will be followed by others who are now teaching unless higher salaries are paid. Prices are going up, and the value of the dollar is coming down. The cost of living has increased eleven percent since August 1939. Food prices are up nineteen percent. A dollar at the grocers is worth only about eighty cents.

Twelve million factory workers have already received an increase of 30% in average weekly earnings. Farm products have gone up 45%. Teachers' salaries, however, remain the same. Prices by the end of the year 1942 will in all probability be 25% higher than in August, 1939. Thus the teachers salary of $1,000.00 will be cut to $750.00. To have purchasing value equal to that of 1939, it should be advanced to $1,250.00. This will, of course, mean an increased budget and higher taxation, but to meet this, incomes of the people in general are rising faster than the cost of living. Property is worth more.

At the coming district meetings, it will be necessary for the people of the community to choose whether they will jeopardize the welfare of their children through the loss of their best teachers, or whether they will increase the salaries of these teachers enough to hold them in the district. Already several of the teachers in Supervisory Union No. 26 have received very attractive offers to teach in neighboring states or in the larger towns and cities of New Hampshire.

The schools are our long-time line of defense. It is the responsibility of the people to strengthen rather than weaken this line.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN A. SINCLAIR,
Superintendent of Schools.

HEADMASTER'S REPORT

Subjects taught for this year were: Modern European History, Commercial Geography, Algebra I, General Mathematics, Geometry, Economics. Pupils varied in number from an average of 6 in Commercial Geography to 39 in Modern European History. As anyone, who has ever taught, knows this is a heavy load for any teacher and an impossible one for a headmaster to carry. There is no one responsible for this except the headmaster himself who was willing to try this to give greater choices of subject matter to the pupils than would have been otherwise possible. It may be definitely said that such is not good policy and very poor educational practise. Administration of a school, the teachers, the pupils, the courses themselves, and lastly, the person involved all must suffer to some degree. It was also a matter of convenience that the headmaster coached the senior play which proved most enjoyable as the result of fine cooperation of all concerned but is none-the-less out of line with good practice and likewise, in this case, out of line with this headmaster's training and experience.

The social sciences in the above list have been excellent ones to teach this year because of the world situation which has made them real. In spite of this modern youth seems to have developed a fatalism coupled with individual apathy, if not laziness, which makes one wonder if a democracy must of its own weight continue. It is only when one remembers that people as parents and really mature adults see things differently that a teacher finds consolation and hopes that some of his pupils will remember some of the basic teachings of earlier years.

In line with the above paragraph it might not be amiss to say that parents can do much to help in building up the ideals of good scholarship, good study habits, good character habits, and a good sense of values. The modern defense program is proving the value of a school training and of sound habits of discipline and character. There will probably be a general swing away from some of the "soft pedagogy" of the past decade, and most of us agree that such a swing can be made with profit. Good habits of school attendance are likewise very important. School is not a place to be when one has no other place to go, or other things to do, but is a place of business and should be so regarded by pupils and parents alike. One cannot in life arrive at work when one wishes, stay as long as is convenient, or take time out for other things varying from "necessary work at home" to "permanents". We realize the rights of the home and wish to cooperate in all ways with the home and expect the same in return.

Hopkinton High School makes a real effort to teach through actual life experiences in extra-curricula activities, taking advantage of abilities as we find them. Accordingly we have a well rounded schedule of athletics, school events, and do not do more because of lack of facilities. It is a hardship on all concerned to be confined to such a small playground. Even a softball is not safe to use until it has been batted "punky" and then much of the fun of playing is "punky" too. We do wish to thank at this time "our neighbors" who have been most tolerant of our transgressions and will not blame them when they become less considerate.

Probably the most worthy project for years was our presentation of H. M. S. Pinafore, which was a very large undertaking for such a small school but which proved to be most successful as a production if not as a financial enterprise. Such a performance calls on the best of talent and cooperation and is a very strong unifying force. On the other hand we realize that such can not be done every year, nor should it, as many who were in it will similarly testify. Only when one is fairly certain of success should such be done.

