THE ANNUAL REPORT

OF THE

Superintending School Committee.

—o—

DISTRICT NO. 1.

HENRY NOYES, Prudential Committee.

Teacher for first and second terms, Miss Mary D. Webster, an experienced and faithful teacher, admirably fitted for her work. The school in her hands, was quiet, orderly, pleasant and profitable. The winter term was taught by Miss Mary L. Thomas. The teacher labored diligently for the advancement of her pupils in their several studies, but it was her second school and like many young teachers failed in her efforts to properly govern it, and as good discipline is essential to thorough work in any school, this term, although pleasant to the pupils, was not as profitable as the preceding ones.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

Alfred P. Emerson, Prudential Committee.

The first and second terms of the schools were taught by Miss Laura P. Leach. The practical and common-sense method of instruction pursued by this teacher was productive of the best results. The third term was commenced by Miss Clara A. Lane who came highly recommended and doubtless would have succeeded in other schools in town, but was not adapted to this one. After a trial of three weeks she voluntarily retired from the situation. The remainder of the term was in charge of Miss Phebe A. McGuire. Fortunately she possessed the requisite physical force and executive ability and pursued a course of discipline that was salutary in its effects, but we think under the circumstances, a more vigorous course of treatment would have been justifiable and productive of still better results. The teacher labored faithfully and well, and the progress made was as good as could be expected considering the demoralized condition of the school when she assumed charge of it. There exists among certain members of this school a spirit of insubordination and a disregard for the feelings of their teacher that is anything but commendable and detracts much from the usefulness and progress of the schools. To subdue this spirit and overcome the evil the teacher needs the hearty co-operation of every parent in the district.

DISTRICT NO 3.

Dr. J. C. EASTMAN, Prudential Committee.

Teacher, Miss Mary Alice Nichols. The interest manifested by the parents and the good feeling existing between parents, teacher and pupils made this school a peculiarly pleasant one. The general progress of the school was good, some branches above the average, while in others a little lack of thoroughness was noticed. A little more thorough discipline in this school is desirable.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

NELSON ORDWAY, Esq., Prudential Committee.

Teacher, Miss Annie E. George. This school is under excellent discipline and the faithful efforts of the teacher are apparent on every hand. The increased number of pupils in the winter term is due to accessions from other districts. Four towns and six districts being represented in this school.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

This district labored under peculiar difficulties during the first part of the year from its hampered condition, but with commendable zeal inaugurated and sustained a private school for a term of six weeks, consisting of six pupils and taught by Miss Abbie Randall. In some respects this was not a very promising field of labor but the teacher gave her best efforts to the work. In process of time Horace Adams was appointed prudential committee. Teacher, Miss Alice M. Little. The teacher in taking charge of the school resolved to labor to the best of her abilities for the improvement of her pupils, but failed to secure that control over her school as was desirable. The progress made by the school, considering its limited advantages compared favorably with other schools. This school in the past has been mainly in the hands of inexperienced teachers..

What it especially needs is, to be in charge of an experienced teacher and a good disciplinarian.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

Frank P. Webber, Prudential Committee.

Miss Sophia Moulton, Teacher.

The school when in charge of this veteran teacher is always a success.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

Joseph H. Grant, Prudential Committee.

Miss Hattie K. Friend, Teacher.

She came well recommended, was wide awake, energetic, enjoyed her work and secured the good will of her pupils. Her method of teaching was interesting, instructive and quite satisfactory in its results. The second term was taught by Miss Almira J. Eaton, a teacher of experience and ability. The result was an excellent term of school with improved discipline.

In review I would say that our teachers have been faithful and industrious. A majority of them rank high in their profession, four of them have received the benefits of Normal instruction, and the work by them performed furnished good evidence of the practical value of that course of training. Let our criticisms be tempered with charity and remember that teachers are not responsible for irregularity of attendance or defective training at home and that it requires superior tact and ability to properly govern a pupil in school that is not under good discipline at home.

Our prudential committees have been faithful in the discharge of their duties, and we commend the course adopted by most of them in employing the same teacher throughout the year, believing that, as a general rule, it is for the best interests of our schools so to do. If our present school district system is to be continued, some measures should be taken by which a more equal distribution of school money could be made in districts Nos. 2, 3 and 4, as the following figures plainly show : Amount of school money raised by taxation for the current year and apportioned to those districts is as follows: To No. 2 $293.82; No. 3, $123.72; No. 4, $252.74. Average for the districts $223.42. Could Nos. 2, 3, 4 and 5 be included in three districts and the money equally divided between them, each district would then receive an amount nearly equal to that now received by No. 4.

Such an arrangement would give each district three terms of school a year under the charge of first-class teachers.

HIGH SCHOOL.

Our High School is governed by a Board of Trustees and does not properly come under the jurisdiction of your committee, and I am well aware that it is not generally referred to in the annual report, still it holds an important place in our educational system, and I trust it will not be out of place for me to briefly refer to it in this connection. Since the organization of the school in 1875, down to the close of the last year, covering the space of six years, one hundred and fourteen different pupils have attended the school. Of this number only seven have completed the full course of study and received diplomas. It is hoped in the future that a much larger per cent of the pupils will finish the course, and from present indications we infer that such will be the case.

The first four years of the school were under the tuition of Miron P. Dickey, A. M., whose faithful labors are fresh in the minds of most of you, since which time the school has been in the charge of Forrest E. Merrill, A. M., who has continued the work so well commenced by his predecessor.

The Trustees have endeavored to keep the school up to the maximum number of pupils by pursuing this course, more classes have been formed than the teacher can well attend to, or is profitable for a school of this kind.

From careful observation in the past we are forced to the conclusion that the preparatory course of study allowed to be taken here, can be pursued at far greater advantage in the district schools. It is very desirable to raise the standard of scholarship. This can be accomplished by reducing the number of pupils, but a far better way is, for every pupil that enters the school to firmly resolve if possible, to persevere to the end and receive a diploma. The school is in need of apparatus and books of reference which the Trustees would gladly furnish if they had the means at hand, but they are under the necessity of practicing the most rigid economy to give you three terms of school and keep the premises in proper repair.

Respectfully submitted,

WM. C. LITTLE, Supt. School Com.
