REPORT

OF THE

Superintending School Committee,

OF THE

TOWN OF RYE, N. H.,

FOR THE YEAR ENDING MARCH 1, 1872.

BOSTON:

PRESS OF W. & E. HOWE, 39 MERCHANTS ROW.

REPORT.

FELLOW CITIZENS:

In presenting my fourth annual report, I am pleased to congratulate you upon the evident prosperity of all our schools. During the year there has been no serious difficulties in any of the Districts, and but little has occurred to mar the harmony that should always exist between parents, teachers and scholars. I am gratified to note among the people, an apparently increasing interest in the subject of our common schools, and a disposition to provide generously for their support. The sum of three hundred dollars, which the people at the last annual meeting, voted to raise in excess of any previous appropriation, make the total amount of our school money twelve hundred dollars. This is a very liberal sum, but should be increased, rather than decreased.

We should build up our educational interests, and elevate them to the highest possible standard. Make our schools model ones. Bring them to a degree of perfection that will excite the pride and admiration of every citizen. This is no vain dream, or idle wish, but can be made a living reality if all provide liberally, and work unitedly for the public good.

I am fully persuaded that none of our important interests in life have received so little attention from the people at large, as those relating to our common schools. Careful, industrious, prudent people, who admirably manage every trifling detail of business, have imagined that they had nothing at stake in the school-room. No mistake could be more fatal. The whole community suffers for the misdeeds of its individual members. Consequently, nothing can be of more importance than that which moulds the growing intelligence aright, gives proper direction to thought, and imparts to the energy of youth a noble and worthy ambition. Nowhere are impressions more readily received, and more vividly remembered than in the school-room; hence I have, on all proper occasions, urged the absolute necessity of employing the best teachers regardless of a few dollars a month extra wages. It is the poorest kind of poor economy to hire cheap teachers. The result will be cheap schools in every sense of the word.

The moulding of the youthful intellect and shaping of future character is, in a great measure, in the hands of the teachers; and, as a class, they take no "back seats," in shaping the destinies of mankind.

Therefore I would renew the suggestions previously made, and urge the committee to hire only such teachers as are known to possess the proper qualifications to teach and govern. They should be persons who have the ability to make their instruction practical, and who can originate ideas and illustrations outside of the dull pages of the text book.

The mass of our children do not need elaborate, high-flown theories, but plain, practical knowledge, adapted to the various business pursuits of every-day life. It may cost us three or four hundred dollars more per year to provide and support first-class schools, but will not the benefits derived more than balance the increased expenditure? An additional tax of only one dollar per voter, would give us upwards of $1500, for school purposes.

Some arrangements ought to be made for a High School, either public or private. Hundreds of dollars are annually expended in sending our scholars abroad, which might be saved if we had a High School of our own. Those who have not the means to send their children away to school, would then be able to educate them in the higher branches at comparatively little expense.

All these contemplated improvements will undoubtedly be met by some matter-of-fact individuals, who propound the ever-recurring query, "what's the use?" I answer, "what's the use" of anything? "What's the use" of having a mowing machine when scythes are in the market? or of riding in the cars when coaches are made, or of telegraphing to Turkey in a minute, when it would take only a month to send by mail? The individuals who ask such questions are oblivious to Gallileo's discovery that "the world moves," and forget that they are living in a time that requires inventive, genuine and increasing intelligence. They serve a very useful purpose however. They stand as fossilized mile-stones upon the railway of intelligence, vainly endeavoring to stop the engine of progress as it thunders along and knocks them right and left,

We are a law-abiding and intelligent community, and we must keep pace with the spirit of the age, by providing for our children all the necessary means for their Education.

During the past year a very commodious, and elegant school house has been erected in the West District, at an expense of nearly two thousand dollars. Owing to unfortunate divisions of opinion, the District refused to build, and upon petition, the Selectmen assumed the direction of affairs, as they were compelled to do by law. Whatever ill feeling existed has mostly subsided, and now that the house is built and paid for, I am sure the good people of the District will regard it with feelings of pride, and wish it to remain a monument to their liberality and intelligence. The District is largely indebted to the generosity of William J. Rand, Esq., who donated a suitable building lot, thereby saving considerable additional expense. The house is very conveniently arranged, properly ventilated, and furnished with modern desks and chairs. The blackboards are a miserable failure, and ought to be "reconstructed" at once.

