Presentation of Bicentennial Flag to Town of Croydon

In Memoriam

Elsie Sandreuter 1904 - 1975

It is truly fitting that this Bicentennial issue of the Town Report be dedicated to Elsie Sandreuter, for she exemplified the spirit of the pioneers of this Town. She had the qualities of self-reliance, independence, and most of all, the desire and ability to help her fellow man.

Elsie was born in the state of Washington, in 1904 and lived there until 1951. She was married to Stuart Sandreuter in 1939 and after moving to the East, they settled in Croydon in the spring of 1963.

Upon their arrival to Croydon they proceeded (as our pioneer forefathers would have) to build a home, plant a garden, put down provisions for the winter, and most important of all, to make friends.

Shortly after her arrival in Croydon, Elsie joined the Good Neighbor Club. She served as president of the club in 1967 and 1968 and as secretary from 1969 until 1975. It was as a member of the Good Neighbor Club that Elsie showed her great feelings of service to people and to the town. Always a willing worker, always with a smile and always doing for others, she was truly a "good neighbor."

How many new brides in Croydon have carried one of Elsie's hand tatted lace handkerchiefs in their wedding or how many homes in the town have been graced by Elsie's exquisite handiwork or floral arrangements will probably never be known. Those who have been fortunate to have a bit of Elsie's talented artistry in their possession will readily attest to the fact that she had that special ability to create things of beauty. Perhaps there is much truth in the adage, "Only beauty can beget beauty".

We shall all miss Elsie. She was a good and dear friend to all.

Your Town Clerk and Deputy Town Clerk attended the Town Clerk's Convention this past fall for the express purpose of schooling ourselves in the registration of motor vehicles for 1976. We can best explain this on a one-person basis when you register for the coming year. I hope you will register early to avoid the last-of-March congestion.

Never throw away an old Town Report. If you have old ones from surrounding towns, Mrs. Ida Dorsey will be interested in obtaining them. If they are Croydon Town Reports, and you no longer want them, I would like them for the future.

SUMMARY OF ANNUAL TOWN MEETING

March 4, 1975

Town Officials elected by ballot were as follows:

Selectman	David Allen
Road Agent	Frank Dearden
Town Treasurer for 3 yrs.	Rita D. Gross
Tax Collector for 3 yrs.	Veronica Newcomb
Town Clerk for 3 yrs.	Rita D. Gross
Library Trustee	Pearl McIntosh
Trustee of Trust Funds	Patricia A. Sawyer
Auditors	Katharine C. Fogg and Janet S. Pellerin

The business meeting began at 1:30 P. M.

A total of $50,337.56 was raised and appropriated for Town expenditures. A complete list of these appropriations may be found on Page 00 of this report.

We voted to transfer $3,000.00 from Revenue Sharing to Capital Reserve for New Equipment and to transfer $3,000.00 to the Solid Waste Fund. Any remaining balance in the Revenue Sharing Fund is to be transferred to the Tax Map Fund.

The Town voted to empower the Selectmen to appoint a Bicentennial Committee to investigate the possibility of holding a Bicentennial Celebration in 1976 to commemorate our Nation's birth. This Committee was to report to the Selectmen on the first Selectmen's Meeting in September.

Two articles did not pertain to money but to a matter of policy. After considerable pros and cons, the Town voted to allow the Good Neighbor's Club to have a key to the Town Hall, and to keep the Town Hall available to the citizens of the Town year-round.

Under the last article was a request to have Town

Reports available to the Public sooner than Town Meeting Day.

Mr. Hunt mentioned that there is no place at the Flat for posting notices. This, too, has been commented on in past years. Once there was a store at the Flat but now we have none in that part of Town. Mr. Frank Dearden volunteered a spot on his lawn and the Selectmen indicated a willingness to see that some bulletin board would be erected.

The meeting adjourned at 4:45 P. M. and voting continued until 6:00 P. M. The Moderator then declared the polls closed and announced that 144 persons had voted and there were 239 names on the checklist. Moderator Willis H. Ballou, Sr. then turned the meeting over to his assistant, Willis H. Ballou, Jr. for the count of the ballots.

CROYDON TOWN LIBRARIAN'S REPORT

January 16, 1976

The Croydon Town Library enjoyed another year of growth during 1975.

