Report of Board of Education

To the Citizens of Littleton:

The school board herewith submits its annual report. The report includes treasurer's report for the fiscal year July 1, 1932 to June 30, 1933 with an itemized statement of expenditures for that year; the budget for the present school year and for next year; statement of estimated receipts for these two years; and written reports by the superintendent of schools and by the headmaster of the high school.

We recommend that the school district raise the sum of $64,000.00 for the support of schools for the school year beginning July 1, 1934. We believe this amount is necessary in order that our schools may be maintained at their present level of achievement. It is the same amount that was raised last year.

Respectfully submitted,

George A. Tewksbury
Harold J. Cooney
Raymond L. Giles
Barbara Beattie
Edith L. Burnham.

Superintendent's Report

To the School Board:

I am pleased to submit the following report relative to the schools in Littleton.

Attendance:

The total enrollment in the public schools this year is about the same as during the past few years—684 to date this year, 719 last year, and 697 the year before. Due to considerable moving in and out of town the average membership is somewhat less than the total enrollment. The average membership is the basis used in New Hampshire for pupil costs and other comparable data. In last year's report graphs showed the total average membership fairly stable during recent years but showed a decided increase in high school membership. Whereas the total average membership last year was only 4% greater than during the school year ending in 1930, the high school membership was 35% greater. This year the average membership in the high school will be slightly less than last but more than 30% greater than four years ago. It will probably stay on this high level with possible slight increases during the next few years. The gradual return to normal business conditions will provide little opportunity for employment to pupils of high school age.

The need for more varied and improved courses of study in high schools of the future will be emphasized as never before. The burden of the high school is greater than it once was and it can not be neglected in any community. This challenge should be met by teachers and parents and the entire community in their consideration of courses of study, of instructional materials and equipment, and of the extra-curricular activities of the school. The expenditures for the high school cannot be expected to decrease in view of the increased demands upon the school and in view of the increased membership.

Health Work:

The figures below show the results of the medical inspection of last year and of this year, and the number of defects treated and corrected last year.

Defects	Record of Medical Inspection and of Remedial Work for 1932-1933			Medical Inspection October 1933

Dr. Page and Miss Bryant have been alert to every opportunity for improvement of the health of school pupils. For several years the hospital and physicians in town have cooperated in making possible clinics for the benefit of the pupils.

Milk has been furnished to many pupils in the elementary grades. This has been financed during the past year by Federal funds. This project was originally sponsored by the Association of American University Women, and financed by the American Legion. All under-nourished children unable to pay for the milk have received it free of charge.

Courses of Study and Instruction:

Courses of instruction and methods of teaching have undergone radical changes in the past half century. These changes have been due to progressive leadership in the profession. In Littleton, our courses of study are those generally taught in the elementary and secondary schools of New Hampshire. Schools in New Hampshire are as progressive as most schools in the country—far more so than in some states.

The courses in the elementary grades and in the junior high grades follow quite closely the State Program of Studies. The courses of instruction in the senior high school are designed to give preparation for college or normal school, to give four years of instruction in Home Economics, to give four years of instruction in Commerce, or to give three years of instruction in Mechanic Arts. The subjects and the number of pupils in each, follow. English 223, Social Science 221, Geography 38, Latin 56, French 100. Mathematics 65, Science 44, Commerce 59, Home Economics 63, Mechanic Arts 50. These figures show that no department is in operation for less than 20% of the pupils in the senior high school.

In addition to the above the teachers in the high school building have the following number of pupils enrolled in junior high school subjects. English 59, History 59, Mathematics 59, Elementary Science 59, Geography 26, Junior Business Training 30, Woodworking 25, Cooking and Sewing 34. The teachers of Practical Arts subjects also have 30 from the Apthorp School and 55 from St. Rose of Lima School in Woodworking and Home Economics.

