For particulars in relation to expenditure of school money, and other school matters, see statistical table annexed.

There have been employed, during the past year, nineteen different teachers, thirteen of whom had taught previously, more or less, in the town, with success, and only two had had no previous experience in teaching. These circumstances led us to expect favorable results; and we are happy to state that we have not been disappointed. As a whole, our schools have been successful: several of them, we think, are among the best in the state.

The condition of our common schools and how to improve them is a subject agitating the best minds in the country. A tremor ought to reach and move our community to its depths! Being unconnected with any literary centre, unless we keep our eyes and ears open we shall be found plodding in the rear. What to teach, and how to teach it, is of vital importance! We have before urged the necessity of selecting unbiased and disinterested prudential committees, with no needy relations clamoring for preferment, whose only claim to preferment is their relationship; and upon teachers, the necessity of preserving good order, and of demanding and enforcing thorough lessons from scholars, and inculcating in them a thorough knowledge of rudiments and first principles. We also need teachers acquainted with the best methods of instruction and government,—firm, but kind. Teachers, in order to be successful, must be conversant with the thoughts and methods of the foremost of their profession. They must go beyond the limits of a country town, and bring in new ideas to leaven the old, and discard the useless. A lawyer would soon sink into insignificance if he did not keep posted on the advancement of law: the same with a doctor who should neglect, through indifference or imbecility, to profit by the advancement of his science. The same rule applies, with even more propriety, to teachers. The community should be brought to understand that teaching is a living, advancing science, and then teachers will have to keep pace with the popular sentiment.

The town has been fortunate in securing the services of several graduates of the State Normal School, whose labors have done credit to that institution; and we are happy to be able to recommend its graduates to the public.

We would respectfully recommend to the town the plan of furnishing books to the scholars, by the district or town, which in some places has been tried with success, and which has some eminent advantages. It would be a saving to the community in the end, as the books would pass through the hands of several scholars. Text-books by several different authors, on the same subjects, would not be found in the same school, as was actually the case: grammars by four different authors were found in use in one school which was visited by your committee.

In the district schools should be taught what is of the greatest importance to the youth who goes from them to face the world. (1) He should be taught to write a neat and legible letter. To accomplish this he must have frequent drills in composition, and learn the use of a dictionary. A great many scholars are deficient in handling reference books and investigating the truth for themselves, which is of incalculable importance to a scholar. (2) He should be taught to reckon accurately and quickly; to understand thoroughly both decimal and vulgar fractions; to compute simple and compound interest; and understand the simple rules in percentage. With these qualifications, and a knowledge of correct principles of conduct and of life, a youth of ordinary ability is capable of adapting himself to any position in life.

Any one considering our suggestions will see their truthfulness and usefulness. The brevity of our remarks prevents us from sustaining ourselves by argument.

DISTRICT No. 1 (Meeting-House).

Joseph C. Fowle, Prudential Committee.

Miss Emma J. Fowle has had charge of the school in this district during the entire school year. Miss Fowle has had considerable experience in teaching, having taught successfully several terms in town. She has also had the benefit of normal school training to some extent. She entered upon her work with a determination to succeed. She aimed to be thorough, and required her scholars to be so, believing that to be for the best interest of the school. Good progress was made; and her school was a success in every particular.

DISTRICT No. 2 (Dodge).

Henry T. Simpson, Prudential Committee.

This district has had three terms of school during the past year, and as many different teachers. Miss Evelyn D. Holt had charge of the summer school. She had previously taught successfully several terms of school in town. She is also a graduate of the Normal School at Plymouth. The school under her fostering care was full of life and activity, and, as we think, was a profitable one. Exercises at the close were very interesting, accompanied with singing by the school.

The second term was taught by Miss Ada M. Thompson, of Northwood. She succeeded in awakening a good degree of interest among her scholars, and they made commendable progress. Good order prevailed when we visited her school.