Since the children in the lower grades are our chief supporters, the children's corner has been greatly expanded. Child-size furniture and many "easy readers" have been added. This has increased our juvenile circulation; while the State Book Mobile supplies most of our pre-teen books, and many adult fiction and non-fiction.

Some "weeding" of the shelves was done by the library aides with a book sale resulting.

Our Croydon residents remain very generous. The Wm. Greeleys donated numerous classical and popular records. Many hardcover and paperback books, magazines and pamphlets were also donated.

Summer brought with it a craft program, story hour and movies from the State Library. During the school year movies are received bi-weekly as a library program.

Thanks to a grant from the N. H. Commission on the Arts and the National Endowment for the Arts entertainment was procured for the children from the Arts Exchange in Hanover monthly throughout the summer.

World, a new children's magazine from National Geographic, has been added to our other subscriptions: Newsweek, Profiles, National Geographic, Changing Times, Yankee and Organic Gardens.

There were 316 new books purchased; a few new shelves added.

Actual circulation figures for 1975 were: Juvenile, 2,590; adult, 843; magazines, 164; records, 31.

Library hours remain Thursday 2-5 p.m. and 7-8 p.m. During the summer additional Friday hours are added and during the winter lack of patronage causes the winter evening hours to be dropped. With the coming of Spring, National Library Week begins our evening hours again in April along with an open house. Come see us.

Respectfully,

DONNA LESLIE, Librarian

REPORT TO TOWNS

Upon the recommendation of town selectmen and city councils, the Division of Forests and Lands appoints a forest fire warden and several deputy forest fire wardens in each town and city every three years. The town or city warden is responsible for maintaining a force of men and adequate equipment to suppress any wildfire that occurs in his town or city during his term of appointment. The fire warden must authorize all open burning when the ground is not covered with snow. No open fires can be authorized between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m., unless it is raining, without the additional permission of the state district fire chief.

Any person wishing to kindle an open fire when the ground is not covered with snow must first obtain the written permission of the forest fire warden. Camp and cooking fires also require the warden's permission.

The Division of Forests and Lands, through its Forest Fire Service, assists all cities and towns in meeting these requirements by training the warden and deputy forces in wildfire suppression tactics, making hand tool suppression equipment available at fifty percent of cost, supplying pieces of Federal excess property for use as fire attack vehicles and sharing up to fifty percent of the cost of wildfire suppression costs.

Wildfire prevention is also a joint state, city or town program. Smokey Bear is available from the Forest Fire Service for local fire prevention programs. Posters and Junior Ranger kits are available for distribution by local fire departments upon request to the Forest Fire Service. Each forest fire warden is expected to carry on a continuous wildfire prevention program within his town or city.

ACTIVITIES REPORT OF THE CROYDON POLICE DEPARTMENT

Again this year the Croydon Police Department is glad to announce that there was a reduction in break-ins and burglaries. We can attribute this to the many hours the men on the police force have put in patrolling all the roads in the town, making property checks on year round residents and summer camps.

We received our new portable radio this year, which is a great help to the officers who have to leave the cruiser to answer complaints. This radio keeps them in touch with our regional dispatch and State Police headquarters at all times.

The members of the Croydon Police Department would like to thank the many people who take interest in our Police Department and call us when they see any suspicious activities or persons in town and for any reason they feel necessary. We would rather be called at any time to a false alarm than not be called at all.

We also want to express our many thanks to the Newport Police Department and the New Hampshire State Police for their assistance in the field of law enforcement.

We are here to help and serve you.

DIRECTORS' REPORT OF THE UPPER VALLEY-LAKE SUNAPEE COUNCIL

The Council operates on an annual budget of about $100,000. It is under the direction of a 47 member board of directors composed of two directors from each of its 31 member communities (plus 3 directors-at-large). Since these directors are appointed by the member communities—the Selectmen or City Councilors—and set the policies and programs to be administered by the staff, there is complete local control of the Council's activities.

Yet, the membership dues from local communities (Croydon's share for the coming year, figured on a per capita basis will be just $215.00) account for only 30 percent of the Council's total revenue. The remainder, 70 percent, comes from various state and federal sources. In other words, these added sources of revenue have increased the Council's income and thus its ability to serve its members at a two-to-one ratio of service to local dollars spent.

