Report of the Trustees of the Town Library.

The new Catalogue, of which a description was given in the last Annual Report is now on sale at the Library, and proves a convenient and satisfactory hand book to all who have used it. The contents of the Library are now open to any inquirer, who wishes to know what books are on our shelves and by what authors they were written.

By the aid of the delivery Cards, which are furnished gratuitously to any applicant, the privileges of the Library can be enjoyed by invalids and persons living at a distance, if they send to the Librarian the figures which are set against the titles of the books they have selected, as these figures stand in the Catalogue.

While the handling of a Catalogue enlarges one's knowledge of books and their authors. it also awakens a curiosity to learn the import of the titles, and the wit and wisdom, which they represent. About one third of the families in town have purchased Catalogues, and the helpful influence is manifest in a larger and more intelligent use of the Library. During the past twelve months, two thousand, two hundred and sixty-five volumes have been drawn from the Library, an average of forty-four volumes per week, which is an advance of one hundred and sixty-five over the largest circulation of any year in our history.

It is so evidently for the advantage of our readers to have at hand a Catalogue of the Library, that we urge every family to procure a copy at once. No other expenditure of this amount will yield them so much that promises both pleasure and improvement. Says Lady Mary Wortley Montague, "No entertainment is so cheap as reading, nor any pleasure so lasting." To which we add, the pertinent observations of Dr. John Moore, 1730—1802. "The entertainment which books afford, can be enjoyed in the worst weather, can be varied as we please, obtained in solitude, and instead of blunting sharpens the understanding; but the most valuable effect of a taste for reading is, that it often preserves us from bad company. For those are not apt to go or remain with disagreeable people abroad, who are always certain of a pleasant party at home."

The recent vote of the Trustees by which families are allowed to draw two volumes at a time from the Library has not been attended by any inconvenience and the privilege will be continued. As the result of actual experiment and inquiry, it has seemed best that the Library be open for the delivery and reception of books on every Saturday from October 1st to the 1st of March from one to four of the clock P. M., and from March 1st to October, seven months, from two to five of the clock P. M., and this order was accordingly adopted. During the year sixty volumes, mostly selections from current literature, have been added to the library by purchase and some twenty-five including two pamphlets by the gift of friends as appears by the following list of donations.

Two vacancies will exist in the board of Trustees, Mr. Rotch and Miss Stearns having completed their term of office, which should be filled at the annual town meeting. In concluding a report which is so encouraging, we regret the necessity of remonstrating against the abuse of books drawn from the Library. In some cases the covers and title pages have been shamefully disfigured by pencil marks, and in others the leaves are soiled by readers having unwashed hands. To mention these things ought to secure their correction.
