REPORT OF SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

DISTRICT No. 1.

The primary department, summer term, was taught by Miss Mardie L. Story, whose ability as a teacher is well known. She had a very large school, too large in fact for any one teacher, but she worked hard, with great patience, and deserves the highest praise.

The upper department was taught by Alice L. Smith, who came well recommended, passed a fair examination and met with fair success, but did not succeed in getting the confidence of the scholars, to a great degree, for one who was said to have so much experience.

The winter term in the primary department was taught by Miss Mardie L. Story with her usual good success. The upper department was taught by Mr. James Woodbury, who came to us with very high recommendations, and we are glad to say has more than sustained them by his efficient manner of arousing the enthusiasm of the scholars, inculcating in their minds the advantages of education for itself alone, making school-life pleasant and not a drudgery. Through his influence the scholars have had lyceum sessions held once a week, and have enjoyed themselves in a pleasant and profitable manner.

We are glad to report the building of a large and commodious school house for this district, built by master mechanics, and pushed by an efficient building committee, who deserve a great deal of credit for the judicious manner in which they disposed of their trust, and now we have only to hope that the scholars of the district will take pride enough in the good repair of the building to be careful not to mar it in any way.

DISTRICT No. 2—MOUNTAIN.

No summer school.

The winter term was taught by James P. Tuttle, who taught the same school last winter. He succeeded, if anything, more than the report of last year ascribed him.

I am glad to report that the suggestions of Mr. Gerould concerning the doors of the school house have been fully attended to; also a new floor laid, so that it is now very comfortable. All praise to that district.

DISTRICT No. 3—SHIRLEY HILL.

The summer term was taught by Miss Ella M. Lufkin, a teacher who tried hard and faithfully to teach the scholars and imbue them with the idea of punctuality. Not a case of tardiness during the whole term; thirteen of the scholars were neither absent nor tardy.

The winter term was taught by Miss May M. Lufkin, who has had experience in teaching before. There was only one case of tardiness, and fourteen out of fifteen were neither tardy nor absent during the whole term. (A good record.)

DISTRICT No. 10—PATTEE HILL.

The summer term was taught by Miss Hattie R. Butterfield, who was an experienced teacher, faithful and earnest in her endeavors to restore the school to its former place in the report of the superintending committee, and she most signally succeeded. The scholars seemed, as it were, anxious to redeem their standard among the schools, and the examination certainly showed a quiet, studious and very flattering aspect. Miss Butterfield deserves credit for her tact and skill in bringing the school to so high a state of order.

The winter term was taught by Miss L. F. Benson, who came well recommended and passed a good examination. She took the school as it were, where Miss Butterfield left off, and has now as good a school as there is in town, both in order and mental stamina. She at once gained the respect and confidence of both scholars and parents, without which, all is naught.

DISTRICT No. 11—PARKER'S.

Miss Edna Carr taught the summer term, and by her quiet, lady-like manners, succeeded beyond expectation.

The fall term was taught by the same teacher, being paid by money from the adjoining district, in New Boston.

The winter term was taught by Mr. Charles Harriman, who had an excellent school. For energy and pluck he was not found wanting. The school was a very pleasant and profitable one, with the exception of some little difficulty with regard to closing and locking the school house door New Year's day. This is a very foolish custom and is fast dying out.

DISTRICT No. 12—PAIGE HILL.

Miss Susie Kimball, teacher, summer and winter. This school is a very small one, numbering only about five. Miss Kimball, we think, succeeded well, having had experience before as a teacher. Patience and perseverance seemed to be her guide.

H. E. NEWELL, }
E. BRADFORD, } Committee.

DISTRICT No 4. —KENNEDY HILL.

This district engaged Miss Josie Pattee for the winter term of 1874. Her success was such that they thought best to place her in the school in the summer and winter terms of this year, and also selected her to teach their private schools. Thus she has had the care of this school for a year. The scholars have improved greatly under her care, and we congratulate the parents in this district for securing the services of this faithful, energetic teacher, for so long a time.

DISTRICT No. 5—MAST ROAD.

Miss Martha A. Putman, of Wilton, taught the summer and fall terms. She came to the school with a rich experience in teaching; in fact they could not have obtained her services in so small a school if her health had permitted her to do the work of a larger one. Quickly she moulded the school into rare model of systematic order and work, leading her pupils over a vast amount of ground in a thorough, efficient way.

The winter term was not as successful. It was under the care of Miss Josie Parker, of Brownington, Vt. She was an experienced teacher, and her literary attainments and quiet, lady-like way, caused us to anticipate a good school. If the parents and scholars had all tried as hard to make the school a success as the teacher did, it would have been far better than it was. All of the scholars who did attend the school, the entire term, learned well.

DISTRICT No. 6—CENTRE DISTRICT.

Miss Ella M. Jones, of New Boston, taught the summer and fall terms. This was her first school-teaching experience, and it gives us pleasure to say that she did well. This school is very small, and any teacher would find it hard to interest the scholars.

It is hoped that the new business enterprise about to be started in the district will draw in new families, and thus increase the number of pupils. As it now is the school room presents an empty, hungry appearance to every passer-by.

DISTRICT No. 7—EAST.

Miss Mary F. Whitney taught the summer school. It was a very profitable term. Her discipline in the school-room was excellent, and good progress was made in the studies.

Miss Helen A. Johnson, of Dunbarton, taught another fine school in the fall and winter. For some time this school has been favored with good teachers, and its present condition is one of great prosperity. Miss Johnson reports two of the scholars, Alice J. Wells and Flora Poor, as not having an imperfect lesson during the last term. We wish all teachers could report the same of every pupil in town.

DISTRICT No. 8—TIBBITTS' HILL.

The summer term was taught by Miss Hattie A. Simonds, of Dunbarton. This was her third term in this district. The school snowed her usual care and skill. Few schools in town could have passed as good an examination as this did at its close; thanks to teacher and scholars.

The winter term was taught by Miss Abbie C. Page, of Dunbarton. From the first, the scholars did not like Miss Page, her way was very different from their former teachers. We think she tried hard to make the school successful, and did do as much as could be expected under the circumstances.

This district have repaired their school house this year, improving the looks outside, and now they need to furnish the inside, then they will have a good house.

DISTRICT No. 9—CENTRE NORTH.

The summer term was taught by Miss Ella J. Merrill. Miss Merrill had taught a number of terms of school before this, and had been quite successful. As she commenced the most difficult of all school teaching feats, viz: teaching in her own district, it was hoped that she might have her labors crowned again with success, but your committee saw that force and enthusiasm were wanting in the school and advised the teacher to close at the end of eight weeks.

A private school was taught in the fall by Mr. George Heath, which was well spoken of.

Clinton E. Bradford, of Washington, taught the winter term. The school was large and but little time could be devoted to each class, but the school passed an excellent examination at its close. The teacher's motto was, good order and good recitations. A large scholar was reprimanded for misbehavior as soon as a small one. This troubled some who went to school for a good time.