Many programs have been undertaken with that money. There are large-scale regional studies which benefit residents of all member towns. Last year, a major emphasis was on solid waste, to help towns meet the state-mandated deadline for closing dumps. This year, there have been studies on area transportation needs and on housing and land use needs, which will help towns qualify for various federal-aid programs. There are many smaller studies, of interest to groups of towns, and many seminars and workshops to help municipal officials meet the ever-more-complex state and federal regulations.

In addition, staff assistance is available to most communities via a popular technical services program with help given in such diverse areas as subdivision regulations, land use maps, down-town improvement studies, new zoning ordinances, planning for new municipal facilities and the many technical and graphic needs inherent in these programs, services small communities cannot afford. Croydon is indeed fortunate to be a member of the Upper Valley-Lake Sunapee Council.

REPORT OF CROYDON'S BICENTENNIAL COMMITTEE

This Committee was formed in July 1975, with its mission to formalize a program to celebrate the 200th birthday of our country, and to present this program to the Selectmen for their approval in September of 1975.

The members included Charles D. Kuhn, Sr., Chairman, Rita Gross, Jean Greeley, Veronica Newcomb, Cecil Dodge, Paul Doiron, Frank Holmes, Michelle Pellerin and Nancy Brown.

Highlights of the Program include an Essay Contest, painting of Murals for the Town Hall, and a Tom Thumb parade; all for the children. It also includes a Heritage Display and Demonstration, Cleanup of our Cemeteries, Black Powder Demonstration, Dinner Dance, Town Wide Church Services and Family Picnic.

For our project as a Lasting Reminder, we plan the development of 1.4 acres of land behind the Town Hall, Church and School into a picnic and recreational area. We have contributions totaling $1,268.58 for which we thank our Friends and Townspeople, also those who helped cut trees and brush last fall.

A second project we have undertaken is the reprinting of the 'Sketch of Croydon' published in 1852 by John Cooper. This little booklet is our earliest Town History and very few copies exist.

The program is designed to permit everyone to participate in this unique celebration in some form or manner.

Through the quality and diversity of this program, the National Revolutionary Bicentennial Committee awarded Croydon the Bicentennial Flag and Certificate which was presented to the Town on December 14, 1975, by Representative James Cleveland.

As this type of celebration comes only once in a lifetime and gives everybody an opportunity to honor our Heritage, celebrate our present in Festival and to perpetuate our future on the Horizon, we encourage all to take part as much as possible.

There will be many opportunities to provide manual help in our Cemetery Cleanup and Park Development Programs. This is your CROYDON, and your U. S. A. Let's all help to make it a big celebration and let future generations know we have passed by here.

Times and places for the happening will appear in the paper and in as many ways as we can find possible.

THE WHITE HOUSE
Washington

December 22, 1975

We now mark the beginning of our Third Century as an Independent Nation as well as the 200th Anniversary of the American Revolution. For two centuries our Nation has grown, changed and flourished. A diverse people, drawn from all corners of the earth, have joined together to fulfill the promise of democracy.

America's Bicentennial is rich in history and in the promise and potential of the years that lie ahead. It is about the events of our past, our achievements, our traditions, our diversity, our freedoms, our form of government and our continuing commitment to a better life for all Americans. The Bicentennial offers each of us the opportunity to join with our fellow citizens in honoring the past and preparing for the future in communities across the Nation. Thus, in joining together as races, nationalities, and individuals, we also retain and strengthen our traditions, background and personal freedom.

As we lay the cornerstone of America's Third Century, the very special part played by the American Revolution Bicentennial Essay Contest of Croydon, New Hampshire is most commendable.

Mrs. Gerald S. Gross

R. F. D. 1

Newport, New Hampshire 03773

Dear Mrs. Gross,

Thank you for your very kind invitation to attend the designation of Croydon as a Bicentennial Community on Sunday, December 14, at 2:30 P. M. I am sorry that I will not be able to attend due to a prior commitment.

Our Nation has strayed from many of its founding principles. The Bicentennial celebration offers a modern opportunity to rekindle the heritage that is ours.

I look upon the Bicentennial celebration as an opportunity for all of us to become familiar with the landmark, the ancient landmark that the founding fathers have set for us.

Citing a phrase from Proverbs, "remove not the ancient landmarks which thy fathers have set". Our founding fathers believed in God. They found strength in reading the Bible and in praying to God.

It would not occur to the founding fathers that we would find ways to stray from the ancient landmark—the teachings of God— and from the teachings of those who devised the form for the greatest democracy the world has ever seen.

