REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDING SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

DISTRICT No. 1, Stephen Slade, prudential committee. Miss Lizzie E. Alden was employed to teach the summer term. The school appeared orderly, and made fair advancement. Length of term, 8 weeks. Whole number of scholars, 10. Average attendance, 9. Tardy marks, 19. Whole number of visits, 16.

The winter term, taught by Mr. W. J. Prentiss, of Walpole, was a very pleasant school, there being an unusual proportion of large scholars. We deeply regret that the condition of the roads prevented our being present at the close. The school made a fine appearance early in the term, and gave promise of much success. Length of term, 12 weeks. Whole number of scholars, 16. Average attendance, 15. Tardy marks, 14. Visits, 23.

DISTRICT No. 2, A. J. Chandler, prudential committee. The first term was commenced by Miss Ella J. Cross, of Gilsum. At the time of our first visit, contrary to expectation, we found several large scholars and, with one exception, the largest school in town. Early in the term, reports of dissatisfaction reached us. Although we found testimony somewhat conflicting, we could not see success awaiting the school, and advised the teacher to withdraw.

The services of Miss Emily M. Greene were procured for the remainder of the term. Fortunately, she possessed the confidence of the district, and accomplished a very commendable work. Length of school, 10 weeks. Whole number of scholars, 20. Average attendance, 17. Instances of tardiness, 12. Visits, 21.

During the fall term, the school was brought to a higher educational standing, through the efforts of Mr. W. J. Prentiss, of Walpole. One scholar did not misspell a word during the term. We observed a few instances of marked improvement. No district in Alstead has greater need of thoroughly good teachers. There is decided latent talent in this school which such teachers only can develop. Length of school, 13 weeks. Number of scholars, 18. Average attendance, 16. Tardy marks, 16. Visits, 22.

DISTRICT No. 3, Azel Hatch, prudential committee. Miss Leola Holden, of Langdon, taught the first term. The scholars were few, and but little emulation could be excited. Miss Holden did all that could be expected in a term of six weeks: preserving good order and evidently promoting the best interests of the school. Length of term, 5 weeks. Number of scholars, 8. Average attendance, 7. Tardy marks, 10. Visitors, 18.

Winter term. This school was fortunate in the selection of its teacher, Mr. B. J. Gibson. Having good literary ability and the faculty of clearly presenting a subject to the mind of the pupil, good improvement is assured. The interest of the school was enhanced by the study of the higher branches by the more advanced scholars. Greatly to our disappointment, we were unable to be present at the examination, but understand that it was a success. Length of term, 12 weeks. Number of scholars, 15. Average attendance, 13. Tardy marks, 46. Visits, 20.

DISTRICT No. 5, James A. Linsley, prudential committee. Both summer and fall terms were taught by Miss E. Eva Seaman, of Marlow. Refined in manner, of good attainments, having a natural fitness for and fully devoted to the work, her success was well-nigh complete. The respectful deportment of the scholars, their interest in study, and the advance made are worthy of commendation. First term, length of school, 11 weeks. Number of scholars, 22. Average attendance, 20. Tardy marks, 3. Visits, 55. Second term, length of school, 13 weeks. Number of scholars, 29. Average attendance, 27. Tardy marks, 4. Visits, 38.

DISTRICT No. 6, A. D. Beckwith, prudential committee. The only term was conducted by Mrs. Amelia C. Beckwith, a teacher of large experience. The school was made quite interesting and profitable to the few scholars who attended. Would it not be expedient as well as appropriate for all teachers to apply for a certificate for the year then current, without which they are entitled to no compensation and have no authority? Length of school, 11 weeks. Number of scholars, 3. Average attendance, 3 nearly. Tardy marks, 0. Visits, 1.

DISTRICT No. 7, R. E. Gates, prudential committee. Miss Emma I. Bingham, of Gilsum, had charge of the school for three terms, average improvement being made. Miss B. evinces several good qualities for a teacher, but is yet young, and should give time to a thorough preparation; then, placing her school under strict subjection, will make a very good teacher. The "Roll of Honor" is especially worthy of remark, surpassing in number that of any other school. Spring term, length of term, 9 weeks. Number of scholars, 14. Average attendance, 13. Tardy marks, 0. Visits, 47. Fall term, length of term, 6 weeks. Number of scholars, 18. Average attendance, 16. Tardy marks, 0. Visits, 26. Winter term, length of term, 9 weeks.

