The Library was indeed fortunate this year to have a Police Department, in cooperation with the Fire Department, to maintain law and order in our city. The police department, including the younger people, is a unit in a solid front in the war against crime.

Today the police officer is taxed daily to the limit of his or her ability to police our community and make it a suitable place for our children to live and grow up.

The Library continues to provide valuable service to its patrons. This year, the Library added the following to its collection:

- The Matching Funds program is still limited to 20 schools, but the Children's Room is still busy with young readers.
- Start classes, and over 180 seventh graders. The course in Criminal Interrogation at St. Anselm's College was attended by 10 students.
- Teachers attending with their pupils were Mr. Charles Paris volunteering a hand. First Aid and this was termed a success.
- In May all classes ended and our patrons to the collections of the State Library can expect to find the best of fiction and non-fiction materials to the extent that it is possible for the library to provide copies of non-fiction materials.
- The police mandate is to enlist the cooperation and support of all the members of a community, but the attitude of the public toward enlistment is a problem.
- Conditions which affect the amount and type of crime include the density and size of the community, the social and economic conditions, the educational level of the population, the availability of jobs, and the general level of unemployment. The police department must be prepared to deal with these problems, but with the close cooperation between the police department and the public, we may effectively fulfill the police mandate.

A number of books were added to the Library's collection, and the Library was able to provide copies of non-fiction materials. The Library is fortunate this year to have a Police Department, in cooperation with the Fire Department, to maintain law and order in our city.