The East District enjoys the unenviable distinction of having the meanest school-room in this, or any other locality. A new school-house, or a grave yard, will have to be provided immediately. No child can occupy the wall benches in a cold day, except at the imminent risk of life and health. In such a hovel, everything is cheerless and gloomy, and wears the aspect of degradation and decay. Children sent from elegant and comfortable homes to such a place, soon become restless and discouraged, and sigh for the comforts of the pauper-house and penitentiary, as a welcome relief. I do earnestly hope the citizens of the District will build a house worthy of the name, for the accommodation of their well-behaved and intelligent children.

The Bill passed at the last session of the State Legislature, regarding compulsory attendance, was, I presume, designed for remedying the growing evil of non-attendance in the large cities and villages of the State. As far as I have heard of its operation in the small country towns, it is practically a dead letter.

I deem it of sufficient importance to call the attention of my fellow citizens to the Educational Bill recently passed by the United States House of Representatives at Washington. The bill is evidently intended for a stepping-stone to a series of movements purposely designed to wrest from the people the control of their schools, and give over to the creatures of political power the great educational interests of the land. Whether the Bill becomes a law or not, its passage in one branch of Congress, and its approval by scheming politicians, ought to be enough to awaken our suspicions and arouse our energies in opposition to this seeming attempt to put our schools under the control of party managers.

It will be expected that I shall briefly notice the management of the different schools, and I am glad to find so much to commend, and so little deserving of censure.

In the South District the Summer term was taught by Miss Annie D. Jenness of Rye. The school was not large, but very quiet and orderly, and exhibited a good degree of improvement at the close of the term.

A Fall Term of eight weeks was taught by Miss Flora L. Haines of Manchester. The scholars made good progress for a short term, and at the close gave evidence of practical instruction. The Exhibition given in the evening was an exhibition of considerable besides the original programme, although the scholars appeared to good advantage throughout. Having accidentally lost the Register of the Summer Term, I have substituted in the place designed for it, the statistics of the Fall Term. I regret that circumstances render this necessary, but this explanation will call the attention of the careful reader to the omission.

The Winter Term was taught by the Author of this Report, which fact precludes me from making further comment. The school has been a very pleasant one to me, and I think I have sufficient evidence to justify me in saying that the scholars under my direction, have made some improvement.

In the West District there was no Summer Term, as matters were then in a transition state, from old to new.

The Winter Term, not yet finished, is under the direction of Charles J. Brown of Rye, a gentleman sufficiently well known in school circles, to need no encomium from one of his former pupils. The school labors under the disadvantage of having had no Summer Term, but is bravely making up for lost time. The figures relating to the West School are compiled from Mr. Brown's Register for a period of eight weeks. At the present time (March 1st,) it is uncertain how many weeks longer the term will continue.

In the Centre District the Summer Term was taught by Miss Abbie S. Clarke of Rye. Miss Clarke is a diligent and faithful teacher, and always has a good school. I cannot, by repetition, add to the weight of the many deserved compliments I have bestowed upon her in my previous Reports.

The Winter Term was taught by Miss Belinda S. Bunker of Rye. The school under her charge made excellent progress in all their studies, and at the close exhibited a most creditable appearance. The discipline was unexceptionable, some thought a little too rigid; but I can tolerate almost any amount of zeal in the right direction. I am sure that all who visited the school at the close, must admit that Miss Bunker had something to show for her good order, and all those who were, during the term, a little restless under wholesome restraint, will soon learn in Life's hard school, that Firmness should be the companion of Kindness, and that the hand that directs must sometimes restrain.

In the East District, both terms were taught by Miss Delle E. Haines of Manchester, who is a very thorough, practical, and energetic teacher. She ruleth her school as seemeth best to her, and feareth not the face of clay. She questioneth her classes at will, and fleeth not at the Committee-man's approach.

In my four years' management of the schools of Rye, I have endeavored to so arrange the instruction, as to have it thorough, and practical, keeping ever in view, not "How much"? but "How well"? In closing I desire to once more express my thanks for the hearty co-operation of numerous friends, especially the teachers and committees, and to assure them that their labors to elevate our schools have been appreciated.

The summary of statistics, the names of school officers, and the names of scholars who were regular and punctual in their attendance, will be found appended to this Report as usual.

All of which is respectfully submitted.