The third term was taught by Miss Annie W. Patten, of Manchester. Miss Patten is a good scholar, and has capacity to impart knowledge to others. We think she neglected teaching the rudiments and first principles necessary to be taught in the district school, and essential in laying the foundation of a good education.

DISTRICT No. 3 (Buck Street).

Charles Bliss, Prudential Committee.

The first and second terms of school in this district were taught by Miss Nellie M. Marden. Miss Marden had previously had some experience in teaching, and labored hard for the interest of her school. A good degree of improvement was made by several of the classes.

The second term was taught by Mr. George W. Fowler. This was Mr. Fowler's first experience in teaching. He commenced his school with a determination to succeed, and to do his whole duty. During our several visits good order prevailed, and at the close good advancement appeared to have been made.

DISTRICT No. 4 (Hill).

Hugh T. Warren, Prudential Committee.

The summer term was taught by Miss Annie M. Lakeman, a native of the district, formerly a member of the school, and a graduate of Pembroke academy. She had previously taught one term in district No. 5 with success. She succeeded in retaining her former reputation, giving general satisfaction to parents, scholars, and committee.

The winter term was under the instruction of Mr. Jesse F. Weeks, of Gilmanton. This school is not as interesting as it was formerly, all the advanced scholars, with a single exception, having left. There is still an opportunity to labor, though the school is small. We thought the rudiments, which are the foundation of a good education, were somewhat neglected. The closing examination was fair, and general satisfaction given.

DISTRICT No. 5 (Pound).

David L. Holt, Prudential Committee.

Miss Annie B. Whittemore has taught this school during both terms. This is the smartest school in town. It consisted of six scholars in summer and seven in winter, with a smaller amount of school-money than any other district,—yet we found a class in mental arithmetic better than any other in town. The teacher succeeded in keeping up an interest to the end of the term, giving satisfaction to parents and your committee, showing herself a faithful and efficient teacher.

DISTRICT No. 6 (Eighth Range).

Benjamin B. Hagget, Prudential Committee.

The summer school was taught by Miss Genella L. Fowler, who again succeeded admirably, preserving good order, and attending carefully to the rudiments and first principles, and giving attention to minor things necessary to be taught in the primary school. She was thorough in her instruction, requiring perfect lessons. The closing examination was very satisfactory. Singing by the school.

Mr. Charles R. Rowe again had charge of the winter school. Several of the older and more advanced scholars who attended this school last winter did not attend this, by reason of which the character of the school was somewhat lowered, though not rendered uninteresting. The same careful and faithful instruction appeared to have been given, and no lack of interest was manifest. The closing examination was interesting and satisfactory, showing close application by many of the scholars, and good instruction by the teacher.

DISTRICT No. 7 (Borough).

Samuel D. Robinson, Prudential Committee.

Miss May E. Adams taught this school during both summer and winter terms.

Miss Adams having previously taught here several terms with good success, was prepared to take an active interest in the school at once; and we think the district was fortunate in securing her services. She is a good scholar herself, and having the faculty to impart knowledge to others renders her a successful teacher. She succeeded in gaining the love and respect of her pupils, the confidence of parents, and the approbation of your committee.

DISTRICT No. 8 (Village).

Rufus H. Paine, Prudential Committee.

First Primary. This school has been under the care of Miss Metta G. Gault for the past two years. This school is larger in numbers than any other in town. Miss Gault has shown superior skill, patience, and perseverance in managing so large a number of small scholars, and is entitled to the gratitude of parents and children, and the thanks of the community, for the able and faithful manner in which she has performed her arduous duties. During the closing exercises, in a school numbering about sixty scholars, varying from five to nine years of age, not a whisper was noticed by the committee, or anything but a desire to obey and please the teacher. The exercises were lengthy and highly interesting, being miscellaneous in their character, with singing by the school, almost every scholar taking part.

