

Beaufort S.C. Dec 4th 1862

My Dear little Wife.

It is a long time since I have received a letter from you, and although there is no mail to go North at present, still I thought it would be best to have one begun to send when there is a chance. There is nothing new to write about, here, every day passes so much like every other that I hardly notice that they do pass. It seems but a very short time since I left home, in fact my mind is with you so much that it seems as though I had not left you at all. There is hardly five minutes at a time that I do not think of you. I suppose Dr. E. and his lady have arrived at home by this time. They probably got home before my last letter, I was in hopes you would get that before he got home, but I missed getting it into the mail that went by that boat so there will be quite a long time that you will not have any letter, but don't think hard of me darling, I will make it all up some time. Well it is growing dark, so I must stop now but I will try and have a good long letter to go by the next mail. Take good care of yourself and the little darlings this cold Winter, and don't forget your loving husband, Alexander.

Monday Dec 8th No mail yet, and no letter from my darling Emmy. Well I will be patient, perhaps I shall get two or three soon. It has been very cold for this climate for several days. I think we mind the cold more from my dear Emmy, well, we'll be patient, perhaps

Transcription:

Beaufort S.C. Dec 4" 1862

My Dear little Wife,

It is a long time since I have received a letter from you, and although there is no mail to go North at present, still I thought it would be best to have one begun to send when there is a chance. There is nothing new to write about, here, every day passes so much like every other that I hardly notice that they do pass. It seems but a very short time since I left home, in fact my mind is with you so much that it seems as though I had not left you at all. There is hardly five minutes at a time that I do not think of you. I suppose Dr. E. and his lady: have arrived at home by this time. They probably got home before my last letter, I was in hopes you would get that before he got home, but I missed getting it into the mail that went by that boat so there will be quite a long time that you will not have any letter, but dont think hard of me darling. I will make it all up some time. Well it is growing dark, so I must stop now but I will try and have a good long letter to go by the next mail. Take good care of yourself and the little darlings this cold Winter, and dont forget your loving husband, Leander.

Monday Dec 7 8" No mail yet and no letter from my darling Emmy. Well I will be patient, perhaps I shall get two or three soon. It has been very cold for this climate for several days. I think we mind the cold more here than we should at home. There has been several nights that water has frozen, a little, and it seems as though I have suffered more from the cold than I ever did at home in the coldest weather. But I can't write until I hear from you, so I might as well stop. There must be a mail in today I think.

We shall be paid in a few days, and then I will send you some money. L

Friday Dec 12th

Well Emory your letter came last night. The mail arrived at the bead yesterday, and I sat up till nearly 12 o'clock waiting to get my letter, but was disappointed
after all, for it was missent, and I did not get it till today. I am glad to hear that you are all well.

I have not time to write but a few words now, for I have got a pass to go out shooting and am in a hurry to get away before dark, but as there is a mail going tomorrow I could not let it go without sending you a few words. There will be another go in a day or two and I will send you a good long one by that. I have a hundred things I write but can't stop now. So good bye for a little while. God bless you, is ever the prayer of your loving husband
Seander

Transcription:

here than we should at home. There has been several nights that water has frozen, a little, and it seems as though I have suffered more from the cold than I ever did at home in the coldest weather But I can't write until I hear from you, so I might as well stop. There must be a mail in today I think We shall be paid in a few days, and then I will send you some money, L

Friday Dec 12"

Well Emmy your letter came last night. The mail arrived at the Head yesterday, and I sat up till nearly 12 o'clock waiting to get my letter, but was disappointed after all, for it was missent, and I did not get it till today. I am glad to hear that you are all well. I have not time to write but a few words now, for I have go a pass to go out shooting and am in a hurry to get away before dark, but as there is a mail going tomorrow I could not let it go without sending you a few words. There will be another go in a day or two and I will send you a good long one by that. I have a hundred things I write but cant stop now, So good bye for a little while. God bless you, is ever the prayer of your loving husband.
Leander