The teachers in Littleton are well trained and are practicing the most approved methods of instruction. All of the teachers are normal school or college graduates, many of them have additional summer school courses to their credit, and several of the high school teachers have additional college degrees. Eight of them attended sessions of school last summer, and seven the previous year. Our teachers' schedule demands that all high school teachers who have not secured their master's degree, and all elementary teachers shall attend summer school once in three years to a maximum of three summers. The teachers have all cooperated earnestly in making teachers' meetings helpful. Many of them have contributed their plans of work for study by the group. They are sincere in their efforts to give your pupils the best possible instruction.

In my report last year I showed the cost of instruction per pupil to be less in Littleton than in New Hampshire as a whole, and much less than in the New England States to the south, and less than in continental United States. Yet, the teachers in Littleton graciously accepted a slight reduction in their salaries and have allowed their work and their interest in the school to suffer in no wise. To build constructively, a fairly stable staff must be maintained. You now have a strong teaching staff, many of them doing work of superior quality. To further reduce salaries or even to continue reductions already made in view of the probable increase of living costs will endanger the loss of many of the most highly trained of your teachers. Such a loss would tend to decrease the efficiency of the schools. The efficient teacher is the most important item in a school system.

Last year the loss of teachers to school systems was comparatively small in all cities and towns. With improved economic conditions the number of changes will be greater in future years. Your schools required only two new teachers. Miss Lillian Groux, a graduate of the commercial course at Plymouth Normal School, with three years of experience in the commercial department at Lebanon High School, was secured to succeed Miss Gale. Miss Groux studied last summer at Boston University. Miss Margaret Bedell was selected to succeed Miss Darling. Miss Bedell was one of the highest rated students in the four year training course at Plymouth Normal School last year. Both of these young ladies are doing excellent work.

Adult Education:

The Federal Emergency Relief Administration has provided funds for the employment of teachers. Two million dollars a month are set aside for this service and the plan is giving employment to 40,000 unemployed teachers. New Hampshire's allotment at present is $7,000.00 a month. The courses actually in operation in this state (with the exception of one or two nursery schools) are for adult education.

In the month of January some courses in Adult Education were started. The instruction for the classes in Americanization—in reading and writing English primarily is being paid for by the Federal government. The enrollment in these classes is 24. These classes can probably be continued through the school year. In addition, the classes in Typewriting and Stenography have a total enrollment of 63. Mr. Mattoon and Miss Groux have given their time for these classes. These classes will continue for a few weeks only.

The question of continuing the classes in adult education after this school year, at local expense if the Federal aid stops, is worthy of your careful consideration. It is quite reasonable to believe that Federal aid will be continued but it is not certain. Father Hennon has long been interested in classes to instruct adults in reading and writing English. The informal survey made this year shows that the need for this type of instruction exists among a group of intelligent, interested persons. A good beginning has been made. The interested pupils will have made progress by the end of the school year to the point where they will profit much from continued study. If all expense is borne by the district the work is worthy of the expenditure. This phase of the work—instruction in reading and writing English—should have first consideration. Other phases of adult education—courses in Home Economics, in Commerce, in History and Government, et als., should have your consideration also. Volunteer instruction may be secured in some of these departments. If instruction in many subjects should be offered, some expense for teachers would probably result.

Concord has offered more evening school classes for adults this year than any other city or town in New Hampshire. Over 2,000 persons have been enrolled in those classes. Much of the instruction was contributed by teachers and other interested citizens.

The working hours per week for nearly all classes of people will be short under the New Deal. Regardless of the rapidity of the return to prosperity, this condition will continue. What will adults do with their leisure time? If evening school courses will induce study to make them better citizens, to become more efficient artisans, to enjoy the better things of life more completely, the expenditure will be wise. Some appropriation, or some authorization to your school board to expend money if necessary for adult education would be a progressive step.

Improvement in School Buildings:

The exterior of the Kilburn and Apthorp buildings was painted last summer. Two rooms in the Kilburn building were painted. The playground equipment at both buildings was painted and some improvements were made in the grounds. A new fence around part of the grounds at Apthorp was built. Minor improvements were made in the high school building. The total expenditure for repairs and improvements for the school year will be about $1,700.00. The expenditure for this item last year was $2,247.00, and for the previous year $1,941.00. The average for the three year period is nearly $2,000.00. This is one per cent of a conservative valuation of your school property. One per cent is the amount that educational experience estimates a reasonable sum for maintenance. My prediction last year that a smaller amount would be sufficient for this item in the budget during the next few years is challenged by the advance in prices of labor and materials. The work done during the past two years has been done with prices at a low level and under very careful supervision by your committee on repairs.

