THE "SAGE" OF WINDSOR

We were all aware of Charles' illness, however, when he left the Hospital, we had a feeling of optimistic relief that he was showing progress, therefore, the news of his death shocked us all. He will be missed, not alone by his devoted family but by all the residents of Windsor.

Charles was a fountain pertaining to the history of this unique town. Believe me, the Selectmen will miss his valuable advice and council.

IN MEMORIUM

WINDSOR — Charles I. Nelson, 83, died Apr. 22 at a Concord nursing home after a brief illness.

Mr. Nelson was the last of the "old-time residents" of this community, having come here when three years of age and living here all his life.

He was elected selectman at the age of 21 and had served in that post, as well as town clerk, treasurer and other town offices, for 60 years.

He was a member of the school board; and a former road agent and highway patrolman. Mr. Nelson was a Star Route mail carrier between Manchester and Hillsborough and was also a rural mail carrier from Hillsborough to Windsor to Washington for many years.

He was a past master and former member of Lovell Grange, Washington.

The family includes a son, Stanley R. Nelson of Weare; 10 grandchildren, 26 great grandchildren, and several cousins.

Funeral services were held Apr. 25 at the Woodbury and Son Funeral Home, Hillsborough, with the Rev. Alan Carpenter of the Congregational Church, Hillsborough, officiating.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery, Hillsborough.

FOREST FIRE WARDEN'S REPORT

The 1970 forest fire season was a quiet one in this area, quiet in part because of your continued cooperation and favorable weather conditions.

Fires that did occur were, for the most part, caused by debris burning, children and smokers.

The elimination of these three causes of forest fires would drastically change this picture — to bring about this change we make the following suggestions:

1. When the ground is not covered with snow a permit to burn must be obtained from the Forest Fire Warden. This permit covers waste burning, even if in an incinerator, grass burning, as well as garden trash and brush burning. SUPERINTENDENT'S MESSAGE

Your school system faces many major challenges as it enters the decade of the seventies. So, what else is new? We've said this at the start of every new decade, but still there is a lag between what we ought to be doing in our schools and what we actually are doing. My first report to you as your Superintendent will be devoted to a discussion of a few of the things we would like to see become reality. In essence it will represent our attempt to meet the challenges. I might add "our" is a collective term, for it is your concern as well.

To start with it is necessary to note that if our schools are to truly meet the challenges of the seventies then they must have programs that meet the needs of all children. I know, we've said this before, but I mean something more than tracks for the college and non-college bound, homogeneous groupings, remedial education and such. It means things like non-graded schools, individualized instruction, independent study, small and large groups instruction, broadened curricula that bring a greater variety of offerings to the student and a breaking away from the traditional grade organization and lock-step school scheduling. The emphasis must be placed on the individual and his needs and abilities and must be reflected in the structure and methods of the school system. Our ever changing and dynamic society demands an education that prepares one to cope with it. Such is the challenge of the seventies.

What are we doing and what can we do? First what are we doing. You've heard enough about project CAPE our summer curriculum development project. Through this effort we have created an awareness of our needs in the area of social studies, reading and vocational education. For those who have been closely allied with the project it has been a most valuable in-service experience. For those who have served on projects resulting from the findings of CAPE there too has been a valuable professional experience. For those not involved, as such, other experiences must be provided. Thus, the reality in the project itself and its benefits to those involved. The goal of the future is to restructure CAPE in such a way so as to create greater involvement and to bring to teachers the opportunity to learn new techniques. In particular, planning and using instructional objectives in the instructional process.

The special class begun in September is also a program to meet the needs of children. In this instance children who are mentally handicapped. Presently there is an enrollment of nine. A number of good things have accrued since its inception for the children involved. In addition to their regular classroom program, the class uses facilities at Hillsboro-Deering, attends assemblies and takes occasional field trips. For the future we need better means of identification, new facilities (and I might note we are deeply indebted to the Hillsboro Moose Lodge for the facilities provided) and find ways to involve these young people in the mainstream of school life where practical.

For the child who has learning disabilities, but not to the degree to warrant enrollment in the special class, the new program at Hillsboro-Deering holds bright promise. In this activity a person with expertise in the field of learning disabilities works with children in the process of identifying problems and then develops programs to correct them. This involves tutorial and small group sessions with the children. conferences with teachers to assist them in understanding the nature of the child's problem and the developing of ways to bring about its solution. Gone is the time when these children were herded together in a special room and so labeled and never to mix with their peers except for special instances. Now the child remains a part of his social group. The difference is that his problems are recognized and things are being done for him. The primary thing being understanding. Hopefully, this program will be adopted in Hopkinton with the idea of a shared service extending the program's benefits to the children of Henniker and eventually to all of the communities within the Union.

The non-graded school with its many benefits for children is a high priority item. Except for isolated efforts on the part of some teachers the idea has not begun to spread. We must begin to explore elementary school reorganization as it pertains to each community in view of the idea that each child is different, that his needs are different and that the present mode of school organization is not necessarily the best to meet the specific needs each child has. Reorganization refers to such thoughts as abolishing the grade labels as such (grade 1, grade 2 etc.) implementation of various modes of organization such as team teaching, small and large group instruction, individualization and continuous progress programs. The latter means that a child progresses at a pace consistent with his abilities and in such a way it is made certain he does not miss basic fundamentals which create the need for most remedial programs. Besides the many advantages for children, school reorganization can bring about better use of the instructional staff, change the emphasis on pupil-teacher ratio and use resources and facilities in different ways. It recognizes the need for in-service training for the staff and calls upon the community for a commitment to a type of educational program that can do much for children and perhaps be more economically efficient. Reorganization is also a must for high school, and for the same reasons. In addition if program expansion is to take place, a break from tradition is needed. Ways must be found to involve community resources in the instructional program. Open campus, schools without walls, independent and individualized study are just a few of the ways it may be possible for small high schools to meet the ever increasing needs of our youth without becoming too economically expensive to maintain. Again the emphasis must be on the need to provide for all students in a manner that is in tune with the tempo of the times.

I could go on, but I think this sets the tone. The reality of the situation and the direction of the future is a program that recognizes each individual for his worth, that makes a school an exciting and challenging place to be not just at the time a child begins but all the way through to graduation.

Tom Watman and I will devote our energies in this direction. We welcome the opportunity and the challenge to respond to the new decade. We solicit your support for it will be a joint effort if we are to be successful.

And in closing I resort to my tradition, that of a quotation that reflects the essence of what I have tried to say to you. This time I take a short paragraph written by Carl R. Rogers which appeared in the book, "Man Education and Manpower":

"In the world which is already upon us, the goal of education must be to develop individuals who are open to change, who are flexible and adaptive, who have learned how to learn, and are thus able to learn continuously. Only such persons can constructively meet the perplexities of a world in which the problems spawn much faster than their answers. The goal of education must be to develop a society in which people can live more comfortably with change than with rigidity. In the coming world the capacity to face the new appropriately is more important than the ability to know and repeat the old.”

DOUGLAS BROWN
