DURHAM, NH – Most Granite Staters are paying attention to the Ebola outbreak, but few are concerned their family members will contract it. New Hampshire residents are also aware of ISIS and most believe it poses a threat to the country. A majority believe that illegal immigration is a very serious problem and half of Granite Staters favor allowing a path to allow immigrants living here illegally to become citizens.

These findings are based on the latest WMUR Granite State Poll,* conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. Five hundred and forty-three (543) randomly selected New Hampshire adults were interviewed by landline and cellular telephone between October 6 and October 13, 2014. The margin of sampling error for the survey is +/- 4.2 percent.

Ebola

Although the Ebola outbreak has been raging in West Africa for the better part of this year, it has increasingly made headlines here in the United States with the death of one man and the infection of two health workers who cared for him. Granite Staters are paying attention to the outbreak – 39% say they are watching the situation very closely, 46% somewhat closely, 12% not too closely and 3% not at all closely. Republicans (52%) are more likely to be watching the outbreak very closely than Independents (34%) and Democrats (32%).

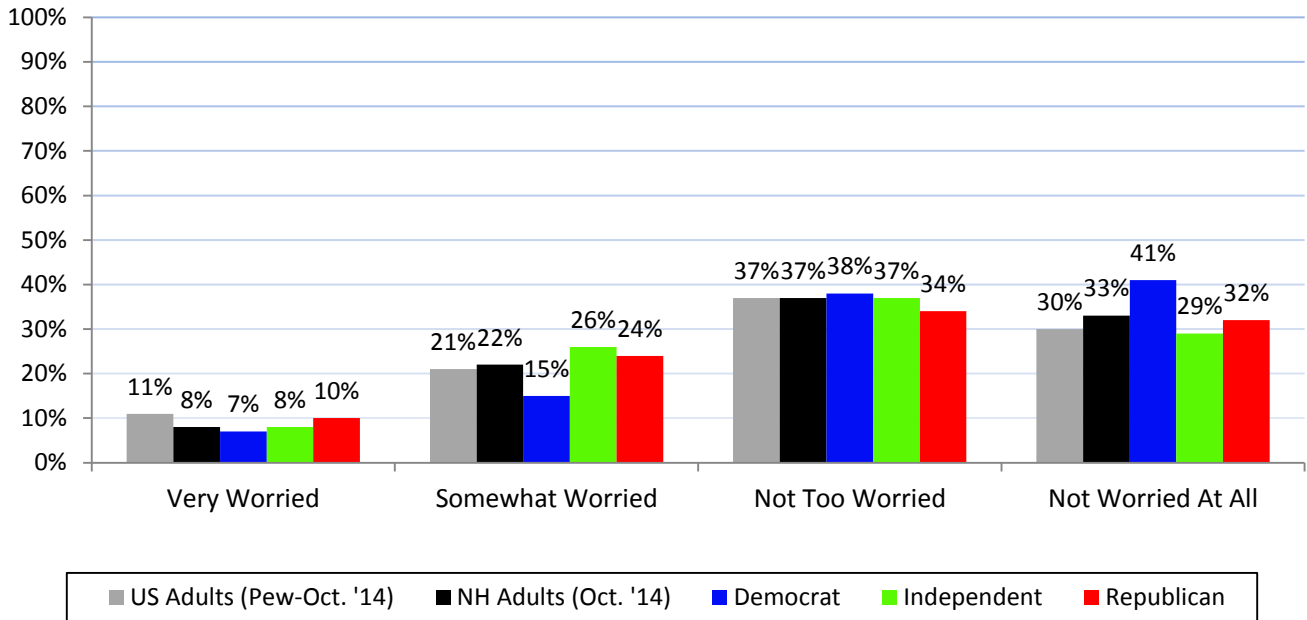

How Closely Are You Following the Ebola Outbreak?

* We ask that this copyrighted information be referred to as the Granite State Poll, sponsored by WMUR-TV, and conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center.

