ANNUAL REPORT
OF THE
SCHOOL BOARD OF LEE
FOR THE
Year Ending March 1, 1891.

To the parents and guardians of our children, and to those who pay taxes for the support of our Public Schools, the School Board beg leave to submit the following report.

We all know too well, that the past five years have been to many of us, outside of the school room, trying times; but as there is always more or less trouble in connection with schools, we can congratulate ourselves that, while there has been some excitement outside, we think our schools have improved in some respects. We find on comparing the report three years ago with our present registers, that in the Turnpike School, those studying other branches than arithmetic, reading, spelling and penmanship, compare with the numbers given then as follows: In 1887 the greatest number in geography, 17, now 21; in grammar, 10, now 18; in physiology, 3, now 12; in history, 1, now 18. The percentage of daily attendance is greater. The number of visitors has increased, and we may add, the wages paid teachers are higher. At South Lee there is not so much difference in the number studying the various branches, but there has been more visitors than heretofore.

We can truly say that all our teachers have been faithful. We do not mean that any one has done everything better than any other teacher would have done in the same place; but he or she has done something better than we who have been looking on could have done ourselves, even if we do think we should have done some things differently, as we no doubt should according as our qualifications and dispositions differ. With a teacher who is interested in the work, scholars can surely improve, and if there are any who have not spent their time to good advantage, part of the fault has been in themselves.

While the Turnpike School has had, during the last two years, four different teachers, the South Lee School has had, what is commonly considered, the advantage of being under one experienced teacher during that time. Under him they have not only learned their lessons, but have been obliged to speak promptly and distinctly, which will be a decided advantage to them hereafter. During the summer term the beginners in arithmetic received a drill in rapid addition, subtraction, multiplication and division, which was carried on through the year. Often do we find older scholars who would be benefited by such work, a few minutes each day. Considerable attention has been paid to penmanship since Mr. Davis has had charge of the school, and several prizes given, so that when the teacher gave the Turnpike School the opportunity to compete with his school for the prize for best penmanship, they felt that their chances were small, as they had not made a specialty of penmanship. But if the Turnpike School falls short in some respects, we know that they have not been idle. Miss Kelsey has been a member of a Normal School and had taught several terms, so that she came well qualified to fill the place. In arithmetic, the mental work that has been omitted was taken up, and problems outside of the text book were given, so that they have been obliged to think, rather than go on blindly by rule. More have studied grammar than ever before, and we believe that the new text-book given them will prove better than the old one. A two-book series gives the beginners something they can understand, while the advanced book presents the subject in better shape for the older scholars than it can be if all is combined in one book. We considered the exercises in syntax, taken up during the winter term, very beneficial; for a child must not only know when a sentence sounds right, as there are few children who constantly hear correct language, but must be familiar with the rules. Grammar has never seemed to receive its share of attention, but we think that the classes under Mr. Tuttle made more rapid progress than ever before.

CENTRE.

Owing to the lack of proper accommodations, it is at present impossible to give entire satisfaction in this section of the town. The law passed in 1885 says "The said school board of each town shall provide schools within the limits of said town, at such places and times as in their judgment shall best subserve the interests of education, &c." At the same session of the legislature there was another law passed which reads as follows: "The boards of education of adjoining towns, cities, or districts, may contract with each other, or with any academy, seminary, or college, incorporated under the laws of the state, for the education of scholars in such towns, cities or districts, upon such terms and conditions as they may agree upon."—[Laws of 1885, Chap. 89, Sec. 2.] Under this law we have provided for our scholars at Lee Hook, 10 in all, 7 attending school at Newmarket Plains, 3 at Packer's Falls. Each member of our school board has visited the Plains School and we feel that our scholars there have had as good advantages as those who have been under teachers hired by us. We noticed that they had recently been provided with a reading chart like the ones in our school houses and a better globe than we own. The school house was painted last fall. Miss Lewis, the teacher employed for the year, 30 weeks, is a graduate of a Normal School, which we consider an advantage to a teacher suited to the business, as she evidently is.

At Packer's Falls, Durham, we have had the three from Lee Hook during the year and the Wednesday Hill scholars summer and winter. We visited the school and were satisfied that the teacher was interested in the work and would be likely to be successful. Those who have sent children there from Lee have assured us that good work was being done. But in the fall there were 10 scholars at Wednesday Hill and it was decided to run one term of 10 weeks, in the old school house. Although it may not be a disadvantage to change teachers occasionally, we do not consider it as well for the scholars to attend first one school, then another, not being in any particular class and often alone. At Wednesday Hill we find the attendance very good, whole number 10, average 8; but the teacher was obliged to record what seemed to us an unnecessary number of instances of tardiness, taking into consideration the nearness of all the scholars. There are but five families and they are all very near the school house. The teacher.

Miss Perry, encountered the same obstacles there that other teachers have found and met them as successfully as those before her have.

We believe that the law giving us free text-books and supplies will be a benefit, and now that we are very well supplied the yearly expense will not be great. Every school needs an Unabridged Dictionary and we hope soon to see them on the teacher's desks; but this year as we were obliged to pay out so much for the regular text-books, it seemed best to wait. We have made only such changes in text-books as seemed necessary, considering it a disadvantage to give a scholar a new book unless we are sure of a better one.

Music has received some attention in our schools this year, but they have labored under the disadvantage of having no books.

We wish to call your attention to a few needed improvements. At the Turnpike school house the children have no suitable playground. G. L., c. 88, sec. 10, p. 214: "School house lot may be enlarged, how. The school board or county commissioners may exceed half an acre, upon such petition to them and proceedings thereon as are required to authorize them to determine the location for a school house." At the Turnpike school house the ventilation is not such as it should be. There is a hole overhead that ought to let the warm air out fast enough, but the difficulty seems to be in admitting fresh air. The only way now is to drop the windows, which lets the cold air onto somebody. The result has been colds, in some cases lasting the entire term.

Then there might be an improvement in the manner of lighting our school houses. In the afternoon the sun shines on the books of many scholars and it is impossible for them to study in such a light. The only relief is to close the blinds on one side of the house, which makes it very dark for those sitting on that side. We would suggest that curtains would provide a shade and not darken the room.

Under existing circumstances the school board has sometimes found difficulty in determining what was the right thing to do, and we hope the time is not far distant when some final arrangement will be made that will be satisfactory.