The record of our graduates in post-secondary schools continues to be one of those "compensations" which delight us and we anticipate that the class of 1941 will add to this probably in a still greater degree because of the unusually high percentage of those prepared for college. However, no institution is any stronger than its alumni and its organization. In this respect it must be remembered that those who have gone to higher schools are doubtlessly well scattered and the burden falls on those nearer home who are just as essential to life in general, and to life in Hopkinton in particular. May they continue their good work as individuals and a group!

Material concerning the nature of the subjects mentioned in the first part of this report may be found in earlier reports and hence the avoidance of repetition in this report.

The continued cooperation of everyone in any way connected with the school is greatly appreciated. We will try to merit its continuation.

Respectfully submitted,

C. MAURICE GRAY,
Headmaster.

ENGLISH, FRENCH, AND LATINEnglish

In the English classes the suggested program of the State Board of Education has been followed to a large extent.

The Freshmen have had as their text book "Beacon Lights of Literature" by Chamberlain, which contains fine selections from American and English literature in all forms: essay, short story, poetry, novel and drama.

The Sophomores enjoyed the second book in this series which embraced selections on a slightly more advanced scale by many famous English and American writers.

In addition to the study of literature which not only acquaints the pupil with the best writings of the ages, but also develops in him an appreciation of really good work, and gives him a more intimate knowledge of these men and women, we spent considerable time on oral and written themes and practice in speaking correctly and writing and spelling accurately.

College English

College English this year has embraced a study of English Literature from the time of Chaucer down to the present. A very comprehensive study of Milton's Minor Poems; Oliver Goldsmith's "She Stoops To Conquer", Carlyle's Essay on Burns and the works of Tennyson and Browning. A study of the satirists, including Pope, Addison, Steele, Swift and Defoe was enjoyed and also the prose writers of the 19th century including Lamb, Carlyle, Ruskin, Macaulay and DeQuincy have been studied. While studying these essayists, practice in writing an essay was had and a great many thought-provoking themes were handed in. Discussion on these essayists was very vital and interesting. The class also studied writers of the Puritan age; including, in addition to Milton, Dryden, Bunyan, Walton, Pepys, Chesterfield and the romantic lyricists of the 16th and 17th centuries Boswell and Johnson proved interesting characters to the class, and our study culminated in a study of the later English poets, including Tennyson, Browning, Arnold, Swinburne, Scott, Gray, and other 19th century poets. From many of these authors well known passages were committed to memory and many outside reports were given by able pupils on the lives and additional works of the writers studied.

The text book used was Bennett's English Literature. We also had many other very helpful textbooks for supplementary work, among which I think the best was English Literature New & Old, edited by Briggs-Herzberg and Bolenius.

Themes and book reports were occasionally written by all members of the class. At least two reports were given orally by each pupil and several others were reviewed in written themes.

I think the class has not only gained a good knowledge of English Literature, but an appreciation of poetry and good writing as well as a more personal interest in these great authors.

Latin

In this class all State requirements have been met and passed. In addition to four books of Caesar required, the class read some Ovid and the first oration against Catiline by Cicero.

A very thorough review of the rudiments of Latin grammar was made and advanced constructions were mastered. I believe the pupils in this class thoroughly appreciate the help their Latin is and will continue to be to them in connection with the use and comprehension of the English language.

French

A definite attempt has been made this year to teach French by the "direct method". Handicapped as the students were in the beginning, they have, however, shown much interest and are able to understand French when spoken and to reply in French and are beginning to think in French while studying this language. Much practice in pronunciation, dictation and conversation has brought forth results and I feel confident at the end of another year the pupils will go forth with a better appreciation of this language plus the ability to read, talk and understand it.

The textbook used was "Language, Literature, and Life of the French People", by Smith & Roberts.

MARION C. ZELLER.

HOME ECONOMICS

The two high school courses in Home Economics during this past year for Freshman and Sophomores, "Clothing and Textiles", and for Juniors and Seniors, "The Home, Its Care and Management".

The units in "Clothing and Textiles" were: 1. Personal Grooming; 2. History of Costume; 3. Clothing Selection; 4. Shopping for Clothes; 5. Clothing Fabrics; 6. Clothing Construction; 7. Clothing Renovation; 8. Care of Clothing; 9. Household Fabrics; 10. Vocations and Leisure Time activities related to Clothing and Textiles. The sewing articles made by members of this class included underwear, pajamas, wool skirts and dresses, cotton and rayon blouses, cotton and rayon dresses, and various kinds of household articles. This class also made children's wool dresses and ladies' skirts for the Red Cross.

