REPORT OF THE

Superintending School Committee.

Summer Schools.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

Miss Martha A. Muzzy was engaged to teach this school. Laboring earnestly and faithfully for the improvement of her pupils, her labors were crowned with success. She is known as a teacher of experience and energy.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

This district employed Miss Frances M. Butler to take charge of their school. And it was very fortunate in securing her services, as a teacher of experience and faithfulness. It was a very successful term of school.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

The school in this district was taught by Miss Margie D. Forsaith. This was her first term as teacher, and a word of encouragement is due from the committee for her care and fidelity in her work, and the commendable success attending the effort.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

In this school, for the summer term, Miss Martha E. Chase, of Weare, was engaged as teacher. The school was composed mostly of small scholars. Having a kind teacher, a pleasant and comfortable school-room, the school enjoyed a good degree of prosperity.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

Miss Elvira E. Forsaith was engaged in instructing this school for the summer. This was the largest school in town, crowded into one of the most uncomfortable houses that could well be imagined. We are happy to say it was for the last time. Since the summer school closed, a new and commodious house has been erected, which reflects much honor on the district. We think the district would do well to secure the services of Miss Forsaith another term.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

The district engaged the services of Miss Helen A. Clough, of Manchester, to teach their school for the summer. We visited the school at its commencement and found it in good order. Not being notified of its close, we are unable to report the progress made.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

Miss H. Arvilla Hastings taught this school. The closing examination was very creditable to both teacher and scholars, and truly satisfactory to the committee and all concerned.

DISTRICT NO. 8.

In this school, Miss Sarah A. Gove was engaged to teach for the summer term. It was found a very quiet and orderly school. At the closing examination a number of the scholars were absent. Those who were present appeared to have made good improvement in their studies.

DISTRICT NO. 9.

This school was favored with the services of Miss Carrie E. Bell, of Bennington, for the term under consideration. The teacher appears to be at home in the school-room, making it pleasant for herself and profitable for the school.

DISTRICT NO. 10.

We believe there was a term of school in this district. As no certificate or register was called for, we are unable to report.

DISTRICT NO. 11.

Miss Nellie H. Gove, of Weare, taught in this district. There are but two scholars resident in this district. A number of scholars came in from No. 3, making a small school. This district should be united with No. 3.

HENRY GOVE, Sup. School Com.

Winter Schools.

FELLOW-CITIZENS: In compliance with the laws of the State, I hereby submit my report for the few months which it has been my privilege to serve. And in performing the work, I am persuaded that I have found even more interest felt on the part of the inhabitants of the town in this work than I had anticipated. The schools have been visited by parents and others, showing that they cared for the coming generation. And when we reflect that it has long since been said "the churches and school-houses were the bulwarks of our land," and that the scenes of the past years have done much to prove it so, we may well think our interest in behalf of the common school is not in vain. So when we think of the vast difference between the educated and the uneducated, whatever their station or calling in life—the practical knowledge and the increased mental power of the one over the other—and the fact that the educated are less likely to fall into crime, and if they do so, they are in a position in which there is more hope of their reformation, we have additional reason to think all the interest we may take in this work is not in vain. As we think also of the relation of this generation of boys and girls, and of young men and women to us of the present active generation—and of their relation to that which is to come after them—that it is for them to transmit whatever they may find desirable socially, politically and morally in us to the generation of their children, with whatever improvements they may desire, we must know that we cannot be found taking too great an interest in this work. What lover of his country or of humanity can fail to be interested?

And as we think of the accumulating influence to be exerted by the present generation of the young on society, the country and the world, who can fail to feel an accumulated responsibility coming upon him as he has anything to do in this work?

New England is said to be "the brains of the country." And who can doubt that it has, and is destined in future, to exert a leading influence in the country, and, by its intelligence, a controlling influence? And what community or people of equal extent has or is destined to exert a more extensive and happy influence on human kind the world over than this same New England, and that in consequence of the facilities it provides itself for this universal education?

And I know that I speak the sentiments of all parents, worthy the name, in saying we are more than willing that our children should be found doing better for themselves and the world than we have been able to do. This advance over us, of usefulness and happiness to themselves and others, we think it is very generally supposed is to be secured through a good education.

And no man of intelligence will question that the money expended to secure an education for the business of life is the most safe and profitable investment that can be made to secure the well-being of the children educated, and a community of law-abiding and law-sustaining citizens.

I may say my association with the teachers has been peculiarly pleasant to me and I hope to them. We have been very fortunate in securing teachers of ability and integrity, most of them having had considerable experience in the work and an ardent love for it.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

This school was taught by Mr. George C. Patten. At our first visit there was manifested a marked restlessness and tendency to disorder on the part of some of the larger scholars. But through the kind and persevering energy of the teacher, this was entirely done away and good order secured, as witnessed at the last visit of the committee. The school made commendable improvement for so short a term.

Mr. P. proves an acceptable and profitable instructor. This school is the only one in town, which has retained the unwise custom of fastening out their teacher on new year's day. They who do this are depriving themselves of a precious privilege, and doing a serious injustice to others, and bringing disrepute upon the district.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

The district secured the services of Miss Elvira J. Buckman, as teacher for the winter term. She is a lady of experience in her calling, and inculcates on her pupils the importance of learning faithfully what they attempt. The closing visit bore witness to thoroughness in teaching and study. A goodly number have their names recorded as not having whispered without permission, and that, while the teacher tells them it is preferable to do so half a dozen times to uttering a falsehood once.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

Miss Martha A. Muzzy was employed to take charge of this school. There was good order manifested in this school and commendable advancement made in the studies pursued. This was the third term of this teacher in this school, and we think quite as satisfactory to all concerned as any previous one. The house needs some repairs for the comfort and success of the school.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

This district employed Mr. S. Garland Blanchard, of Hillsborough to teach their school. By diligent, and earnest attention to the studies pursued by teacher and pupils, there was manifest progress during the term. Parents and scholars have co-operated with the teacher, much to the advantage of the school. Here we notice that quite a portion of the school refrain from whispering, to their credit. Mr. B.'s influence on the school is of the right character.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

The school in this district was taught by Mr. John F. Chase. The district has done itself credit in building a new and commodious house, well fitted to the convenience and comfort of all the inmates. In visiting the school we witnessed the most perfect order, giving promise that the term would be one of profit. The closing visit confirmed our expectations. The teacher remarks—"the scholars govern themselves." And this they do to their credit and profit. The greater portion voluntarily refrain from whispering. Mr. C.'s long and successful experience in the work makes him a profitable teacher. Seven in the district did not attend the school. I am afraid they will not make good scholars, or good citizens, if voluntarily absent.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

The district had no school for this term.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

Mr. Titus Brown of Francestown, was engaged in teaching this school.— This was the teacher's first attempt in the business, but by careful and persevering exertion he succeeded in awakening the pupils' interest to a diligent attention to their studies, and secured the desired result of commendable progress in the various branches pursued.

DISTRICT NO. 8.

This school was in charge of Mr. B. L. Bartlett for the winter term. We are informed that two in this small district did not attend school. How much did they learn? Not so much as they might have done. Mr. B. is well known as a teacher in the district, having taught for a period of five months before this term. A man of life and energy, he inspires his pupils with a like spirit. Success manifestly attended the efforts of this school, and it is to be classed among the most respectful and orderly.

DISTRICT No. 9.

Mr. Samuel T. Dutton, of Hillsborough, was engaged in teaching this school. At its commencement it promised to be a profitable term. Not being able to visit it at its close we failed to witness for ourselves the progress, but have reason to believe that it was a successful effort. For a first effort the teacher has reason to be encouraged.