Number of scholars, 13. Average attendance, 12. Number of tardy marks, 0. Visits, 16. The scholars of No. 7 may take just pride in the entire absence of tardy marks for the year, a result rarely attained.

DISTRICT No. 8, W. Goodhue, prudential committee. The first and second terms were under the instruction of Miss Nellie F. Goodhue. This was her first experience in teaching, and was quite satisfactory, the scholars being orderly and making decided advancement. The teacher gave very full explanations, which greatly promoted the good of the school. Miss G. has very good literary attainments. We observe that teachers of moderate ability do not illustrate or explain. Spring term, length of school, 7 weeks. Number of scholars, 6. Average, 5. Tardy marks, 6. Visits, 11. Fall term, length of school, 10 weeks. Number of scholars, 7. Average, 5. Tardy marks, 7. Visits, 5.

DISTRICT No. 9, Amasa Holt, prudential committee. This district having no school house, a room in the dwelling of Charles H. Lucas was used for school purposes. The scholars were studious, their progress was commendable, their deportment excellent. Sarah M. Wood, teacher. Spring term, length of school, 7 weeks. Number of scholars, 8. Average attendance, 7. Tardy marks, 0. Visits, 12. Fall term, length of school, 9 weeks. Number of scholars, 6. Average, 5. Tardy marks, 7. Visits, 5.

DISTRICT No. 10, James A. Kidder, prudential committee. This school was placed in care of Miss Abbie M. Kidder. By carefully observing the marks of punctuation, some of the scholars would make very good readers, and would, under careful training, excel in other branches. While it is necessary that the rules of the text-book be well committed, it is of paramount importance that they be distinctly understood. Spring term, 7 weeks. Number of scholars, 3. Average attendance, 3 nearly. Tardy marks, 0. Visits, 11. Fall term, 9 weeks. Number of scholars, 6. Average, 4. Tardy marks, 7. Visits, 13.

DISTRICT No. 11, A. W. Partridge, prudential committee. First term. This was a well taught and well governed school, being characterized by several important elements of success, among which were thoroughness and good order. To those schools that require disciplining, we especially recommend Miss Hattie F. Perkins, of Marlow. Length of school, 6 weeks. Average attendance, 8. Tardy marks, 11. Visits, 4. This school ranked first in "average attendance," no absences having occurred during the term.

The second term was taught by Miss Etta A. Newell, a working teacher, and one of our best. Let those who attempt to teach without hard work be disabused of the fallacy that they will ever succeed. Listlessness and inactivity are not attributes of a good instructor. Although the term was short and interrupted by sickness, the scholars passed one of the best examinations we have attended. Length of term, 8 weeks. Number of scholars, 14. Average attendance, 11. Tardy marks, 2. Visits, 29.

DISTRICT No. 12, James A. Browne, prudential committee. Both summer and winter terms were in charge of Miss Effie M. Taylor as teacher. The examination indicated a good degree of improvement, a few scholars doing especially well. First term, length of school, 9 weeks. Number of scholars, 15. Average, 14. Tardy marks, 16. Visits, 13. Second term, length of school, 11 weeks. Number of scholars, 15. Average, 13. Instances of tardiness, 5. Visits, 26.

DISTRICT No. 13, George D. Clarke, prudential committee. The first term was instructed by Miss Nora M. Allan, of South Aeworth. More energy would have enhanced the value of the school. Without good health a teacher labors under serious disadvantages. Length of school, 8 weeks. Number of scholars, 10. Average attendance, 9. Instances of tardiness, 9. Visits, 15.

Second term. Several scholars in this school are diffident in the presence of visitors, and fail to do themselves justice in the examinations. We have, however, more hope of a bashful scholar than of one excessively bold. At the close good order prevailed, more improvement being made than in the previous term. Dean L. Allan, of South Acworth, teacher. Length of school, 12 weeks. Whole number of scholars, 11. Average number, 10. Tardy marks, 6. Visits, 38.

ITEMS.

We commend the action of Dist. No. 11 to the attention of several other districts. The school house, having been thoroughly repaired and made neat, comfortable, and attractive, is now without a superior in the town.