In the course, "Home, Its Care and Management", the units studied were: 1. Selection of a Home; 2. Furnishing the Home; 3. Care of the Home; 4. Management of the Home; 5. Home Finances; 6. Home Mechanics for Girls; 7. Home Grounds; 8. Vocations; 9. Leisure Time Activities. One of the practical projects carried on in this class was the making of a hooked rug for the school, and each girl made a hooked chair seat for herself.

As in previous years each girl completed a minimum of 120 hours of home project work. To those who have seen the benefits resulting from home project work, there is no doubt as to their importance in the Home Economics program. It is through these home projects that the girls have the opportunity to use the knowledge and suggestions obtained in class in doing many household tasks. Refinishing of furniture, redecorating of rooms, care of clothing, making a dress are but a few of the projects that are carried on by the girls.

The courses for the seventh and eighth grades are necessarily simpler courses in Homemaking than those of High school. Each class meets twice a week for eighty minutes at a time. It is impossible to study the subject matter in detail, or to do as much practical work as we might desire; therefore, stress is placed upon the practical art of homemaking. Some of the units studied were grooming, mending, care of the home, meal preparation, and basic principles of sewing. Some of the articles made were slips, aprons, Christmas gifts, blouses, and simple dresses. The foods work, as in high school, is based on meal preparation.

We feel confident that as a result of Home Economics training, girls will be better members of their families, better homemakers, better members of their communities than they would have otherwise been.

VOCATIONAL AGRICULTURE

The work in agriculture contributes especially to vocational success in farming in New Hampshire, by providing a solid foundation in skills, information, attitudes and ideals.

The powers developed in successful relations with nature and persons may be applied in the home and thereby contribute to worthy home membership and the wholesome use of leisure time.

The performance of many varied farm jobs in the open air tends to promote good health. Both operative and managerial jobs present many opportunities for the further command of the fundamental process of reading and arithmetic.

In the performance of many operative jobs the importance of co-operation with nature is earned. In executing managerial jobs the need for cooperation with persons is given added meaning. Both kinds of cooperation contribute to the important traits that characterize the good citizen.

In building a program in agriculture it should be kept in mind at all times that it is primarily the duty of the teacher to teach "boys" rather than "agriculture". This means that the work in agriculture is built to meet as nearly as possible the needs and interests of the individual pupils.

The pupils interests and needs is centered largely around the particular agriculture practiced in the school's patronage area and inasmuch as the agriculture in various communities in New Hampshire varies, the material selected for a program in vocational agriculture will vary in different schools.

The agricultural teacher concerns himself with promoting the growth of his pupils in the skills, knowledges, attitudes and interests of value to successful farmers rather than merely with disseminating agricultural information. His teaching should be sound from an economic standpoint and include only those things which are vital for vocational success.

The farm job is used as the unit of instruction because it gives a practical basis for putting together in teaching what goes together in farming. It is a natural unit of work which permits the teaching of fundamentals with a definite practical production problem in the enterprise being considered.

A four year program is developed, distributing the jobs decided upon over a four year period, arranged to meet seasonal demands and to take advantage of the opportunities as they rise. Jobs are thereby taken up in season and as the need arises creating much more appeal and practical incentive to do the job than could be accomplished by means of an artificially created job.

For each of the jobs selected and distributed over the four year period of work in agriculture, each pupil should possess the following:

1. Adequate mechanical skills for good performance.
2. Mastery of concepts, principles, and laws.
3. Adequate mental skills in the solution of related problems.
4. Mastery of fixed mathematical association in fundamental processes.
5. A wholesome attitude toward farm life, an interest in rural problems, and ideals of industry and skilled performance.

AGRICULTURE

In vocational agriculture a four year plan of work is followed; that is, a different course for each of the four years adapted to the needs of the community. The course is divided into two groups. The Freshmen and Sophomore boys are in Agriculture I and II, and the Junior and Senior boys in Agriculture III and IV. Following this procedure the boys remain two years in each division and every third year we repeat, therefore this year's program follows closely that carried on in 1939 with the exception of shopwork.