However, Granite Staters aren't worried that their family members will contract Ebola –only 8% are very worried, 22% are somewhat worried, 37% are not too worried, and 33% are not worried at all. These figures mirror a national survey conducted by Pew this October.

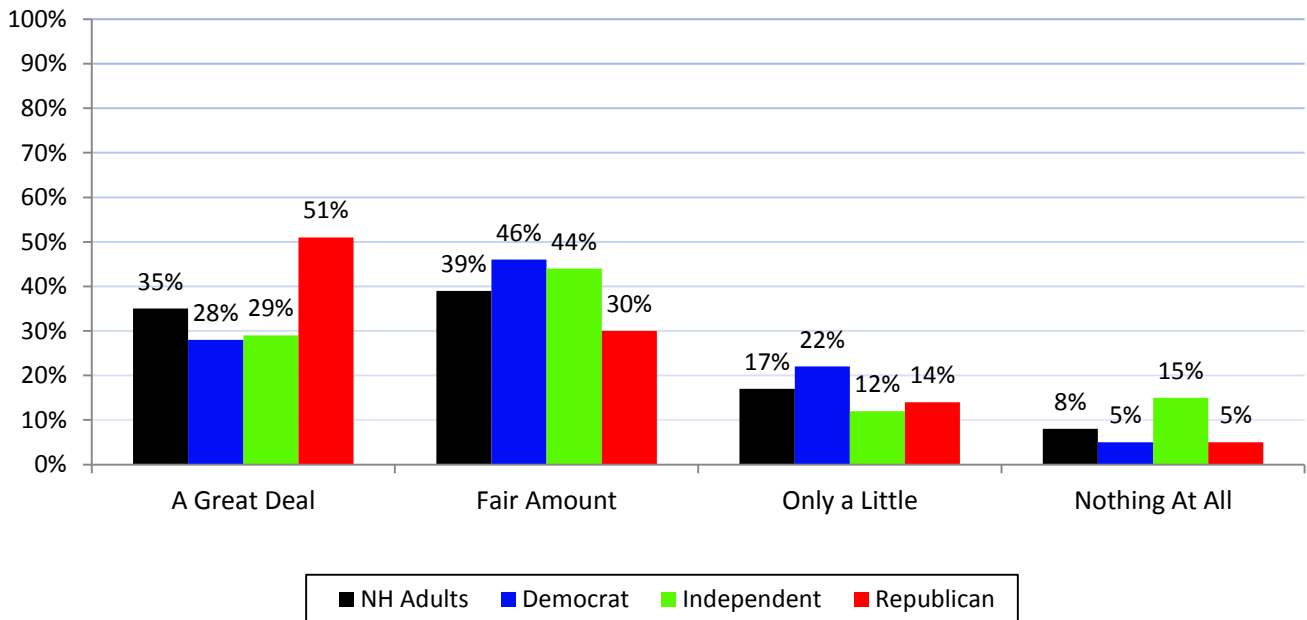

Worried About Family Member Contracting Ebola

ISIS

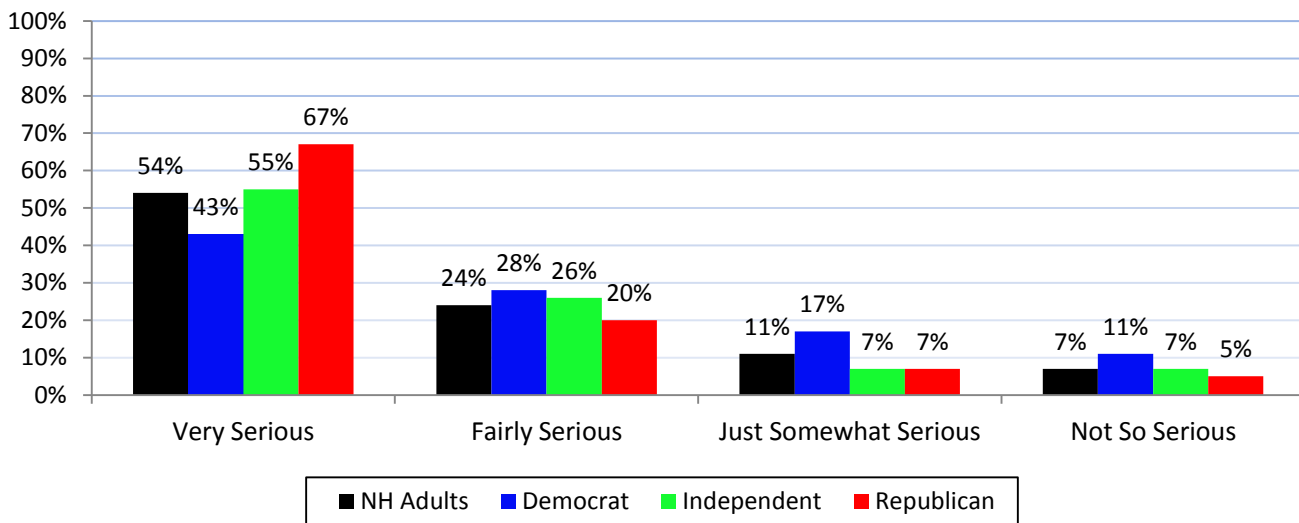

Another recent topic of national attention has been the Islamic militant group known as ISIS or ISIL, which now controls a large part of eastern Syria and western Iraq. The recent beheading of two American journalists, including New Hampshire native James Foley, received