REPORT

OF THE

Superintending School Committee

OF THE

TOWN OF RYE,

FOR THE YEAR ENDING MARCH 1, 1869.

BOSTON :

PRATT BROTHERS, PRINTERS, 37 CORNHILL.

1869.

REPORT.

FELLOW-CITIZENS: —

Charged, in a measure, with the responsibility and management of our Common Schools for the past year, it becomes my pleasure, as well as required duty, to report to you their condition and progress. I shall also take the liberty to recommend such improvements, and make such suggestions, as are, in my judgment, essential to their continued welfare and future prosperity. Owing to the unusual length of the Winter Schools, the statements made in this Report, relative to the exact average attendance, and the number of visitors, is necessarily incomplete. I presume, however, that the general average will not vary materially from the average attendance to March 1st.

The schools in general during the past year have been under excellent management, and have made good improvement. The teachers, as a whole, have discharged their responsible duties in an acceptable manner; and there has been no serious difficulty in any of the Districts. The Prudential Committee, in some of the Districts, entertained some misgivings in regard to employing female teachers for the Winter Schools.

The experiment, however, has proved an entire success ; and I do not see why it may not be safely continued, provided, always, that the Committee employ only those of requisite qualifications to teach and govern. In this connection, I cannot too forcibly urge upon committees the importance of selecting the very best teachers. The low wages paid to female teachers have compelled many of them to seek more remunerative employment ; and we may not expect, in future, to be always able to secure the services of competent instructors at the merely nominal prices hitherto paid. A too rigid economy in this respect may lower the standard of our schools, and prove more injurious in the end than a judicious liberality at the outset.

The large number of text-books, some of them quite valuable, and others comparatively worthless, have made our schools cumbersome and hard to teach. This will continue to be so, in a measure, until that indefinite "good time" in the future when our schools shall be graded. As a forcible illustration of this point, I found, in the Centre School, at the commencement of the Summer Term, five different kinds of Grammar, — either of which, alone, were better than all combined. Such has been the case, to a greater or less extent, in all of the schools. As a partial remedy for this objectionable feature, I have introduced a uniformity of text-books wherever a change has been made. In making such changes as I deemed necessary, I have endeavored to introduce books of acknowledged merit and practical utility. The numerous varieties of Grammar have been replaced by "Quackenboss's," uniformly throughout the schools. "Greenleaf's" Arithmetics have been replaced by Quackenboss's — a less intricate, and, in my opinion, a much better work for general use. My reasons for preferring it, are, that it is thoroughly practical, and unsurpassed in the conciseness of its definitions and simplicity of its details. It has been universally liked wherever introduced. "Emerson's" and "Colburn's" Arithmetics have respectively been replaced by Quackenboss's "Primary" and "Mental." Cornell's Geographies (the latest editions) have been introduced in the South and East Districts, and the "Primary" Edition in the West. The numerous political changes throughout the world, the organization of our Territories, and important geographical discoveries, render the old geographies comparatively worthless for reference or study. A set of outline maps should be furnished in every District. In no way can Geography be so rapidly learned, and the knowledge so well retained, as by the study of these maps. The citizens of the West District have purchased a set by subscription, and I hope their example may be followed by the citizens of other Districts.

I would recommend advanced scholars to devote more attention to Physical Geography. There should be at least one class in every school. Such an interesting and important branch of Geography ought not to be neglected.

More attention should be given to Writing. There has been no system in our method of teaching Penmanship. Instead of beginning with the simplest elements and principles of the letters, many pupils have been allowed to commence writing in books where the copies were adapted for advanced scholars. The lesson should be adapted to the capacity of the pupil, and his ability to understand the simplest elements of penmanship. As a means of creating a better interest, and of reforming existing abuses, I have introduced Payson, Dunton & Scribner's series of writing-books throughout the schools. A set of Writing Tablets founded upon this system, placed in each of the schoolrooms, would be of material benefit to those who write.

The Readers in our schools (with one or two exceptions) have been so long in use, that they have long since ceased to be interesting to the pupils. I regard a change as highly desirable. From a careful examination of several series, I am convinced that "Parker & Watson's National Readers" possess superior merits for our common schools. One serious objection to many of the series in general use, is the introduction of large words in the Primer and First Reader. In the National Series, this is carefully avoided; the lessons being made easy and progressive. The Primer contains no words of more than five letters. I would recommend the introduction of these Readers as soon as practically convenient.

