REPORT

OF THE

SUPERINTENDING SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

Another year of the school history of our town has passed. Any record of it must necessarily be brief and imperfect. As in the flow of quiet waters, there is little in the course of such a history to attract public attention and remark, though the results are most important and wide-reaching.

Next to the influences of home, are those of the school in giving inspiration and direction to those immortal powers, which are the inheritance of every child; and which, to the child and to others, work incalculable weal or woe, according to their early shaping and development.

No town can therefore feel too deep an interest in the educational influences which mould its youth, or care too sedulously that they are of the highest possible order and excellence.

The following is an outline of our school history, in the different districts.

District No. 1. Money, $312,84.

N. Gillingham, Prudential Committee.

Summer and Fall Terms, 14 weeks. Winter Term, probably, 15 weeks.

Total attendance, Summer Term, 63 ; average, 57.

" Fall " 61 ; " 53 1-4.

" Winter " 68 ; " about 54.

Miss Susie D. Hazelton, has been the instructor through the year, with some assistance from Miss Mary H. Hazelton, one of her older pupils. Her task has been a difficult and arduous one, to control and instruct so large a number of pupils, in studies, and of ages so various ; but with a patient, firm and kindly hand, she has well accomplished it. A service well deserving a grateful remembrance from its recipients.

The new school building, in its new and sheltered location, proves finely adapted to its purpose. A defect in the plaster used for blackboards should be remedied before another term.

District No. 2. Money, $173,89.

J. G. Hall, Prud. Com.

Summer and Winter Terms, 22 1-5 weeks.

Total attendance, Summer Term, 32 ; average, 26.

" Winter 29 ; " 25.

Miss Ella E. Webster has taught during both terms ; closing the second a little before the expected time on account of illness. Miss W. is a very pleasant and efficient laborer in the school room, and the best results were witnessed there in the way of punctual attendance, good order and gratifying interest and progress in study. We hope she will continue in the work.

District No. 3. Money, $175,67.

Wm. Whittemore, Prud. Com.

Summer and Winter Terms, 21 weeks.

Total attendance, Summer Term, 26 ; average, 23.

" Winter 24 ; " 20.

Both terms were taught by Miss Ella L. Fitz, and were in every way successful. She is a teacher who engages with much enthusiasm in her work, and awakens a corresponding interest in her pupils. It was pleasant to see so many young men availing themselves of the advantages of the school, and by their gentlemanly demeanor and studious application encouraging and strengthening the hands of their teacher.

All in this district with whom your Committee has conversed, are unanimous in their judgment that a more suitable school room should be immediately substituted for the present one, which all know to be so uncomfortable and ill adapted to its purpose.

Let a few make a timely and proper movement in the matter, and we doubt not they will have the cooperation of all in effecting the needed change. The district cannot afford to lose that encouragement and aid which a pleasant and well arranged room would not fail to impart to both teacher and pupils.

District No. 4. Money, $78,91.

G. F. Rollins, Prud. Com.

Summer and Fall Terms, 17 weeks.

Total attendance, Summer Term, 18 ; average, 17 1-5.

” Fall 19 ; ” 17 1-2.

Miss Mary E. Spollet was teacher during both terms, with excellent interest and success. The punctuality in attendance was about perfect. The large majority did not whisper without permission during the whole period of the school, good evidence of a lively interest in, and due appreciation of the school on the part of both parents and scholars. Full attendance at the examinations, and frequent visits to the school room, were further evidence of the same feeling.

District No. 5. Money, $57,38.William Weeks, Prud. Com.

Summer Term, 12 weeks. Total attendance, 18; average, 14. Miss Julia A. Sanborn, who has so faithfully taught this school during several previous years, has been the teacher the present year, and her work still praises her.

District No. 6. Money, $62,52.O. F. Page, Prud. Com.

Summer and Fall Terms, 12 1-2 weeks.
 Total attendance, Fall Term, 9; average, 6 1-2.
 " Winter 8; " 6.

