Taxpayers Case Submitted To Supreme Court

The taxpayers motion to intervene in the case of the City of Berlin vs The Fidelity & Deposit Company of Maryland on John A. Labrie's 1931 bond was in order for oral argument on June 5, 1934, and heard on Thursday. Attorney Arthur J. Bergeron appeared for the taxpayers and Attorney Irving A. Hinkley, of Lancaster, for the Bonding Company. Briefs had been submitted by both sides.

Attorney Hinkley made the preliminary motion that the case be continued on the ground that he had the assurance of Willard D. Rand, Bank Commissioner, that the bank would pay one hundred per cent in liquidation and that would render all other proceedings useless. This motion was denied by the court and the case ordered to stand for hearing. Mr. Hinkley then submitted his case on the brief alone and stated that he might file a supplementary brief later.

The Supreme Court advised that as a matter of law taxpayers could intervene in the event of fraud or breach of trust on the part of municipal officials thus upholding the contention of the taxpayers on the law. The pleadings as they stand on the case as reserved and transferred by the Superior Court will necessitate amendment and hearing

"Entered as second class matter March 6, 1934, at the Post Office at Berlin, N. H., under the Act of March 3, 1879."

The National City Bank of New York in its monthly statement, reports as follows:

"The Spring rise of business evidently passed its peak about the first of May, and the trend since has been moderately downward. It is usual for a decline in industrial activity to get under way in May, running until August, and the recession therefore is partly seasonal in character. However, it also reflects the passing of special influences which had helped to make the rise after the first of the year more pronounced than usual, and had caused production temporarily to run ahead of consumption in some industries.

"Such influences were apparent in both the automobile and steel industries, which were the leaders of the upward movement in the early Spring. Field stocks of automobiles at the beginning of the season were far below requirements, and there was every inducement, in view of the natural business improvement, the disbursement of Government funds to farmers and others, and prospective labor troubles, for manufacturers to build up their dealers' stocks as rapidly as possible. Hence, with some exceptions, production during the first four months exceeded sales by more than the customary margin. By the end of April dealers were once more well supplied. Moreover, sales reports have been less satisfactory. Most companies made less than the expected Spring gains after the higher prices were put into effect in April, and preliminary estimates for May show a decline. For both reasons curtailment of output has followed during May.

"In the steel industry the temporary stimulating influence was the price advance announced at the beginning of April, which brought in heavy buying during the period before the new prices took effect. Operating on these orders, mill output expanded from 43.3 per cent of capacity in the first week of April to 56.9 in the second week of May, which may have marked the peak. Buyers in many cases covered requirements well into the third quarter, and in filling these contracts production evidently is out-running consumption. Hence there are stocks to be absorbed, and with automobile takings falling off, a more than seasonal curtailment in July and August is in prospect.

"In the lighter industries making goods of every-day consumption there is also evidence that the expansion earlier in the year was overdone. The cotton mills, whose unfilled orders have been steadily declining, have followed the example of the silk mills in adopting organized curtailment, under direction of the code authority and with the approval of General Johnson. The silk mills closed entirely for one week in May; the cotton mills will reduce machine hours by 25 per cent for twelve weeks beginning June 4. The rayon industry has continued to slow down, and yarn prices have generally been cut 10 cents a pound, following the reduction initiated by one company in April. Wool goods sales have been light and operations are at a very moderate rate, though the Fall goods season should soon be getting under way.

INFLUENCES ON PURCHASING POWER

"The current declines in industrial operations, insofar as they are a natural offset to the preceding rise, should not be greatly disturbing to business sentiment. Such fluctuations are inevitable. General forward movements of business induce over-buying, over-production, and other mistakes of judgment, and it is the usual thing for a reaction to take place after an upswing of five to six months. Moreover, a decline in the indexes during the Summer to levels below one year ago, which is plainly to be expected, will mean little, in view of the special stimulating factors last year.

"Nevertheless, there is unquestionably a feeling of disappointment that trade has not been more vigorous, and that purchasing power has not appeared in the markets in the degree that merchants hoped for. Much of the improvement both last year and this began on the farm, and the Department of Agriculture, which makes monthly calculations of farm income, is not encouraging in its latest statement. It estimates April income, including benefit payments, at $300,000,000, compared with $311,000,000 a year ago, and considering that the upward movement had hardly begun in April last year the comparison is wholly unfavorable. The Department also states that farm income during the next few months is 'not likely to exceed that of the corresponding months last year,' which will be recognized as a conservative opinion in view of the active demand for cotton, wheat and other farm products in June and July last year at, in some cases, higher prices than today.

"Moreover, the farmer not only may have fewer dollars to spend but each dollar will purchase less, in view of the 20 per cent advance in the prices of goods the farmers buy, as shown in the Department's indexes. The farmer has enjoyed a great rise of income from March, 1933, through March, 1934, but obviously there is a limit to the practicability of increasing total income by reducing output; and when the rise stops the farmer will have the increase in industrial prices to offset his gains. The industries must take account of this situation.

"The second important factor in the outlook is the backwardness of the construction and other capital goods industries, which are the chief areas of unemployment and depression. During the first half of May building contract awards, as reported by the Dodge Corporation, declined 8.4 per cent below the April average, which in turn was 20 per cent below March. Ordinarily there is little seasonal change in this period. Residential building was lower than in April or in May, 1933, but the increase in public works was sufficient to raise total contracts 50 per cent over the same period last year.