From those basic foundations, we have allowed ourselves to stray. Can you imagine any of the 82,000 who constituted the population of New Hampshire in 1776 driving their oxen and wagon beyond the little school in their town to the school in some distant town because someone in Philadelphia, and later in New York, and finally in Washington told them they could not keep their children at home in their own school. Can you imagine some of those founding fathers ruling that the readings of the Bible and prayers of God must stay outside of the classroom, a classroom that they were supporting with their tax dollars? I suggest to you that in this Bicentennial celebration that will go on for several years here in New Hampshire, we find a golden opportunity to rekindle the heritage that is ours and to make that great heritage of our founding fathers come alive in the hearts of our children.

If we do that, then this Bicentennial will surely be worthwhile and we can move with confidence and success into the next 100 years of America's life.

Sincerely,
MELDRIM THOMSON, JR.

YESTERDAY

An Old Man's Recollections and Predictions

Croydon, April, 1877

John Cooper

Having passed my "three-score years and ten," I often indulge in the propensity of an old man, and look back over the changes which have taken place since my remembrance, in the face of the country, and in the manners and habits of the people. I also frequently think of the discoveries and improvements which have been made during the sixty years; and I wonder if the next sixty years will witness an equal advance. Some of these my cogitations I will just put on paper, without much order in their arrangement.

I well remember when a large part of this town was covered with an original growth of timber. The glory of "Pine Hill" had been laid low; but it still contained many valuable pine trees. I have seen at the millyard in the East Village, more than 1000 logs at a time, of which probably one half was clear pine. And I remember that much of the clearings was covered with unsightly stumps and huge, decaying hemlock logs. I well remember, too, that in the lot where my father's orchard one stood, old stumps and logs were found in sufficient quantities to keep a large fire to warm the benumbed fingers of potato diggers.

In those days it was no uncommon sight to see fires raging in the woods during a drouth. In 1816, Pine Hill was burned over by a furious conflagration which threatened the buildings of Mr. Peter Barton.

When I was a boy, clearing land was an important occupation of our farmers. A large part of June was usually spent felling trees; and, after haying, if the weather was favorable, might be seen, pillars of smoke, ascending from burning "slashes," as they were called. I have seen sometimes nearly a dozen of these fires at a time.

In those days, farmers raised nearly everything of the provision kind, which was consumed in the community around them. I was quite a boy before I saw a barrel of flour, or a bushel of southern or western corn. The farmers generally raised their own breadstuff and a supply for the mechanics around them. And they raised the flax and wool necessary to clothe not only their own families, but to sell to such of their neighbors as wanted them. The farmer also made butter and cheese, raised pigs and poultry for sale, to obtain a little money to defray current expenses, or to pay debts. In fact, the farmers of those days lived more within themselves, than the same class of people do at the present day; that is, they lived more on the actual products of their own farms.

The farmer was busy in those days. Not only must he clear land, raise crops, build wall, and do his ordinary farm-work in the summer, but in winter he must thresh out his grain with a flail, besides getting to his door some forty or fifty cords of wood; for I remember before the advent of cooking stoves. But this was not all. The month of March used to be devoted to getting out flax. All this he accomplished with the aid of a set of farming tools, which at present day, would belong to an old "Curiosity Shop." The manure-fork of those days was a hugh, three-timed, iron instrument, containing stock enough to shoe a horse. Mr. William Smith owns one of them. And the hayforks, hoes, axes, plows, and scythes were nearly as rude as the manure-forks. How our farmers could accomplish so much as they did, with such miserable tools—how they could clear their land, build their wall, pile up such hugh piles of stones—seems a marvel. But there were giants in those days!

If our farmers of sixty years ago had a laborious life, their wives and daughters were not idle. I well remember what was done in my father's family. Besides the ordinary housework of a family, my mother and sisters manufactured nearly all the cloth used in our family. A full rig for male or female usually required a few gewgaws from the store; but the substantial part of dress was made at home. From early spring until late in the fall, my mother and sisters were engaged in carding and spinning tow, in spinning linen, and wool, and in weaving the yarn into cloth. It sometimes seems that I can hear, even now, the hum of those spinning wheels and the clatter of the handloom. Those wheels were the pianos to the music of which I listened in the days of my boyhood.