At the commencement of the second term of this school we found over ninety scholars in attendance, when the school-room would only seat, properly, sixty-eight. We recommended to the committee to procure some suitable place for a school, which he did, and employed Miss Julia Gilbert as teacher. Miss Gilbert, of course, was not permitted to select her scholars, but took such as were sent her. She labored hard for those in her charge, but having been driven with her school from one place to another three times, and subject to other inconveniences, she of course could not be expected to accomplish much. We have received no register from her, and cannot, otherwise than in this way, report her school. We hope the district will provide a suitable room for at least one more school, as it will be seen by this report that there is a large number of children, of suitable school age, who have not attended school anywhere during the year.

Second Primary. Miss Annie O. Drake again had charge of this school. She is a teacher of large experience, not satisfied with having once succeeded, but is still striving to improve. While we last year thought her school a good one, we think in some respects there has been an improvement during the present year, particularly in thoroughness. Her school is large in numbers, consisting of young scholars, requiring a great amount of patience and perseverance on the part of the teacher to make respectable progress. Closing exercises interesting, interspersed with singing.

Intermediate Department.

Miss Sarah H. Chickering taught the first term of this school. She labored hard to impress upon the minds of her pupils the necessity of studious habits and correct deportment, and succeeded as well as we could reasonably expect. Not having had any previous experience in our village schools, she labored under many disadvantages. The closing examination was fair, many of the exercises being quite interesting.

The fall and winter terms were taught by Miss Ella F. Barker, of Manchester, who taught this school last year three terms. It is not saying too much when we say this was one of the best schools in town. Miss Barker is a progressive teacher, aiming to improve herself as well as her scholars. The exercises at the close of her school were varied and interesting to the highest degree. Thoroughness seemed to be the rule. The order was good. Declamations and singing were interspersed with other exercises.

Grammar School.

This school we find for the fourth year under the instruction of Miss Metta C. Davis. We have spoken so often and so highly of Miss Davis as a teacher, that it would seem almost superfluous for us to undertake anything in that direction at the present time. Her school, though the members are changed, only one being present, we believe, at the close, who attended during her first term four years ago, never appeared better, though it has often consisted of scholars further advanced. Miss Davis, we think, leaves the impress of her influence upon all the schools in this village; and we believe the parents of the district and the community at large owe her a debt of gratitude for her efforts in their behalf.

DISTRICT No. 9 (Dudley).

John T. Merrill, Prudential Committee.

Miss Mary I. Dearborn, of Candia, teacher for the first term. She is a teacher of some experience, with a good reputation as such. The school appeared well at our several visits, and at its close showed fair progress. She did not appear to have required that thoroughness which is desirable.

The second term was taught by Miss Nellie M. Merrill, a former member of the school. She commenced her school under some disadvantages, on account of her age, inexperience (this being her first school), and having so recently been a member of the school. We feared the result, and, in fact, would generally disapprove of a teacher going into a school under such circumstances. She labored hard, and appeared determined to succeed, and did succeed better than we anticipated. At the close, scholars appeared well prepared. The order was not so good as was desirable.

The number of children reported by the selectmen was as follows: 267 boys, 254 girls; whole number, 521.

From the imperfect manner in which teachers prepared, returned, and kept their registers, it is impossible for us to tell exactly how many different scholars attended our several schools during the year. We give the numbers, as near as is possible for us to do, as follows: 190 boys, 189 girls; whole number, 379. The difference between 379, the number reported by teachers as attending school, and 521, the number of children returned by the selectmen, shows that 142 have not attended school.

The selectmen are required to return all children between five and fifteen years of age. Of the 379 we report as attending school, perhaps 30 were not included in the number returned by the selectmen, being less than five or more than fifteen years of age. It is proper for us to state that there are some children who attend the Catholic school in Allentown not reported to us, perhaps enough to offset those under five and over fifteen;—if so, the number not attending school, between the ages of five and fifteen, would be 142.

These figures are approximately correct, showing that over one fifth, or about twenty-seven per cent., of all our children have not come under the influence of our schools during the year—a fact that should be impressed upon the mind of every true citizen. A large number of these are children of French Canadians, who are kept at work in the factories, or allowed to run at large in the streets, in defiance of law, nearly all being included within the limits of one district.