much media attention in the state. Currently, 35% of New Hampshire adults say they have heard or read a great deal about ISIS, 39% have heard a fair amount, 17% know only a little and 8% know nothing at all. Republicans (51%) are more likely to know a great deal about ISIS than Independents (29%) and Democrats (28%).

Knowledge of ISIS

Most New Hampshire residents believe that ISIS poses a very serious threat to the United States – 54% believe ISIS poses a very serious threat, 24% believe they pose a fairly serious threat, 11% just a somewhat serious threat and 7% a not so serious threat.

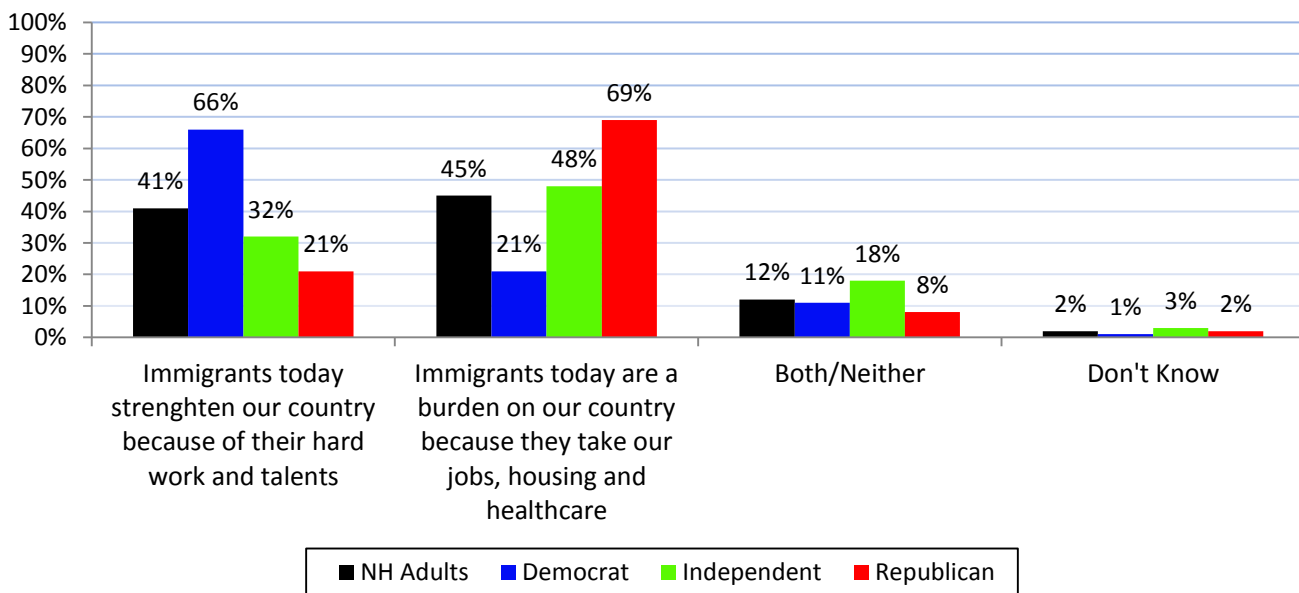

Seriousness of ISIS Threat to U.S.