The cloth of domestic manufacture, if it lacked the polish of modern times, was thick and durable; and when it came from the hands of the "clothier," it made wearing apparel and bedding, fit for a king. Some of the bed blankets, made by my mother and sisters, in the long ago, are still in being, and, apparently nearly as good as new.

When families made their own cloth, they required the aid of the clothier. He was then an important member of the community. He received the cloth from the housewife's hand, and metamorphosed it into "Flannel," or "Pressed Cloth," for the female part of the family, or into "Fulled Cloth" for the men and boys.

Other mechanics were also plenty. We had two or more blacksmiths, and shoemakers, and coopers, and millers; and we had quite a number of saw mills and carding their own leather and thread; and the customer of the machines. Our shoemakers required their customers to find blacksmith was obliged to furnish his own iron and steel. In early times boots and shoes were sewed exclusively, pegged work being then unknown. No boots and shoes were then brought into town, except "Morocco Shoes" for the ladies.

Our gristmills—of which we had two—ground a large amount of provender for fattening hogs and preparing store pigs for market. I well remember the droves of the latter, which, in the days of my boyhood, were collected and driven to market. One of the principal items of income of some farms, was their crop of shoats.

Our stores kept the goods, usually found in country stores of the present day, minus the numerous boxes of boots and shoes, and the piles of cloths, under which the shelves and counters of our modern stores usually groan. But the stores of those days commonly kept the ardent.

And I well remember, too, when the principal Village in Newport was comparatively small. It contained no churches or other public buildings; but its most imposing edifice was the old "Tontine."

The fashions of that day, with respects to dress, I have already partially alluded to. While about their ordinary business, farmers and mechanics were usually clothed in homespun. And, with some exceptions, this was the case when they put on their best; that is, so far as men and boys were concerned. Hats, neckties, and pocket handkerchiefs usually came from the store; but the other clothing was of domestic manufacture. I was nearly thirty years old before I ever wore a garment of foreign manufacture. Broad-cloth, in those days, was reserved for merchants, professional men, and dandies.

The ladies' every day dress in Summer was usually tow and linen; or it was linsy-woolsey, of domestic manufacture; and, for Sundays, it was made of light stuff, from the store. Their ordinary winter dress was woolen flannel, prepared at the clothiers. Their Sunday's winter rig consisted usually of pressed cloth, dyed some fanciful color, and artistically cut and made. Their gloves, shoes, and shawls came from the store; and their head-gear from the milliner.

Having spoken of the cloth in fashion when I was a boy, I will pay a word or two about the cut and shape of some of the ladies' and gentlemen's dresses. As it is a very fruitful theme, it is not to be expected that I shall do more than to notice one or two of the fashions formerly in vogue. In the time of Addison some of the ladies in London wore head-dresses of wire and lace, three feet high! In my long and somewhat varied observation I have not seen anything in dress quite so ridiculous as that; but I will tell you what I have seen. I remember it was the fashion for ladies to wear dresses which were "scanty in length, and tight to boot." This was particularly the case when they wore crepe dresses which clung to the person, as a stocking does to the leg. At the same time they wore bonnets of such ample proportions, and which came so far forward of the face that, as some one observed, the eyes of the wearer shone like those of a cat in a dark garret. Such an outfit would contrast oddly with a rig of modern date, when the ladies dressed in tents, and wore bonnets so diminutive, as sometimes to lose them from their heads without knowing it. I well remember when six yards were amply sufficient for a lady's dress. About the time that the ladies wore crepe dresses, the beaux donned "stock-innette" pantaloons. These indispensables, as their name implies, were made of knit cloth, and clung to the limbs like stockings. A dandy with spindle shanks rarely wore them without wearing one or more pairs of pants underneath. It would be an amusing spectacle, had we before us, a sample of each of the different coiffures, worn by the ton—men and women since my remembrance. Some of those which I saw in my boyhood would nearly match the frized heads of modern date.

I have already alluded to the clumsy implements of the farmer. Those of the mechanic were equally bungling. The pod-auger of the carpenter may serve as a sample of the rest. Only think of the vehicles of travel in this town fifty years ago. A pleasure wagon (if such it might be called) without steel springs, without through-braces, without any springs, except some stiff ash ones under the seat, consequently, with the body sitting plumply on the hind axle-tree, was the only wheel carriage in which I rode in my youth, except that I sometimes took a ride in the lumbering chaise-and-one. In fact, if we had a pleasure carriage in those days it was the chaise; but that was rarely seen. If people travelled, they generally rode horseback, or took the time honored stage-coach.