Natural Philosophy, which was once made a prominent study in our schools, is now wholly neglected. I hope it will be introduced again immediately.

During the year, the Centre School-house has been thoroughly repaired, and an excellent room obtained at a comparatively moderate cost. It is, however, very poorly ventilated, and highly detrimental to the health and comfort of the children, in its present condition. I hope that so serious a defect will be speedily remedied.

While freely criticising the relations existing between teachers and scholars, parents should not be unmindful of the responsibilities resting upon them. The scholar's deportment in the schoolroom largely depends upon the impressions received at home. It should be the parents' aim to impress upon the mind of the child the importance of a punctual and regular attendance, and the necessity of a cheerful and willing obedience to the reasonable regulations of the school. Let parents encourage studious habits, and frequently remind their children of the great benefits to be derived from a good education. Let them manifest a practical interest by visiting the schools, especially on examination-day. The scholars will be inspired with renewed energy when they know that parents are interested in their progress.

In this fast and progressive age, every proper means should be taken to elevate the standard and increase the efficiency of our schools. We cannot afford to be behind the times. We cannot safely ignore the improved text-books and the new and approved methods of teaching. In our common schools, we behold the future of our country. Educate the people, and crime and pauperism will diminish. Ignorance is the high-road to vice and crime. Under existing circumstances, many of our children must necessarily go out into the world and fight the battle of life single-handed. Surely, we can give them nothing more beneficial than a good education. To promote this desirable result, liberal appropriations should be made for the support of our schools.

However desirable economy may be elsewhere, we cannot safely retrench here. Money withheld from the school-house may be spent at the pauper-house and prison.

I do not feel at liberty to close my Report, without referring somewhat in detail to the different schools, and the teachers connected with them. This part of a committee's duty is oftentimes rendered extremely unpleasant, when, in the impartial discharge of his trust, he is reluctantly compelled to censure the teachers and their management of the schools. I am pleased to add, that no space in my present Report will be thus occupied. On the contrary, their conduct and general management of the schools have been such as shield them from adverse criticism, and entitle them to commendation.

In the South District, the Summer Term was taught by Miss Leonora A. Bean, of Nottingham. I found Miss Bean's school very quiet, orderly, and well-disposed. The scholars evidently made good progress, and manifested that kindly feeling toward their teacher which is so conducive to mutual success.

The Winter Term was taught by Miss Semira S. Shapley, of Rye. Miss Shapley's reputation as a teacher is too well established to need any recommendation from me. Her method of instruction is interesting and concise; and her manner of governing highly commendable. In her school, I observed studious habits, good discipline, and good progress.

In the West District, the Summer Term was taught by Miss Abby S. Clark, of Rye. Miss Clark, in addition to her other excellent qualifications, possesses, in a marked degree, the rare ability to govern. I found her school under the best of discipline, and the scholars making very rapid improvement.

The Winter Term was taught by the author of this Report; and modesty forbids more than the mention of this fact. Suffice it to say, that the scholars have made good progress, manifested much interest in their studies, have cheerfully obeyed my regulations, and treated me with every desirable mark of kindness and respect. Judged by the visible results, I trust the school has not been an entire failure.

In the Centre District, the Summer Term was taught by Miss Sophila J. Foye, of Rye. I found Miss Foye to be thorough in her methods of instruction, and commendably strict in discipline. Her school presented a highly creditable appearance upon examination-day, and evinced a degree of promptness, acquired only by diligent study and careful training.

The Winter Term was taught by Mrs. Mary C. Chase, of North Hampton. Mrs. Chase has maintained strict discipline in her school, and her scholars exhibited a marked improvement in their various studies. The attendance has been very regular, and in this respect, averages better than any other school in town.

In the East District, both terms of the school were taught by Miss Roxa M. Felker, of Barrington. In the several visits made to her school during the year, I invariably found good order, close attention to the studies on the part of the scholars, and careful instruction and earnest effort on the part of the teacher. I regard Miss Felker's method of instruction as worthy of imitation, being alike systematic and thorough. She is an energetic teacher, and deserves much credit for her untiring exertions to promote the interests of the school.

My personal thanks are due the several teachers, for the uniform courtesy with which they have treated my suggestions, and their readiness to co-operate with me in introducing needed reforms.

All of which is respectfully submitted.
