R E P O R T

OF THE

SUPERINTENDING SCHOOL COMMITTEE

OF THE

TOWN OF RYE, N. H.,

FOR THE YEAR ENDING MARCH 1ST, 1871.

REPORT.

FELLOW CITIZENS :

In presenting my third annual report, it affords me much pleasure to announce that our schools are in a flourishing condition, and that good improvement has been made during the year just closed. As much progress has been made as could be expected under existing circumstances. The limited amount of money which the town appropriates, does not meet the requirements or necessities, even, of first-class schools ; and I hope the citizens will see the propriety of a more liberal appropriation for the coming year. Money enough should be appropriated to enable the committees to secure the services of the most accomplished teachers, — such teachers as are not necessarily confined to the dry details of the text-book, but live teachers who can create an interest, and arouse an enthusiasm among the scholars, and impress upon their minds the great underlying principles of the various branches. The advantages of good discipline and good books are not to be overlooked ; but after all, the great fountain of instruction must always be the brain of the teacher. Lessen the efficiency of that, and the school is correspondingly paralyzed. Hence I urgently repeat the suggestions heretofore made that the Prudential Committees secure the best teachers, and as urgently request the people to furnish them with the necessary means to enable them to do so. No community can afford to encourage ignorance, and I am convinced that my fellow-citizens will never regret a few dollars extra for the support of the noblest of all the legacies bequeathed by our forefathers — our free common schools.

I invite the citizens of Rye to carefully consider the propriety of establishing a High School near the centre of the town. There are many advantages to be gained at a comparatively moderate cost; and if the proposition to build a Town Hall should be adopted, suitable apartments can be secured without much extra expense. The advantages to be derived from a good High School would be quickly observed in the increasing interest of our citizens in all matters pertaining to our schools, and a commendable rivalry among our scholars to secure its benefits.

During the past year some two hundred dollars has been expended in repairing and repainting the South School-House, and the building is once more in presentable condition. With proper care it will not need to be repaired again for several years to come.

One serious defect in the Centre School-House is the lack of proper ventilation. A good workman could remedy the matter in a few hours. I hope the Committee in that district will have it fixed before the commencement of another school.

I am informed that a petition is being circulated in the East District preliminary to the proposition to build a new school-house. This is a move in the right direction, and I trust it will be carried into practical execution without delay.

The dirty old hut in the West District, miscalled a school-house, "still lives" as a monument of disgrace to the good citizens of that district. The only hope seems to be in a reliance upon the intelligence and good sense of the citizens to pull down such miserable shanties, and erect more elegant and commodious structures. I affirm that there is not a family in Rye that would live twenty-four hours in the West School-House without doing something to improve it. Its interior decorations (?) and its surroundings are all disgusting and demoralizing; and I wish I could add to this well-known fact, the pleasing intelligence that some enterprising soap-boiler had its ashes.

During the past year map-drawing has been introduced and practiced to a greater or less extent in all the schools. The maps drawn by John A. Remick of the East School, a little boy only nine years of age, are worthy of mention, and indicate a natural talent of a high order.

Outline maps have been purchased in the East District, and I am pleased to note as a consequence, — a better interest in and knowledge of georaphy. I would say to the South and and Centre districts, “Go thou, and do likewise.”

A comparison of the statistics appended to this report with those of last year mainly exhibit a gratifying improvement in the right direction. The whole number of scholars has increased some over three per cent., the average attendance has increased about four and one-third per cent., while the number of citizens visiting the schools have nearly doubled. This indicates a better interest on the part of the parents which, I trust, will be continued in the future. Of the management of the schools in detail I will briefly allude.

In the South District the Summer Term was taught by Miss Mary L. Marston of North Hampton. This was Miss Marston’s first school, and she labored hard to make it a success; but the school was very much broken up during the last half of the term, in consequence of the large number of scholars who withdrew at the commencement of the “boarding” season. Twenty-two of the forty-two scholars were not present during the last six weeks of the school. The people of the district will do well to consider the propriety of having a Spring or Fall term, in order to avoid such a slim attendance during the months of July and August.

The Winter Term was taught by Nathan R. Goss of Rye, who succeeded in getting the school under excellent discipline, and at the close of the term a very marked and gratifying progress in the various classes under his instruction was observable. The examination was highly creditable to his management of the school.

In the West District, the Summer Term was taught by Miss Carrie E. Seavey of Greenland, who managed the school with good judgment, preserved excellent discipline, and the scholars made good improvement under her direction. The gymnastic exercises introduced were very pleasing and beneficial.

The Winter Term was taught by Miss Abbie S. Clark of Rye, who, as usual, succeeded in having an excellent school. Placed under such unfavorable circumstances, it might have been expected that her efforts would have resulted in a failure. There is nothing in or about the old trap of a School-House, that is elevating in its tendency; and when children are sent to such a place, it would be almost a miracle to expect much interest in the school. Miss Clark, however, performed her part faithfully, and at the close of the term her scholars presented a very creditable appearance.

In the Centre District the Summer Term was taught by Miss Abbie S. Clark of Rye, which was sufficient guarantee of the excellence of the School.

The Winter Term was commenced by Harrison Philbrick of Kittery, Maine. Mr. P. is a good scholar, and a gentleman, but did not succeed in preserving that discipline so necessary to make a successful school. At the end of four weeks, Mr. Philbrick deemed it expedient to resign his position, and the balance of the term (8 weeks) was taught by the author of this report.

The school was a very pleasant one to me, and I trust the scholars made some improvement while under my charge.

In the East District the Summer Term was taught by Miss Flora L. Haines of Deerfield. During my visits to her school I saw evidence of good discipline and good progress. On account of temporary sickness I was not present on the day of examination, but was assured by competent authority that it was a success.

The Winter Term was taught by Miss Delle E. Haines of Deerfield. Miss Haines is a well educated, and very energetic teacher—one who imparts instruction intelligently and thoroughly. In regard to discipline, I have never heard of the boys putting pepper on the stove or blowing smoke through the key-hole when she was around. Should any of the "rising generation" attempt such little antics in her presence, I am confident that there will be an "unpleasantness" at once. The classes on examination day acquitted themselves in a very creditable manner.

The exhibition on the following evening was largely attended, and was a success highly complimentary to the scholars engaged in it.

The summary of statistics, and the names of scholars who have merited a notice for regular and punctual attendance will be found in the usual place, appended to the Report herewith submitted for your consideration.