This school was taught by Miss Lizzie T. Hoyt. The number of pupils was too small to feel the stimulus of competition and sympathetic ardor. But good, honest work seemed to be done by both teacher and pupils, and more could not be asked.

Might not the families in this district find it for their advantage to connect themselves with adjacent districts?

Would not the disadvantage of further travel be more than counterbalanced by the greater amount of tuition, and the exhilaration of larger companionship?

District No. 7. Money, $83,23.A. J. Merrill, Prud. Com.

Summer and Fall Terms, 16 weeks.
 Total attendance, Summer Term, 31; average, 28.
 " Fall 28; " 27.

The first term was taught by Miss Sarah K. Stevens. She labored very faithfully, and with fair success. It was her commencement in instruction, and the school was rather too large and taxing for a first charge.

Miss Laura A. Merrill taught the second term. The teacher was prompt and efficient in all her work. The scholars were very punctual, and attentive to theirs, and the best results were secured.

District No. 8. Money, $97,66.*John Wason 2nd, Prud. Com.

Summer and Fall Terms, 16 weeks.

Total attendance, Summer Term, 15 ; average, 12.

" Fall 19 ; " 14 1-2.

The first term was taught by Miss Nellie F. Dolber, a very competent teacher, securing a pleasant and profitable school.

The second term, under Miss Lizzie T. Hoyt, opened with good promise, but owing to the sudden illness of the teacher it closed before the time anticipated, without the usual examination. Her testimony is that "those who attended regularly, made advancement in their studies, and deserve credit for their good behavior."

District No. 9. Money, $62,20.N. H. Currier jr., Prud. Com.

Fall Term, 12 2-5 weeks. Total attendance, 11 ; average, 10 1-2. This school under the continued and faithful charge of its former teacher, Miss Julia A Sanborn, was all which so brief a school could be. Good progress in study, and almost perfect punctuality in attendance characterized every scholar.

District No. 10. Money, $56,09.J. A. Hook, Prud. Com.

Summer and Fall Terms, 16 3-5 weeks.

Total attendance, Summer Term, 17 ; average, 15 2-3.

" Fall 13 ; " 11 2-3.

Both terms were taught by Mrs. L. S. Hooke, the teacher who has so long done excellent service for this school. The punctuality in attendance, the interest and advancement in study, were in the highest degree commendable, and a credit alike to teacher, parents and scholars.

The Academy, under Miss Greenough's faithful and competent instruction, has afforded its valuable aid to the cause of education among us. It still lacks that pecuniary endowment which is so desirable. May it find the looked for patron, who shall establish it upon an enduring basis, and make the coming generations of Chester his grateful debtors.

In conclusion, your Committee is happy in expressing the conviction that the work of our schools, has during the past year, been well and faithfully done. Teachers, competent and devoted to their calling have had charge of them. Unusual punctuality in attendance has been secured, and more than ordinary enthusiasm has been awakened in most of them.

It has been a favorable circumstance that the same teacher has in most cases had the continuous charge of the same school, saving the loss attendant upon frequent change, and that our teachers were generally persons of previously tried capacity and love for their profession.

A change in the Reading books has proved helpful and stimulating in that important branch of education.

A larger number of visits to the schools from parents and friends, and a larger attendance at the examinations, has been a pleasant token of increased interest in most of the districts, and has tended to increase that of the teachers and pupils.

Parents should ever remember that all interest manifested by them in their children's improvement, aids greatly the teachers labors. This interest can be manifested in various ways. Visits to the school-room are expressive of it. But still more so is the home spirit and conversation when rightly directed, and the watchful home care, that nothing, if possible, shall prevent the punctual attendance of the child at the school room, and the fulfilment of all his school duties. With such favoring home influence the child will hardly fail to reap the full benefit of his school opportunities. Without it, they often prove of little value.