We were unable to do any shopwork from January through June because the N. Y. A. boys were using all of our tools in the construction of a new farm shop, as a result, we have a very fine, greatly needed, new farm shop into which we moved during the last week of school.

CONSUMER SCIENCE

This is a new course put into the curriculum this year and is a practical science for:

1. Students who do not plan to go to college.
2. Girl students interested in home making.
3. Students less able in mathematics.
4. Students who plan to go to college for non-scientific work.
5. Academic students who desire a general informational science course.

6. Students who plan to take up nursing.
7. Students who plan to study art.
8. Commercial students who take no other science in high school.

For too many years chemistry and physics, as a secondary school subject, have been open only to students planning to go to college. A tradition has developed that the subject is too difficult unless one has real ability in mathematics. Many have been frightened away from the subject. This has been shown most strikingly in the decreased registration in physics in high school.

It is not to be concluded either that this non-collegiate group is dull, less able, and less educable. For years we have been sending young people out into a complex scientific world for which we have given them no training. Even to the future man in the street, chemistry and physics are of great importance. He may not want to solve any chemical equation, nor write a doctoral dissertation. He does, however, want to get the best value for his money in the goods he purchases, as food, medicine, necessities and luxuries.

Consumer Science taught from the laboratory point of view, with many convincing demonstrations and satisfying individual experiments which are simple enough to do without a lot of verbiage, causes students to become absorbed in it. No one can expect students of limited experience to be able to apply abstract chemical principals and physical laws to daily life. We can show, though, that such civic problems as the water supply, sewage disposal, food supply, textiles, drugs, poisons, cosmetics, building materials, metals and alloys, transportation and so on, are fundamentally chemical and physical problems. We can show the application of simple principles to daily life. When in addition, students are not hampered by a welsh of complex formulas, vocabularly and mathematics, it is possible to develop a dynamic interpretation of the complex world in which we live.

JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL SUBJECTS

General English

With the help of our new texts—"English, Your Obedient Servant" by Hatfield, McIntosh, Miller, Smith, Goodrich, we are able to stress, not only the technical English work, but also those things which will be of practical use to people finishing school, and those continuing school.

Stress has been laid upon learning more information about organizations that are important factors in the modern every day life. In carrying out these ideas, many interesting projects and activities resulted.

English 7 and 8

"Reading is fun!" has been the motto which we have adopted in our Junior High English classes. All of our activities have been centered around our reading which we did for our enjoyment. As a result of this we learned to like poetry and have become familiar with many authors, whose many and varied experiences we have enjoyed.

Social Science 7

During the year, aided by the Rugg series of Social Science books, the seventh graders have been able to learn of the basic principles which enable countries of the world to become leaders of political, social, and industrial activities.

The work was divided into two parts—first “An Introduction to World Civilizations”; second, “Changing Civilizations in the Modern World”. In the first we dealt with the United States, its resources and problems, while in the latter we studied of conditions which governed the actions of European countries through 1926.

B and C Subjects 7 and 8

In grades seven and eight, the pupils have developed a critical attitude toward their work in the fundamentals—Spelling, Arithmetic, and Penmanship. With each individual critical of his own work, we were then able to work on those points in which each person was weak. A great number of the major difficulties were overcome and the pupils were left with a desire to continue to improve.

Respectfully submitted,

OLIVE MARSHALL.

SUMMARY OF YEAR'S WORK—GRADE 8

General

A cross section of the type of work being done in Grade 8 would include the following activities: discussion of problems, special reports, experiments, debates, making of key diagrams, pupil criticism of work, and game activity with subject matter.

A trip to Concord, N. H., to witness the functioning of our State Legislature proved very valuable. On the same trip many had the opportunity to visit the Historical Society Building.

Participation is the keynote to pupil success. Keeping this fact in mind many opportunities to engage in worthwhile activities have been provided. Class meetings, sports for all, committee work and a climaxing Field Day are examples of attempts to bring about the above factor.

For most pupils the Junior High may be properly considered a spring board for High School work. Many attitudes which are formed in Grade 7 and 8 are carried by the pupils into their high school work. Much attention then, both in the school and in the home can be profitably spent on making sure that these attitudes and habits are the correct ones.