"The new house renovating program before Congress is calculated to be helpful in the building situation if workmen can be found to do the work for what consumers can pay. According to past experience the plan is sound on its credit side, but the cumulative effect of the codes in the building, materials and supply trades, and the price advances, has been to raise the cost of such work by 40 per cent above the bottom, according to a calculation made for the New York area. The question is whether home owners have had increases in income that will enable them to pay these costs, and if not whether the costs can be reduced. In short, it is a question of the remuneration of the building trades relative to that of all other occupations. If there is not a fair and sound balance between them the building trades will continue to suffer unemployment."

a clear picture of the policy of the club towards the Brown Company. He told the throng that any concessions received from their employers had been due to the efforts of the Coos County Workers' Club.

He stated that a committee representing the workers had been interviewing Brown Company officials in regard to getting a wage increase up to the scale of weekly rates in existence in 1929. That the committee also endeavored to get the matter of seniority rights settled, but to no avail.

Club Willing to Arbitrate

The club called the mass meeting to report to the workers that a committee had been trying for weeks to induce the Brown Company to bring the matter of a wage increase and seniority rights before the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration, but that the officials of the Brown Company flatly refused, stating they had nothing to arbitrate. They also added that if the code called for a 60 cents per hour minimum, or if they were forced to, they would pay that amount.

Workers Vote Today

The assembled workers were then informed that a vote would be taken Wednesday, June 13th, in the Stahl-Clarke building from 8 a. m. to 7 p. m., the employees of the Brown Company voting on the following question: those in favor of giving the Brown Company until June 20th to bring the matter of a wage increase and seniority rights, vote Yes. Those opposed are to vote No. All voting is to be done by secret ballots and all employees of the Brown Company who are, or have been, members of the Coos County Workers' Club, are to be allowed to vote.

on the facts, the court intimated.

This would mean that if the City Council in dropping the suit in question used their judgment to the best of their ability though their judgment might have been poor the taxpayers would have no relief in the case. However, if the City Council dropped the suit in an interest adverse to that of the city such as to enable the official to be bonded again or to protect him from losing his property or the like, the taxpayers would be permitted by law to intervene and take over the action.

The final ruling and disposition of the case by the Supreme Court will be awaited before any further decision is taken in the matter.

Notes on Workers Club Meeting

Club Joliette, June 12—Tuesday night being social night for the Coos County Workers Club, the regular business meeting took place at 7 P. M. instead of the customary 8 P. M. meeting.

The business meeting was followed by a bridge and whist party at which prizes were awarded to the lucky winners.

UNFAIR BARBER COMPETITION

The leading issue to be discussed at the meeting was the matter of unfair barber trade methods as practiced by some of the tonsorial profession who sport Blue Eagles but cut hair at cut-rate prices. The East Side was given a clean bill, there being no evidence of unfair practices in this district. The barbers in that section are abiding strictly by the code.

CHARGE 25c FOR HAIRCUTS

The sore spot of contention, however, is the West Side, especially

The next meeting of the barbers will be held the last week of this month and members who refuse to abide by the fair practice code as set by the code, will be summarily expelled.

PUBLIC SHOULD PROTECT

The Guardian plans to put up a fight to protect the barbers abiding by the code. The Guardian will print a list of all barbers who stick by the code, and will urge the general public to support only those barbers found on this list. When entering a barber shop to get a haircut or a shave, ascertain yourself if that shop is displaying a Blue Eagle. If it does, patronize it. If it does not, take your patronage to another shop where the eagle is being displayed.

MANCHESTER WINS OVER LOCAL NINE, 4-1

Y.M.C.A. Park, June 10—Before a crowd of 750, the Amoskeag team of the Manchester City league emerged victorious over Berlin 4-1 in a pitchers' battle between Lucy of Manchester and Gus Rooney of the locals.

Rooney had the downstaters baffled with his variety of hooks in the first five innings, but the Amoskeag boys began hitting hard in the sixth when they took a lead which they kept throughout. Lucy practically won his own game in this inning when his double scored Harris and Pasiak. "Billy" alias "Pete"

Vallancourt, former Berlin High athlete. Manager and Captain of the visiting nine, starred in this game, obtaining two singles and a double.

The many friends of Exilda Dumais, formerly recording secretary for the Coos County Workers Club, will be glad to learn of her marriage to Edward Gagne, which took place April 7, 1934, at St. Anne's Church. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Ledoux and among the witnesses were Joseph Dumais, the bride's father, and Philius Gagne. The couple will now reside at 777 Main Street.

CORRECTION

In last week's issue of the Guardian a member of the committee interviewing the Brown Company was quoted as saying at the last club meeting that Mr. Paul Brown had stated the company would pay a higher minimum rate if the code forced them. According to the member of the committee what Mr. Brown said was that if the code insisted on a higher minimum the Brown Company would pay it, but go out of business in two weeks.

The Guardian wishes to apologize for having erroneously quoted the member of the committee.

RE-EMPLOYMENT ITEMS

Mr. Robert Sharples, head of the local re-employment office announced that he recently placed ten men to work on the state highway at Littleton.