Many improvements have been made since my remembrance; and not the least has been in the mode of travel. Sixty years ago railroads, as thoroughfares of travel, were unknown. In 1832, I received a letter from a friend, giving an account of a ride on the Liverpool and Manchester Rail-road, at that time the only Rail-road for travel in the world. I well remember with what astonishment I read the following from his letter: "I remained at Liverpool six days; and from thence I went to Manchester by Rail-road, on which I flew at the rate of eight or ten miles an hour." The velocity of the steam car was past his comprehension.

Another improvement of the present day is the substitution of Ocean Steamers for sailing vessels. A voyage to Europe does not now occupy more than one third of the time which it did formerly.

Another improvement of the present day is the cheapness of our mails. I well remember when letters, carried by mail, cost 6, 12½, 18¾, or 25 cents each, according to the distance. And, in repeated instances, have I paid forty cents each for letters from California. And I can also remember when Croydon, Grantham, Springfield, and Sunapee contained no Post Office. Our nearest office was Newport. Our mail facilities have much improved during the last fifty years. Only think—I can remember when our newspapers were brought to us by Post-Riders.

Another great improvement in the diffusion of news is the Telegraph. When I was a boy, the most rapid transmission of information was horse-power. One of the curiosities of the Atlantic Telegraph is the fact that we can receive from Europe a telegraphic despatch of an event, at an earlier hour of the day, than it transpired in Europe! For instance: If, when a murder is committed in London at noon, if it should be immediately telegraphed to New York, the telegram would be received at the place a little after 8 o'clock, a. m.

Another improvement of the present day is the use of Chloroform, or of Ether in Surgery. When I was young, nothing was done to alleviate the sufferings of a patient while undergoing a painful operation in surgery.

Another improvement of the last fifty years—and one which seems to reach everybody—was the invention of Friction Matches. When I was a boy, how to keep fire over night, especially in summer, was a problem of difficult solution. Many a time have I been to the neighbors after fire. Flint, and steel, and tinder, and punk, and gun-powder were frequently called into requisition to produce fire. I well remember what preparations were made in summer—a fire was built, and the coals of it carefully covered with ashes, before the people retired for the night. The invention of matches was a very important one. It is true that matches have caused many fires, either by carelessness or design. But, on the whole, only think what a convenience they are! and what a hubbub would immediately follow, should they fail up!

Another very convenient improvement is the art of vulcanizing India Rubber. Rubber is now used for so many purposes that we could hardly do without it. But, I lived before the age of Rubber boots, shoes, table-spreads, blankets, and the thousand and one purposes to which rubber is now applied.

Improvements of minor importance, it will be readily seen, have been made since my remembrance, when I tell you that I lived before the advent of carding machines, grain-cradles, thrashing-machines, and winnowing-mills. But, with all the improvements which I have named, and many more which I have no room to mention, we are losing some things during that time. Reaping with a sickle, thrashing with a flail, spinning on a "great wheel," spinning on a "little wheel," and weaving on a hand-loom, will soon be among the "lost arts."

While thinking of the discoveries and improvements which have been made since my remembrance, the questions naturally arise, will as many and as great improvements be made during the next sixty years, as have been made during the same length of time last past? And if so, what discoveries and improvements will be made?

In answer to the first question, I would say, in my opinion, discoveries and improvements will still go on. The ingenuity of the Yankee nation — to say nothing of the world — will not stop here. We are now only on the threshold of improvement.

And, in answer to the second question, we are left to conjecture. Some things may be discussed, which are plain and simple in themselves and of great utility, but of which we never dreamed. All such things, as a matter of course, must be passed over. But I will take up a few questions on which some have built theories that need a little more elucidation before they become established facts.

Perhaps some inventive genius, will discover a method of navigating the air. Hitherto, ballooning has been a break-neck business, but a method may be discovered in which a voyage to Europe may be as practicable and safe as it is now to go by steamer.