In naming some of these desirable attitudes it would be necessary to include an appreciation of the other fellow's point of view, cooperation, fair mindedness, an appreciation of good health habits, courtesy and school spirit of a type that exists off the school premises as well as on it.

Social Science 8

The outstanding feature of work done in this subject was the current events period in which participation was 100%. The pupils kept themselves abreast of the world of news by informal discussion, interpretation of cartoons, and a constantly refreshed bulletin board.

The text books utilized for subject matter were Ruggs' "A History of American Government and a History of American Civilization."

Science 8

The topics covered this year in Science were as follows: The Relation of the Earth to Other Heavenly Bodies, the Usefulness of Gravity, Changes in the Earth's Surface, Why Some Things Rise and Others Sink in Fluids, the Control of Heat, and Changes in the Weather. Key experiments were performed to facilitate the mastery of the mentioned topics.

The text book used was "Science Problems" by Beauchamp-Mayfield-West.

The Popular Science Monthly magazine provided an excellent source for current event material and special reports.

Algebra 8

One semester of work was spent in the mastery of the fundamental processes of arithmetic. Many every day problems were solved.

At the beginning of the second semester the class proceeded individually with the subject matter. Several pupils met the requirements of a year's course in Algebra.

Science 7

Topics completed in Science 7 were as follows: How do Scientists Make Discoveries? What Kind of World Do You Live In? What is a Material? How Do Heating and Cooling Change Materials? How Can One Kind of Substance Change Into Another? How Do We Use and Control Fire? How Do Magnets Work? How Are Plants and Animals Alike?

Thirty experiments were performed.

As in Grade 8, Popular Science Magazine was used extensively for Current Events and Special Reports.

Geometry 7

A great deal of time was spent on the construction of geometric figures at the blackboard so that criticism could be both given and received.

The pupils were introduced to the terminology of geometry and made familiar with geometric drawings and measuring instruments.

A constant check on mastery of the fundamental processes was kept. Many problems of an every day nature were solved.

Health 8

An attempt to strengthen good health habits and form an appreciation of the value of good health were the leading aims of this subject.

Much attention was placed on the subject of community health.

The text used was Health and the Human Body by Newmayer and Broome.

Physical Education

The modern youth of draft age has shown a marked superiority in physical well being over his predecessor of World War No. 1. Educators believe this has been in part due to the marked increase of Physical Education in our secondary schools—a real tribute to its value!

A well-rounded person today must meet the problems of life both mentally and physically.

In our school we have been striving to provide every opportunity for the carrying out and developing of physical education but find ourselves handicapped in many ways.

The boys and girls do not have the proper facilities or playing space necessary for a wholesome program of physical education. In some instances I believe this condition alone has quenched the desire of many pupils to participate in sports.

Many times visiting teams have not been provided with adequate dressing rooms nor have had opportunity to use showers which from a health standpoint is most desirable. A common remark is that our boys and girls are toughened to these conditions but they can't be. It doesn't make sense.

Because of limited playing space and also limited time coming about through non-control of this space, practice schedules are never a definite quantity and this makes for untold hardships. Winter basketball can be provided for only high school pupils. The Junior high pupils must forego this privilege and not receive beneficial instructions in needed fundamentals.

By physical education I mean not only baseball and basketball (they contribute a fraction of the word) but opportunity for participation in games such as badminton, volley ball, handball, and other sports and games of low organization. Folk dancing is being introduced in many schools.

In the formulative Junior high period the play instinct is very strong. Can you think of a better place to guide this than on the playing field or floor? And if these factors do not exist—what then?

If a program of adequate physical education, carried on in a desirable place, can make a boy or girl alert, cooperative, fine of carriage, graceful of movement and embodied with a spirit of fair play and good sportsmanship, any improvements would be more than justified. I sincerely believe that through physical education our schools of today are turning out less misfits and have cut down on undesirable awkwardness tremendously.

To summarize we need to face fully the possibilities in a sound program of physical education carried on in adequate and healthy surroundings.

This article is not written in a spirit of criticism but to place in view a desirable goal so that whenever possible, steps may be taken in that direction.

To those people who have had dealings with the school on the question of playing space, we have had excellent co-operation.

Let's not fail our boys and girls!

Respectfully submitted,

KENNETH L. CREIGHTON.
