Librarian arrested Heinous crime committed outside his door!

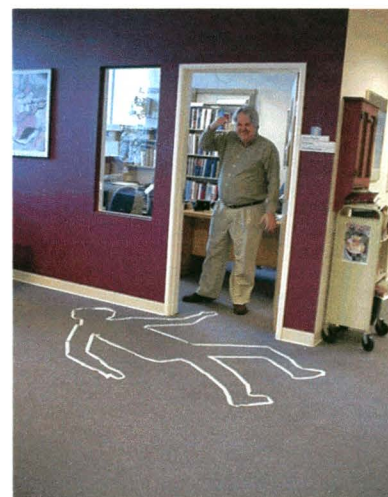

Barry Shanks, mild mannered librarian and teacher, is charged with crime. See story page 11

Office ransacked

CIA, FBI, and the SPCA are investigating this crime. Hazmat suits were used.

Vice Dean Hired

A woman has been hired to fill the vacancy left when Prof. Harrison decided to teach.

The person is well known to the library staff.

Mona Lisa Code

While cleaning the frame of this famous painting the part time janitor/part time girdle inspector dropped a bucket of WD-39.5 on the painting. The face instantly began to peel revealing the true identity of Mona Lisa!

It is believed that Da Vinci used an ancient language from a small tribe called "Stoned Ones" who once inhabited Easter Island as the name "Mona Lisa" in "Stona" means, "One who loves books and small sausage like dogs, and is called Judy the librarian."

A reward is offered to any one who can identify this "Judy." See page 9A for details.

Pierce Law Witch Coven Accepting New Members

The High Priestess, Ellen Galvin; Medium Priestess, Kathy Fletcher; and the Bottom of the Chamber Pot Priestess, Jean Everson invite new inductees into their coven.

Members must go through a ritual that some might find difficult, especially men.

If interested please bring a serrated knife, duct tape, pliers, one cup of virgin chicken blood, three drops of dew from a skunk cabbage leaf, three toes from a mudwort, strong rubber bands, and a bottle of holy cow water to the Collection Mgt. area at midnight on the last day of each month. Come naked.

Photo at the right was taken by a security camera moments before a scuffle broke out between three women apparently over the bearded man serving drinks.

The one partially sober bystander reported that the blond in the middle, later identified as Jean Everson, hit the Sandy Eaton on her right with a wine bottle and then stuffed beer nuts up the nose of the lady on the left, bearded guy before being subdued by the other two women.

Later all four left together, a little disheveled but in good hu-

Paula Jewell is God

The Vulcan, Council of Protesting Churches, Grape Kool Aid Society, Hale Bop & Nike Fellowship, and Fund-a-mental, declared on credible evidence presented that Mrs. Jewell is indeed "God."

She says her first duty as God would be to drill for oil in the heads of the President and VP. The possibility of declaring married women as pet owners is still up in the air, but looks good. Then she would squash all Hummers, and any auto

Pierce Law People Win Makeovers

Four staff members recently won a makeover on the much acclaimed TV show, The Accomplice.

Melanie got a hair do and makeup, as well as a leg stretch to make her 5'10". Of course the hair added 6 of the inches.

Bonnie Morrison got a new hair color and several areas pierced. We cannot reveal here where except her nose. The iron chain jewelry is quite stylish.

Prilly also got a new self at the spa. Her hair was lengthened and lightened. Through starvation she now sports an hour glass figure.

Ellen Galvin also had a makeover but something went terribly wrong and she would only comment through her lawyers. Her comment was unprintable.

Roberta Woods Goes to Hogwarts

Roberta Woods won a scholarship to spend a year at Hogwarts University to study Web Wizardry and the Black Arts. She will matriculate at the Hogwarts American Campus in Suncook, NH in August.

When her studies are finished she will receive the degree WWUBS, or Web Wizardry & the Use of Bad Stuff, providing she doesn't get gored and eaten by the disgusting, wild, and vicious thing that prowls Suncook after dark.

Good luck Roberta.

Librarian Publishes Book

Cindy Landau, reference Librarian and Professor, recently published a book on Research. It is "Landau, On Researching the Saber Tooth Cellar Toad."

Mrs. Landau is the foremost authority on this little known amphibian that lives exclusively in her cellar in Chester, NH.

The cellar toad is 1/2 inch long with poisonous fangs and claws. I likes to hide on beams and jump upon unsuspecting people and other animals, and sink sharp fangs into their necks. After the host is dead the frog lays eggs in their navel and will sit on t them until they hatch.

Mrs. Landau has studied this toad for many year..... er....

Kangaroo Court

A kangaroo was found wandering in the stacks this spring. As he tried to leave the library the alarm sounded, and when asked to empty his pouch, he became indignant and said he would not without a court order, and that no one would be allowed to do a cavity search.

Believing he had law books hidden in the pouch, the desk student and 5 other bystanders wrestled him to the floor. What was found in the pouch was unbelievable! Jon Cavicchi and the 6 volume set of McCarthy on Trademarks was pulled out.

The kangaroo is being held at a Concord Police holding cell for fear he might jump bail.

Librarian Gets in the Habit

Sister Jon gave us at E-Notes this exclusive interview concerning his recent calling.

E-N: Why did you choose to be a nun instead of a monk?

SJ: Well, monks just seem to walk around on cold rocks barefooted, and nuns get to wear these cool frocks. Also I didn't want to shave my head and face. I'm not so good at chanting either.

E-N: But don't your friends and family think it odd for a man to be a nun? People on the street?

SJ: Oh no, not at all. My mother is delighted that her son is in a nunnery. My friends support me completely. Oh sure, they like to tease and razz me, but I never let them get in the habit!

People on the street do give second looks when they see a 6' 4" nun with a beard. But they don't bother me in any way. In fact, out of respect, most cross to the other side of the street.

E-N: What is your most memorable moment after becoming a nun?

SJ: In a poor section of Boston a small child came up to me holding out a tiny filthy hand. I bent down to her thin stained and freckled face—or it might have been sores. Anyway I asked her what she wanted of me, or did she have a gift? She looked up at me with sad watery grey eyes, stretched her hand higher, and said, "Peas Mr. Nun ken I have sumtin' to eat?." My heart overflowed with joy.

E-N: So you took her home, washed her, fed her, and gave her hope?

SJ: Are you crazy? She was filthy and probably covered with lice and germs. But I was pleased and filled with self adoration when she called me "Mr. Nun."