Extensive improvements are needed in the high school building. This building was erected in 1926 and has had very little repair work done on it. An application for labor to paint the whole interior of this building has been presented to the Civil Works Administration of the federal government. If approval of this application is granted, considerable savings will be effected for the school district. If not, a wise policy will probably be to paint a part of the interior next summer, and a part the next year, and the next. The exterior woodwork of this building should also be painted during the next summer, and considerable work needs to be done in cementing and caulking the stone work around the windows. The elementary school buildings will need only minor repairs during the next two or three years.

Unless emergency repairs are required, or serious danger of depreciation exists, the expenditure each year should be limited to less than $2,000.00. A long term policy of stabilizing the expenditure to one per cent or less of the investment should be adopted. The arrangement for spreading the insurance costs equally over a period of five years has been effected. Good business sense demands the same policy, so far as practicable, over all items in the budget in any unit of government dependent for its money upon tax assessment.

School Finances:

The effort has been made to reduce costs in all items of the budget where possible without reducing the efficiency of the school system. The special budget committee of last year and the selectmen agreed with the school board that the general policy relative to insurance and reasonable repairs for maintenance of the buildings was wise. They also agreed that the general plan of a salary schedule for teachers with annual increases to a limited maximum, in order to maintain efficiency and promote professional study, was a wise one. An agreement was reached relative to the request for the appropriation by the district. At the district meeting the request was granted. The $64,000.00 raised will be sufficient to complete the year's work without a deficit.

For the next school year the budget is about the same as the revised budget for this year. Some of the items in the budget for this year have been raised to meet the costs—notably the items for transportation and fuel. The budget for next year totals $65,338.00. The amount available from sources other than taxation total about $1,430.00. An appropriation of $64,000.00, the same amount that was raised last year, will probably be enough to operate the schools without a deficit at the close of the year. This budget is made with the knowledge that supplies, books and equipment will be higher than during the past two years and that teachers' salaries will be on a slightly higher level. Any reduction of the appropriation will probably result in decreased efficiency in the schools or in a deficit at the end of the year.

The budget is not made with an allowance for instruction for adult education. I have emphasized the importance of that in another section but believe that the question should be decided by the voters and a special appropriation should be made for it if the instruction is considered wise.

I appreciate the sincere efforts of school board and citizens for good schools. Your interest and your support have been a great help in my work for improved efficiency in the school system.

Respectfully submitted,

DANA S. JORDAN.

The Headmaster's Report

Dear Superintendent Jordan:

It is a pleasure to submit to you my third annual report. In it, some of the present practices in our school life will be discussed and interpreted.

A short time ago, a group of our pupils had read an article on "marks" in a current weekly magazine and were expressing themselves on such points as the value of marks, the reason for marks, unfair marking, percentages and letters. Finally, the keynote, in the opinion of that group, was touched by one member in the statement, "pupils are reaching the point of view they should go to school for what they can obtain rather than for any marks." This idea emphasizes actual learning, not grades for supposed learning. Our marking system has been revised to conform to this changed attitude. On the report cards issued four times a year, the three marks are (1) E, (2) S or P, and (3) U.

E indicates a pupil is not only accomplishing as much as he can but is reaching a high level of attainment, a level indicative of his ability to compete with others in college.

S shows a pupil is doing his work satisfactorily and to the best of his ability.

P passes but the rating might have been "S" if the pupil had worked to the full level of his capacity. A lazy boy or girl may receive only a passing mark for high ratings if, by industry, he or she is capable of attaining a 95 grade.

U is placed on work below standard, or for incomplete assignments.

