SOUND REASONING.

No person can buy Clothing, or any kind of goods to be found in our various departments, intelligently in this city, without first examining our extensive stock, for the following reasons:

1. We make all our own Clothing.
2. Our stock is much the largest in the State, and among the largest in New England.
3. We mark the price plainly on every garment, and sell at ONE PRICE.
4. NO CREDIT. Cash down saves costs of collecting, expensive book-keeping and bad debts. Cash from everybody is the only certain way to warrant the lowest price.
5. We are constantly striving to sell cheap, and at the same time maintain the quality. Poor goods are not cheap at any price.
6. We aim to be in advance in style of cut and fabric.
7. All goods that do not come up to customers' expectations are exchanged, or the full amount of the purchase money is refunded without debate.

The above principles of business make the best possible guaranty that our customers are fairly dealt with, and we stake our reputation on every one of the above points.

It is always a pleasure to exhibit our goods, and we shall regard an early visit from you as a personal favor, whether you wish to purchase or not.

SCHOOL REPORT.

In presenting the school report for the current year, I wish to present the standing of the schools as I find them at the few visits which are required by law. The laws of the state require the visiting of each school at the commencement and at the close of the school. I am aware of the difficulties to be encountered, in attempting to give clearly and concisely a summary of the advantages and impediments of the different schools. To give in detail the work and progress of each class of each individual school for each term, or for the year, would be both interesting and instructive; but would take up more space than is expected for this department of the town report.

Acting upon this idea, I herewith transmit this report to the citizens of Dunbarton. In it will be found statements and explanations which the statutes of the state contemplate and require to be annually made by the Superintendent of Schools to the town. Men die; influences live, and yet the animus and bulk of impetus of influences, as they speed on through and over the ages, are those given them by men, and are ameliorating and uplifting, or depressing and destructive, as are the condition and character of these men. The public schools have much to do with the building up of men, and ought to largely supplement the better influences of all our homes, and do to a wider extent, perhaps, than we recognize. But as we look upon our own, or other growing communities, especially cities, and see the families of large membership, but of small means and little thrift, who live not necessarily, but as a fact, near the verge of want, and under conditions which suggest to the thoughtful the possibility of the children of these homes ever having any proper idea of order, cleanliness, obedience and the catalogue of virtues, which, developed, are the hiding-place of security and progress for all our legitimate community and individual interests; and consider the public schools, well organized and administered, is one of the agents especially adapted to raise up to higher life, larger possibilities and more trustworthiness in the exercises of prerogatives, the fast maturing generation of men and women who are to succeed us—it ought not to be regarded as conventional to ask that you will provide for and support the educational interests of the town of which we all are guardians. And to provide for our educational interests, I would make the following suggestions and recommend the town to act upon the same as soon as it can legally:

First. To redistrict the town, to make less number of districts.

Second. To have our schools under the supervision of a board of education.

While making the suggestions, I recognize that the value of education, not rules and formulas learned, or even knowledge acquired, but developed and well habited capacity and character, cannot be measured by silver and gold, and any proposition for the advancement of education in school system of our town will prove a most profitable venture. But silver and gold are themselves great factors in the world, and are not to be given in exchange for hasty and shadowy experiments in school organizations or work, even if they are the "pets" of good intentioned men; therefore, hesitate not to count the cost as well as the gain. If the balance shows that with additional expenditures will aid the getting of larger results, even with the money now used in our schools, then larger appropriations should be made.

I herewith present a few statistics which will be both interesting and profitable: Whole length of Summer schools in weeks, 95; whole length of Fall and Winter schools in weeks, 120.5; whole amount of schooling during year, 215.5; average length of schools, 19.54 6-11; number of schools whose average attendance is not over twelve scholars, 9; number of schools less than six, 1; estimated value of school property, $4165; number of different scholars registered, 123; number of scholars under six years of age, 12; number of scholars over sixteen, 19; number of scholars between six and sixteen, 92; number of boys, 70; number of girls, 53; amount of money raised to defray school expenses, $1,130.55; amount of literary fund used for schools, $62.16; superintendent's services $50; entire amount of school revenue, $1,242.71; average expense of each enrolled scholar, per year, 10.10—; average expense of each enrolled scholar, per week, .51; average expense of each enrolled scholar in District No. 1, per week, .80; No. 2, per week, .30; A comparison of the preceding "Summary of Statistics", will show to you that the suggestions, for "redistricting the town," is based on "facts" and not on any "pet" of my own.

But I turn with pleasure from suggestions and statistics to speak of the schools themselves, their management, condition and progress. A school report cannot be considered complete, which does not give, besides such facts and figures, some insight into their practical working, the principles by which they are controlled, and the results obtained by them. The schools have been conducted, during the year, on essentially the same principles in its general management as for several years past. No radical measures in the methods of teaching and government have been adopted. The machinery has been kept quietly, yet efficiently in motion, its operations and results being carefully watched by your committee. And results, I think, all things considered, are as satisfactory as anyone could reasonably expect. Still I think there might be a "new departure" in our teachers' methods of teaching by dispensing, in part, if not entirely, with text books, and this course pursued through the year, in most cases, better results would be obtained than by slavishly following the text book. To do this successfully, requires more effort on the part of the teacher, and more careful preparation for each exercise, and is a better test of skill in teaching than any other test that can be given. I would not recommend to dispense entirely with any and all text books, but if our teachers above the primary classes were competent (and our teachers the present year are competent or could soon prepare themselves to do so) to be the text books to their classes, using the printed book less frequently, thereby giving new life and interest to pupil, which, we must bear in mind, is the first thing to be considered to make our schools a success, and our teachers may be greatly aided, by the parents and guardians of the scholars, in different ways, by kind and encouraging words, by helping them to solve difficult questions, by visiting the schools, by encouraging a love for the teacher and the rules and regulations of the school; and again it would be for the best to secure the same teacher, not only for two or three terms, but for several successive terms; for I consider it unfortunate for our schools that their teachers are so frequently changed. Districts No. 2, 4, 7 and 11 the teachers were not changed during the year. Good improvement was made in all the studies, especially in reading and arithmetic, which I shall judge from the examinations, showed a united effort on the part of teacher and scholar.

No. 9 had but one term—a Fall term of 12 weeks. I can speak of the progress in this school in the highest terms.

No. 10 had two terms. The Summer term was taught by a male teacher, who failed to come up to the requirements of a teacher, both in imparting instruction and in order; but the teacher of the Winter term retrieved what was lost during the Summer term—the scholars orderly and making good progress in all their studies, especially Frank P. Marsh, 6 1-2 years of age, who made remarkable advancement in reading and spelling.

In No. 1, 3, 5, 6 and 8 the work was well done, the scholars were attentive, answering promptly the questions asked, with much credit to themselves and their teachers.