In purchasing text-books, we recommend Harpers' Geography, Greenleaf's Arithmetics, the Franklin Readers, and Greene's Analysis for advanced classes in grammar, uniformity in the use of the above being now practically secured. Harpers' Geography, introduced the past year, has proved a work of rare excellence, and the interest in the study has greatly improved thereby.

It is to be regretted that so many leave our schools at an early age, since few of them ever attend the higher institutions of learning. A possible reason for this is seen where very young teachers are employed.

The following statistics, while throwing some light upon the condition of schools, may also be of interest in comparing the past year with an average of former years in certain particulars.

Yearly average for the four years preceding the past: Aggregate length of school in weeks, summer and winter terms, 273.

Aggregate number of scholars as above, 399. Average number, 342.

Percentage of attendance, .86, nearly. Instances of tardiness, 427; visits, 650.

For the past year. Aggregate length of schools, 277 weeks. Number of scholars, 420. Average attendance, 377. Percentage of attendance, .90, nearly. Instances of tardiness, 249; visits, 556. There has been a material increase in the number of scholars not absent or tardy. The above includes district No. 4, in both instances.

ROLL OF HONOR.

GENERAL REMARKS.

Teachers, although passing good examinations generally, have, in some instances, failed to do all that was expected of them.

Since the want of order is productive of more failures than all other causes combined, since work is the great need in the schoolroom, and fidelity the great need of the teacher, we suggest to such as cannot or will not preserve order, who cannot or will not devote their entire energies to the performance of duty, that they seek other employments or reform radically, and at once, their methods of teaching.

We are impelled to speak plainly upon this point.

In you has been reposed a momentous trust; to you has been committed a most important charge.

Upon your fidelity greatly depends the future good or ill of those under your care.

The influences you exert will endure for all time ; unconsciously perhaps, you are molding the pliant mind into forms which, once fixed, you have not the power to change.

Can it be, then, that any, knowing their inability and unfitness, will attempt to enter upon this responsible calling?

Are such dealing justly with themselves—with their employers, and above all, with those who are looking to them as a pattern, instructor and guide? Your candid consideration of this matter is solicited.

Again, it is an error fatal to satisfactory results, to employ inferior teachers in small or backward schools.

If such have only a minor claim upon education ; if it is desirable that backward scholars remain such, then placing a second-rate teacher in charge, the result is not doubtful.

We are now fully convinced that such a course is not the part of wisdom or economy. It is urged that the appropriation is small, and cheap teachers make longer terms ; it is not the length of school that determines improvement, but the quality of the teacher and the degree of parental co-operation. Many have little claim to scholarship, simply from the want of proper training.

To awaken the mind to greater activity, and place it in the way of rapid advancement, is peculiarly the province of skilled instructors. To employ others is to place a premium upon ignorance.

Respectfully submitted,

GEORGE A. MAYO,

Superintendent of Schools.

To the SUPERINTENDING SCHOOL COMMITTEE of the town of ALSTEAD:

The Board of Education of school district No. 4 beg leave to submit the following report of the schools in said district for the year ending March 1st, 1879.

In the Grammar Department there have been two terms. The summer term was commenced by Miss Mary E. Milliken, but, on account of sudden and severe illness, she was obliged to abandon it soon after the commencement.

The school was immediately placed in charge of Miss Nellie Weatherhead, of South Vernon, Vt. Miss Weatherhead is a first-class teacher, and thoroughly fitted to discharge the duties of her vocation. Under her instruction, the school made good progress.

The winter term was taught by Miss Agnes J. Graves, of Claremont. Miss Graves is an experienced and successful teacher, being able not only to win the respect of her pupils, but also to impart to them a thorough knowledge of the principles of the several branches which they study. This has been a profitable school, and Miss Graves has maintained her former reputation as a good teacher.

In the Primary Department there have also been two terms, both taught by Miss Nellie M. Fiske, who has taught in this department several terms, and always with entire success. Miss Fiske is peculiarly adapted to teaching and training small children, and parents feel the same confidence in placing them under her care they would if under their own watchful eye.

We regard the schools in this district as quite successful, and with the same good feeling and hearty cooperation as now exists on the part of the district, and with good teachers, our schools will become all that can be desired.