Some day, the ratings are likely to be entered on cards as "learned" or "not learned," "satisfactory" or "unsatisfactory," "mastered" or "not mastered" if "pupils reach the point of view they should go to school for what they can obtain rather than for marks."

In our school, pupils attend for many reasons. Some wish to matriculate at college or normal school; others plan to enter hospital, art, hairdressing, or other specialized training schools; a number desire to obtain a high school diploma as an entering wedge into a position in industry; a few stay in school rather than be idle at home. By counsel, they select from the four curricula (College Preparatory, Commercial, Home Economics, or Mechanic Arts) the one which seems to lead to the goal they have set or had set for them. The type of training in each of these four curricula is fundamentally different in the distinctive elements. The diverse interests of parents and pupils can only be met by differentiated work. It is impossible to have all pupils taught in a college preparatory course with languages, mathematics and science as basic subjects, for many, through lack of interest, would drop out of school to lead a life of idleness and degradation. So, in rating a school, it is essential to compare groups of similar interests and curricular background. By being conservative in our estimates of pupil ability, guided by scientific measures in various school subjects, by keeping careful records of the conferences, tests, and records, by observing the rapid changes in college entrance requirements, and by guiding our pupils into those fields in which they may have more chance of success, our school receives a good rating from the State Board of Education, our statements about prospective entrants are appreciated by post-secondary institutions, our standards under teachers of proven ability are commendable, and the results of our efforts are observable by the average citizen.

There must be two common viewpoints in the subject offerings in our school. The first is that which is cultural in character, which does not necessarily lead to direct application in a position, but which contributes a great deal to the happiness and leisure hours of a person. The other is the vocational, "bread and butter" application of subjects taught. In both of these channels of teaching, from which pupils gain culture or skill, background for the enjoyment of the many hours of leisure or for advancement in a post-secondary institution, or dexterity in the performance of tasks in a position, there are great bodies of material with which parents of high school pupils are familiar. However, some of the following may not be so well known and may be of interest.

The ordinary daily newspaper carries long columns of sensational articles. Pupils in English have been assisted in producing their own papers bearing news of common interest in items, short stories, poetry, pictures, and ads. In these same classes, they have studied some of the current educational problems so, as adults, they may have some understanding of and approach to the training processes of their children. They have found added interest in books by producing special reports on present day writers. Finally, they have been lead to find beauties of the great world of nature in writings.

In understanding the action and interaction of the most common things around us, science contributes much. The composition of so simple a thing as a match is not understood by all adults, yet our boys and girls in the junior high grades may tell an inquirer the ingredients and their interaction. Drinking water is very prevalent, but pollution occurs and remains unnoticed by ordinary persons. Chemistry pupils find impurities in water, and learn how to remove the materials which create boiler scale, and make water hard for washing purposes. They learn of methods of fire extinction.

On every clear night the starry kingdom is visible but few appreciate the wonders of the heavens. Mr. W. B. Dickson has tried to help our pupils understand the facts about stars. Mr. Kenneth Curran has assisted in studies of the weather, so the barometer is no longer viewed with awe and the weather forecast a thing of mystery.

Improper footwear is the cause of many discomforts of a busy housewife. "Tired feet" and physical ill-health come from tight or poorly fitted shoes. Girls have undressed their feet, taken footprints on blotting pads, and have studied the causes of cramped, ill-formed toes and arches. A goal is to have all procure a type of shoe which will give good service, appear inconspicuous and be comfortable. The girls follow the teacher's example—"Do as I do, not as I say."

In the household, many articles of clothing are thrown away and thereby expense is added through replacements, merely because the housewives do not know how to make over clothing. When careful budgeting and strict economy must rule to live within a certain income, clothing must be renovated. Our girls are shown ways of accomplishing this.

The pupils have discussed and made a set of social customs which they approve and practice. These apply to home responsibilities, friends, chance acquaintances, dances, auto rides, parties, and everyday living.

