REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

SCHOOL ACCOMPLISHMENT

Are Auburn schools reasonably efficient? Are they economically administered?

An efficient school is one in which pupils get the habit of using their mental and physical powers in ways which are not only beneficial to themselves but to the community where they live: If a pupil is a good "school citizen" for twelve or more years there is great probability that he or she will continue to be a good citizen after leaving school. If he gets the habit of gathering such information as will help in solving his school problems he will be apt to profit from this habit in meeting the demands of life whatever his profession or occupations may be. When we see a school in which pupils are diligently searching for information which will help in understanding the day's lesson assignments we are justified in assuming that this same habit will be useful in solving the larger problems of daily life.

A good school is one in which pupils are actively engaged in collecting information from every available source, and are busy in discussing in class the meaning of this information and its use in such subjects as history, geography, science, etc. Such a school is a workshop where information is manufactured into useful and permanent ideas and not a mere store-house of second-hand information to be memorized and then soon forgotten.

In answer to the questions above asked I can say that it is my opinion based on careful observation and many discussions with Auburn pupils, both in and out of school, that Auburn schools for the most part, are decidedly of the "workshop" rather than the "store-house" type.

There are, however, ways of verifying an opinion:—

The results of numerous tests and examinations in grades four to eight, where such measurements are possible, show a standard of excellence considerable above that of the average school. This is not a matter of guessing, it is the result of mathematical analysis of school results.

Nevertheless, there is abundant opportunity for still better accomplishment.

IMPROVEMENT OF BUILDINGS

Auburn is to be congratulated on its good fortune in having Manchester City Water pipes extended to part of the town. It is especially fortunate for the Severance School because it has made it possible to eliminate the unsatisfactory Chemical Closets and replace these with up-to-date non-freezing flush closets and septic-tank.

In accomplishing this the local Parent-Teachers Association contributed liberally by paying for the service pipe and bubbler. At the same time and for the same good purpose Mr. Shaw, Supt. of Manchester Water Works, permitted his men to dig the trench and connect and lay the pipe from the main to the school house.

Thus it has been made possible for a first class sanitary system to be installed at a cost of $460 which is at least $200 less than might ordinarily be expected.

The savings made from various items of the budget have been sufficient to pay for this improvement without asking for a special appropriation.

G. H. WHITCHER,
Superintendent of Schools

HEALTH RECORD

---

To the School Board and Citizens of Auburn, I tender my report as School Nurse from Sept. 1935 to June 1936.

No. of pupils examined . . . . . 152

	No. Affected	No receiving treatment	No defects corrected
Number underweight . . . . .	5	5	1
Number defective vision . . . . .	2
Number diseased tonsils . . . . .	4		1
Number defective teeth . . . . .	94		72

Pupils accompanied to clinics:

- 2 pupils at Mental Hygiene clinic
- 3 pupils examined at nose and throat clinic
- 2 pupils examined by Dr. Kerr at clinic
- 1 pupil examined at orthopedic clinic
- 1 pupil examined by Dr. Wilkins at clinic

150 School visits
 100 Home visits

Report of Dental Clinic Held in Auburn May 19-20

Number of pupils treated . . . . .	72
Number receiving complete care . . . . .	42
Number of pupils receiving free care . . . . .	19
Number of pupils paying full cost . . . . .	47
Number of pupils paying part cost . . . . .	6

Total number cleanings 40, temporary teeth extracted 43, permanent teeth extracted 12, number cement fillings 6, silver fillings 26, porcelain fillings 4, treatments 3, making a total of 134 operations.

This clinic was made possible by the Auburn Red Cross and the Severance School Association.

The fact that only 12 temporary teeth were extracted and 36 permanent fillings were done shows that we are reaping the benefits of previous dental clinics.

Respectfully submitted,

MARGARET E. CRONIN, R.N.,