Immigration

New Hampshire residents are divided on how they view immigrants today – when asked which statement comes closer to their opinion, 45% say immigrants are a burden to the country, because they take jobs, housing and healthcare, 41% say immigrants strengthen the country because of their hard work and talents, 6% said both, 6% said neither and 2% are unsure. There is a significant partisan divide over this issue as Republicans (69%) are much more likely to view immigrants as a burden to the country while Democrats (66%) are more likely to view immigrants as strengthening the country. Independents are divided with 48% seeing immigrants as a burden and 32% seeing immigrants as strengthening the country.

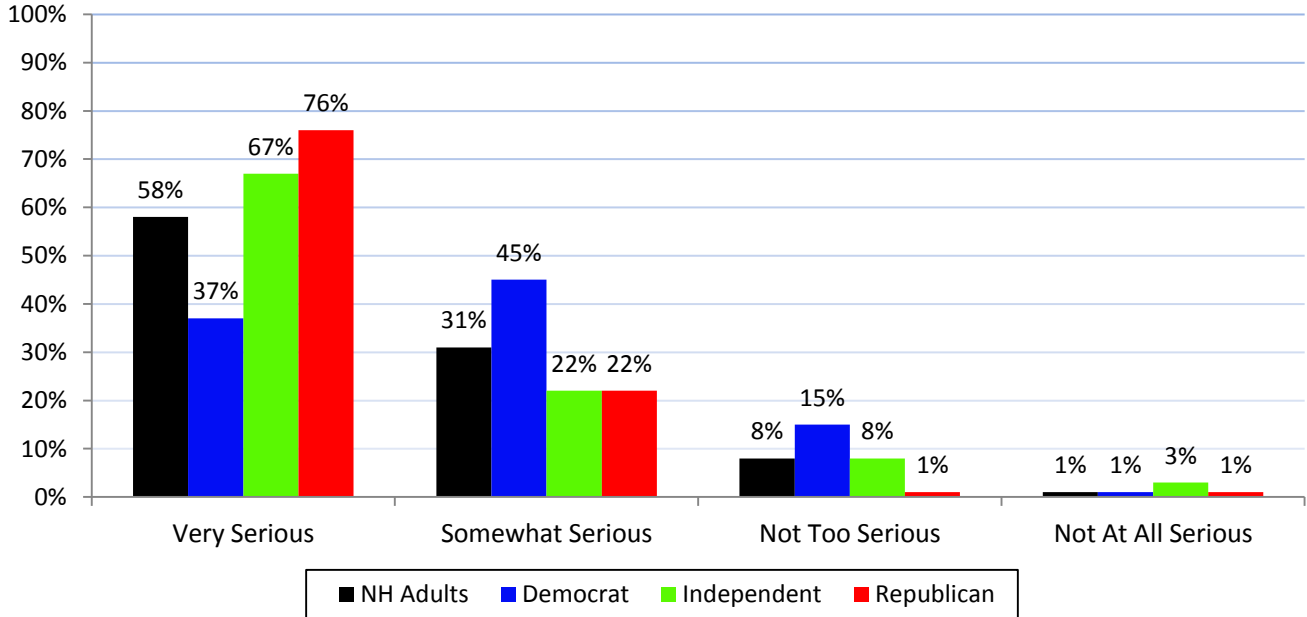

View on Immigrants in the US

Illegal Immigration

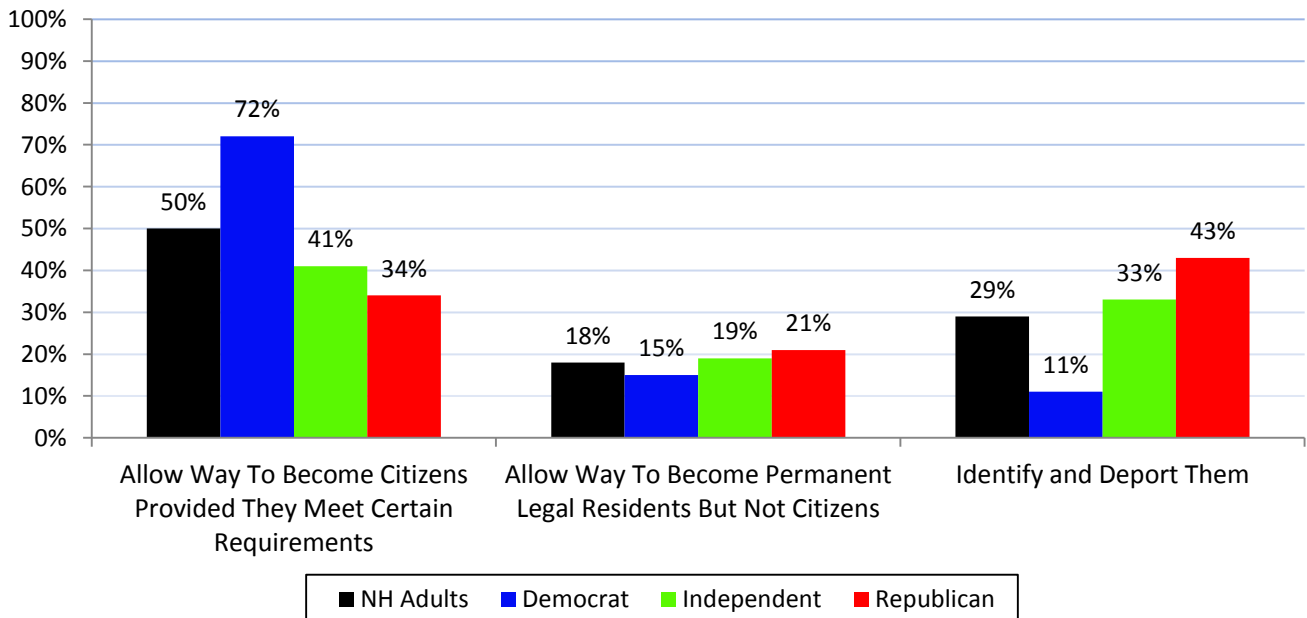

A majority of Granite Staters (58%) believe that illegal immigration is a very serious problem in the United States, 31% say it is somewhat serious, 8% say it is not too serious and 1% say it is not at all serious. Perceptions about illegal immigration also show a significant party divide as most Republicans (76%) and two-thirds of Independents (67%) view illegal immigration as a very serious problem, while just 37% of Democrats do.

How Serious a Problem is Illegal Immigration in U.S.?

Half (50%) of New Hampshire residents believe that the U.S. immigration system should allow a way for immigrants living here illegally to become citizens provided they meet certain requirements, 18% believe they should be allowed a way to become permanent legal residents but not citizens and 29% believe we should identify and deport them. While the same partisan divisions are present as 72% of Democrats believe immigrants should be allowed a way to become citizens, Republicans and Independents are divided among these options.

Granite State Poll Methodology

These findings are based on the latest WMUR Granite State Poll, conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. Five hundred and forty-three (543) randomly selected New Hampshire adults were interviewed by landline and cellular telephone between October 6 and October 13, 2014. The margin of sampling error for the survey is +/- 4.2 percent.

The data have been weighted to adjust for numbers of adults and telephone lines within households, respondent sex, age, and region of the state. In addition to potential sampling error, all surveys have other potential sources of non-sampling error including question order effects, question wording effects, and non-response.