In the shop, dozens of useful articles are fashioned but this year boys have made new gunstocks for their sporting equipment, inlaid bowls and trays for their homes, and skis. Boys are required to purchase or furnish their lumber for projects, consequently there have been very few large articles made for nearly two years. With improved business conditions and larger pay envelopes, bookcases, tabourets, chests, and furniture may again be produced in our shop.

A post graduate has combined shop practice and periods devoted to special instruction and study of surveying by building a plane table, and equipment which he has used to measure and map the school property. Mr. Ray T. Gile has given considerable encouragement and help to this pupil.

When a pupil earnestly studies Latin and French he comes to know his own language, English, much better. But besides accurate knowledge of the construction, instruction gives an insight into mythology and literary allusions from Latin, and a daily touch with European affairs in French. Pictures, stories, newspapers, and talks by the teacher supplement the textbook materials.

Some of a person's character traits are discernible even in telephone conversation. It is a point of good teaching to show pupils how to leave the right impression over the telephone. Courtesy, thoughtfulness toward others, voice control, expression and service are impressed on eighth grade pupils.

There is a deal of character training in the correct handling of bank accounts, budgets, and checks, given as a part of junior high school studies.

In commercial training pupils are not only taught the techniques of typewriting, bookkeeping, shorthand, and office machinery but also are shown how to dress properly for work, what approaches to make in obtaining a position, how to handle the affairs of an office, and how to guard the confidences in a position. This is made real to pupils by relating the incidents in the actual office experience by the instructor.

Economics, sociology and history are live subjects, kept so by daily contact with news, weekly study of current magazines, discussion of radio talks, and by contributions from teachers, booklets, and texts.

The scholastic record of a pupil depends in large part on his interest in or his acceptance of the responsibility for much of his advancement, on superior teaching, and encouragement, and on good text-books and sufficient reference material, on adequate equipment and convenient work room and on mastery of the subject by the learner. Littleton High School is contributing not only the bare factual materials and emphasizing the skills to be learned, but is also supplying those experiences which lead to enrichment of personality, which add to human happiness, and which furnish the stability through understanding of great works of literature, and languages, feats of science, and appreciation of and craving for culture.

School life does not consist wholly of studies. Pupils learn the spirit of cooperation, acquire qualities of leadership, accomplish some of their desires, advance some commendable interests, formulate programs, and complete delegated duties in so called extra curricular activities.

ASSEMBLIES

People learn "to do by doing," otherwise all need to put into action that which has been taught or studied before it becomes a part of us. Pupils are "miniature adults" and learn to make a satisfactory talk before others, or to present musical selections before an audience, or to read a selection or a notice, or deliver a part in a play or dramatization by the actual performance of these. Assemblies held usually each Tuesday or Friday give opportunity for pupils to engage in the learning situations. In the assemblies at Littleton High School a pupil chairman takes charge of the meeting, makes the announcements, outlines the program and introduces the various numbers. On a few occasions we have been able to have speakers from outside the school organization. In a few case we have had films loaned by various agencies, but for the most part these assemblies are developed by and for pupils.

ATHLETICS

"The good old days" of two-hundred pound centers and one-hundred and eighty pound guards for football material has long since passed. For the most part the boys reporting as candidates for the three major sports of football, baseball and basketball have been small in stature but they have possessed excellent stamina and praiseworthy determination. With superior coaching they have developed excellent work units.

A record of which we are very proud is that of the football team during the Fall of 1933. The Grange and the Rotary Club gave the coach and players, banquets. The Rotary Club in particular carried out a fine custom in its annual celebration at the end of the football season and presented to the school a large picture of the squad and athletic director with its record inscribed with the undefeated season's scores.