Perhaps some daring Arctic explorer may discover "Symmes Hole," and the wonders which are supposed to be hid in the bowels of the earth. I remember when Capt. Symmes petitioned Congress for aid in fitting out an expedition to go in search of a passage into the earth. His theory was that the earth is hollow; the crust or shell being about 500 miles thick. The crust is open at the poles; and its concave surface is inhabited as well as its outside. How the interior is lighted, I have forgotten and it is probable by a small sun in the centre. Unfortunately it may be, Congress did not grant the petition, so that "Symmes Hole"; and the regions connected with it, are now supposed to be located in the vicinity of Utopia. Perhaps one may discover a method of causing rain by artificial means to fall upon the earth. I remember when Prof. Espye also petitioned Congress to grant him aid in causing rain. He said in his petition that by chemistry he could cause it to rain on any such district of country as he pleased. And he wanted an appropriation of money to purchase the chemicals to induce the rain to come. As Congress did not see fit to furnish him with the "rhino," rain now generally falls independently of the will of man.

Perhaps some one in the near future may discover Perpetual Motion or if not, he may invent it. Thousands have racked their brains to make the discovery, but hitherto without success. The resistance of the air and the force of gravity, have baffled all their attempts. But Perpetual Motion exists among the heavenly bodies, and why not on the earth?

When speaking of the improvements of the present day, I might have mentioned Geology; for it has been reduced to a science since my remembrance. But at present it is in its infancy; and its teachings are, consequently, uncertain. For we find that if, when investigating any subject, it is necessary to base the premises on hypothesis, the conclusion is very apt to be erroneous. Some of the teachings of geology as explained by certain scientists will probably, in the light of the next fifty years, be much modified, if not exploded. For instance the "Darminian Theory of Evolution" will, if I mistake not, soon be treated as the hare-brained theory of men whom much learning hath made mad. The doctrine of "Evolution," as expounded by its defenders, is nearly as follows: The testimony of the rocks is, that in the vast ages of many thousands of years ago, animal life commenced in its lowest astages—in the Oyster, for instance—and that it gradually improved, from one state of being to another, until it finally culminated in man! If this be so, it must be flattering to one's pride to trace back his ancestors, and to realize that he himself is nothing but a Monkey which has sloughed off its caudel appendage.

The line of demarkation between the different species of animals is pretty well defined;—and we find no hybrids occupying the space between them. We are aware, indeed, that the bat is called the connecting link between quadrupeds and birds. But we are not told whether, in the progress of Evolution, the bat sheds his wings and becomes a mouse, or acquires feathers and becomes a bird. But will the bat ever become anything else than a bat? That is the question. Until the affirmative of the question is proved, it appears to me to be about as well for us to rest contented with the Mosaic account of the Creation, and not endeavor to be wise above what is written in the Scriptures.

I might continue these rambling remarks still further; but I forbear as I am apprehensive that I have already extended them ad nauseam.

REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

To the Citizens of Croydon:

The present enrollment in Grades 1-3 is 20. About the same number is expected next year. Seven students in Grades 1-3 are attending school in Newport with the tuition charge paid by the parents.

Mrs. Rosemary Aldrich is again teaching the Village School and is assisted by Mrs. Donna Leslie as Teacher Aide.

MINIMUM STANDARDS

Since the funds to comply with Minimum Standards for Elementary Schools were eliminated at the 1975 Annual Meeting, no action has been taken this year. However, the 1976-77 budget, as recommended by the School Board, again includes funds to provide for services in Music, Library, and Physical Education.

The Report submitted last year by John G. Economopoulos, Assistant Education Division Chief, called for a commitment of dates when Minimum Standards would be met. Approval in at least one of the areas would be a start in the direction of compliance.

SCHOOL LUNCH

A "Type A" School Lunch Program became operative January 2, 1976 under the direction of Donna Leslie.

This action comes after months of legal confrontation between the School Board, State Department of Education, and the Office of the Attorney General. By delaying action, the entire cost of renovations and equipment for the Lunch Program totaling $1,400 have been paid through federal sources whereas earlier Croydon was to be charged one-half the cost. In view of this, the following official action was taken by the State Board of Education on December 1, 1975:

"Voted: In the affirmative without dissent, to direct the Commissioner of Education to advise the Office of the Attorney General, to whom the matter was previously referred, of Croydon's apparent compliance with RSA 189:11-A and to request that office to cease and desist in further action regarding the Croydon School Board in relation to RSA 189:11-A."

Respectfully submitted,
GORDON B. FLINT
Superintendent of Schools