Financing athletic activities has been a real problem for three years. People have not had the money to pay admission charges to games nor have pupils had allowances from which they could purchase season tickets or pay athletic dues. It has been considered wise to accumulate a debt rather than put players on the field or court without adequate equipment. In the Fall of 1931 after the purchase of equipment the Association had an indebtedness of about $400. At the beginning of 1933-34 season this deficit had been reduced to about $75 and by Spring the A. A. accounts should be balanced. Funds to pay off this debt and the boys' and girls' squad expenses came from gate receipts, season tickets, returns from the sale of Carnival programs, additional receipts from stunt night and the A. A. play and a grant of $50 annually from the "Record." There is no assurance however, that the school can continue to successfully finance the athletic program. In some districts a contract is made with a transport agent who transports pupils from outlying districts to supply conveyance for players in athletics, for musicians in the orchestra, singers in the Glee Club, participants in Carnival events, pupils in scholarship day contests and groups for instruction by excursions. The school has been furnished excellent service by the Ellingwood Trucking Company and it is within reason to suggest a possible contract with this company by the school district, to care for these activities which form a part of our school life and for which it is almost impossible to earn the funds to pay or to acquire private cars for use when need arises.

Each year some individual or organization in town renders real service to Littleton High School. Special mention should be made of the generosity of the Littleton Hardware Company in furnishing equipment for athletics and in carrying the bills of the Association for extended periods of time.

WINTER SPORTS AND SKI SCHOOL

New Hampshire is rapidly developing into one of the playgrounds of the nation. It is certainly the more forward of the winter playgrounds in the East. Many of our townspeople and those in neighboring communities depend upon summer visitors to furnish a large part of their income. Several agencies now are using all their efforts to promote winter as well as summer business, to spread the income over a twelve-months' period instead of the four summer months.

Many of our young people will settle in this region as the tendency towards city life decreases. The school can assume, as one of its functions, the encouragement of all winter sports to the end that many of our young people will eventually reap the benefits. Through pupils, permanent residents can be encouraged not only to enjoy winter sports, but also to participate and to play with our winter guests. The school can develop the interest and can supply some of the enthusiasm of youth to point the way to this outcome.

Due to the efforts of the Littleton Outing Club and to Mr. Roland Peabody of Franconia, a ski club was established this winter, both for adults and for young people. The Outing Club and the Park Commission graded a slope near Remich Park, furnished flood lights and made an ideal place for ski lessons. Pupils from Littleton High School have been given instructions each Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 P. M., at a cost of twenty-five cents a lesson for a series of ten.

Besides the ski school we have pupils who took part in interscholastic events—the Field Day at Bethlehem, the Carnivals at North Woodstock, Littleton, Bath, Whitefield and Franconia. The greatest interest and participation, however, will come only when we have a staff member who is trained to instruct pupils how to perform in skiing, snowshoeing, and skating events and can devote out-of-school time to them.

MUSIC INSTRUCTION BY GROUPS

This year a simple experiment has been conducted in which several pupils have been taught how to play the violin in one class. Ordinarily only a few pupils in any year can take instruction privately because of the expense involved, but, under our latest project, each young person pays fifteen cents a week. For this small fee he receives forty-five minutes' instruction and the use of his music book. It has been discovered that pupils who pay a small amount for their instruction apparently derive a great deal more benefit from the training than those who pay nothing. This plan could be extended so pupils could learn to play the cornet, saxophone, mandolin, clarinet and piano. If the District could assure the instructor of a reasonable sum for the year's work there could be classes for five or six different instruments as well as to continue with the orchestra. There is every indication that the project would be practically self-liquidating. The result would be sixty to seventy-five pupils taking weekly lessons on instruments in place of the twenty or thirty now.

GRADUATION

In many schools a very few high standing pupils, scholastically, present the major numbers on the graduation program. Last June we endeavored to develop a Farewell Assembly and graduation exercises which would include at least three fourths of the class, either for vocal music, instrumental numbers, essays, or addresses. The program as arranged revolved about the theme—"Our Four Years" in which many pupils endeavored to show parents and friends the outcome of four years' study in the various school subjects.

THE STAFF

The staff members this year form a very efficient corps. Every member is willing and anxious to carry his or her full share of the responsibilities and duties. All co-operate with a faithful janitor in keeping the school building in good condition. Each has a good rating by the High School Agent. Everyone carries a heavy teaching load and assists in extra-curricular activities. This spirit of cooperation, industry, scholarship, loyalty, and respect leads to the development of the right attitudes on the part of the pupils.

THE PUPILS

The pupils are being directed to be responsible, in a measure, for their own advancement. They are maturing rapidly and, as young adults, they must learn to plan, manage, and direct their daily lives. They accept assistantships and membership on committees. They strive to do well in the classroom and in extra-curricular activities. They show reasonable respect for property and the rights of others.

CONCLUSION

This last school year has been marked by many successes due to hard and consistent work on the part of the teachers, a spirit of interest and co-operation on the part of the pupils, and careful supervision and direction of our work by the Superintendent. The years to come hold much of interest and of promise to all of us. The pupils, teachers and headmaster courageously face the future.

Very sincerely,

DONALD P. MATTOON,
Headmaster

Largest month's circulation, March, 5,696.

Largest day's circulation, Saturday, April 1, 435.

For the first time in a number of years library records show a decrease in the number of books borrowed. While actual figures are not the whole test of a library's usefulness, still it is the one tangible indication we have of progress made. The librarian and trustees feel, however, in spite of statistics, that the library has increased in usefulness this year, and that the falling off in circulation records is due partly to the fact that fewer books were added for those who read solely for recreation and partly to improved employment conditions, which leave fewer people with an unusual amount of time on their hands for reading.

The increased use of the State Library through its Inter-Library-Loan has meant better service to the serious readers in the community than they have been able to have in the past. Although primarily a law library, the State Library is steadily building up a good general reading collection which is available to small libraries in the state. Books of technical nature are high priced and become out of date quickly. When there are possibly two or three readers for such a book the public library borrows from the state rather than buy the book and have it expensive dead wood on the shelves in a year or two. With the low postal rate for this service, the library has been able in this way to satisfy the needs of about 90 readers at a cost to the library of the price of about five books. The Public Library Commission, Manchester Public Library and Dartmouth College library are used to a lesser degree.

Book Week was celebrated in November with an exhibit of new books in the Children's Room and book talks by the librarian in all elementary grades.

It was thought best to omit this year lessons for high school pupils in the use of the card catalog and other library tools, and to concentrate instead on improving conditions within the library. The work planned was greatly facilitated by the services of a C. W. S. assistant. Progress has been made in re-cataloging the old books, and, a simple but useful file of pictures, maps, and clippings organized and arranged for the convenient use of borrowers. This file, it is hoped, will help greatly in supplementing reference material for school work.

In addition to Miss Jesseman's help in this work, the library was fortunate in having seven weeks services of an assistant especially trained in mending books. With the smaller amount of money available for new books it has been a great asset to have restored to usefulness, at the cost to the library of only the mending materials, books which would otherwise have been discarded, or whose re-binding would have cost a considerable amount. Miss Colby, who did this work, gave instruction in improved methods of mending to high school assistants and talks in all the elementary grades on the care of books.

The outstanding event of the year was the Library Institute held in Littleton, October 2-7. This and a similar one week institute in Manchester in July took the place of the usual two weeks summer school course offered by the Public Library Commission. Full accounts of the Institute were printed in the local papers at the time. Littleton was fortunate in having the proper equipment for housing the Institute and profited in many ways by the experience. It is to be hoped that North Country librarians will meet here again for their professional training.

During the week of the Institute a joint meeting of the librarians and library trustees of two north state districts was held in Littleton. The Librarian also attended a State Library meeting in Peterboro to take part in a round table discussion of New Hampshire library needs and plans for the future.

The Library, in spite of curtailed funds which necessarily limit its growth and usefulness, feels that the year has been a good one, and that it is equipped and organized to give far better service as soon as town funds permit a little expansion. With leisure time now available to the many instead of to the few, a library's place is becoming more vital to the community as a whole than it was formerly to a small group of readers. When communities begin to recognize the need of profitable wholesome equipment for widespread leisure, libraries will come into their own as one of the centers for such equipment, and the $1.00 per capita appropriation quoted by the American Library Association as minimum for proper administration of a standard library will come to seem a wise economy instead of the almost unattainable goal it now seems.

Respectfully submitted,

ELEANOR SHANE, Librarian.
