Of the above there was raised from assessment, $1,655.50; from Literary Fund and interest on same, $282.98. The money was distributed in accordance with the following vote: "One-third among the districts according to the valuation of each district; one-third among the districts according to the number of scholars in each district; the other third equally among the several districts."

There have been fifteen different teachers—one male and fourteen females. One taught for the first time. One only had attended a normal school. Eleven schools had the same teachers for the year. The highest wages paid any teacher, $52 per month; the lowest, $16. Average wages per month for female teachers, $25. Expense per scholar for the year, $7.31. Only three school rooms have globes, or other apparatus worthy of the name. Two school houses are utterly unfit for school purposes. The others, with perhaps three exceptions, are much out of repair.

Lippincott's series of readers, six in number, have been introduced, taking the place of the Franklin series. A change of some kind seemed absolutely necessary, as the scholars had become so familiar with the old books that reading from them was in a majority of cases little more than repeating by rote. The new readers were chosen in view of what was thought their intrinsic merits, as well as the favorable terms on which the publishers offered them. The text books now in use are Lippincott's Readers, Swinton's Speller, White's Arithmetics, Harper's Geography, Hutchinson's Physiology, Higginson's Young Folks' History of the United States, and Swinton's Grammars. It speaks well of the schools that, with two exceptions-No. 4, and the Grammar Department of No. 2-the same teachers have taught the entire year. In No. 2, the change, in fact, was simply in name for the winter term, as it went on under the care of Mr. Benjamin, of the Conant High School. A very commendable feature of Mr. Benjamin's teaching was the way in which he set his scholars to thinking for themselves. If at times some of the pupils seemed a little slow in coming to conclusions, far better such slowness than that fatal facility of recitation which rattles off words parrot like, with little or no thought as to their meaning. The teacher's care should be to assist his pupils, not to do their work for them; to lead them to careful thought, not to drive them along in ruts. Hence the true teacher is the one rousing thought, leading scholars to discern differences and apply principles they may have in mind. The mere mention of Miss Robbins and Miss Crombie as the other teachers in this district, is sufficient to indicate the high rank of schools in both the Primary and Grammar Departments.

No. 3 has again taken its place among our best schools. Under the wise and skillful management of Miss Georgia A. Bigelow, all the difficulties of the past two years disappeared, and the school went on from beginning to end without the slightest discord between pupils and teacher. Of the other schools your Superintendent can speak in words of commendation so far as the teachers were concerned. And all things taken into account, he hesitates not to say the schools, as a whole, have been of a higher order than during any of the previous years he has had them in charge. This is due in a large measure to the care used in the selection of teachers, and the good sense shown in keeping them for the year after they had proved themselves worthy to occupy the places they were in. Some teachers labored under great disadvantage inseparable from poor houses, few scholars, want of suitable apparatus and irregular attendance. This last mentioned evil has been conspicuous in several districts, noticeably so in No. 8.

Of course, industrious and painstaking as our teachers have been, there is chance for improvement. It is therefore with peculiar satisfaction that attention is called to the following act, passed at the last session of the legislature, in relation to the attendance of teachers upon teachers' institutes: "The time, not exceeding three days in any one term, or five days in one year, actually spent by a teacher of any public school in the state in attendance upon a teachers' institute held in accordance with the laws of the state, under the direction of the superintendent of public instruction, shall be considered time lawfully expended by such teacher in the service of the District where such teacher is employed, and no deduction of wages shall be made for such absences. And it shall be the duty of the school committee and boards of education to allow teachers to close their schools for such attendance upon such institute."

Thoroughly trained teachers must be had, if our schools are to be a success. Some of the teachers the last year, with the best of intentions and constant effort, failed of accomplishing what they knew they ought, simply from ignorance how to work to the best advantage. Much time has been lost from want of order in calling and arranging classes, tact in asking questions, and not insisting on pupils answering questions directly in few words. As an illustration of this last mentioned fault, a teacher asks, who was the first president of the United States? Instead of saving George Washington. and stopping, the pupil begins by stating that the United States once belonged to Great Britain, that there was a war between the colonies and the mother country; then goes on to tell this thing and that, until finally, after a five or ten minutes talk, he comes round to the answer. Our teachers need to understand, as many of them do not, the importance of doing a little and doing that well, rather than running over many things superficially.

Electives may have their place in our higher schools. Upon this I am not called to pronounce an opinion, but I do say they have no place in the district school. There the pupil is to learn the lesson assigned him, because he is supposed to be under the care of one competent of deciding what it is best for him to do. The question so often asked pupils by parents and others, "have you a good school?" is pernicious in the extreme, as indicating the very child is as competent of judging what a school should be as the one placed over it as teacher. Then, too, nothing ought to be more absurd than the thought of asking a child what he would like to study. Faney a teacher calling in a solemn, formal tone, to a boy ten years of age, who can with difficulty stumble through a sentence of the easiest reading, and who has never made the first attempt at writing, "Mr. Smith, you may come here and tell me what studies you propose to pursue this term." Such a case has come under the notice of your Superintendent, though he is happy to state not during the hast year. Truly the world moves! And yet there are teachers even now who virtually do the same thing, and there are parents who "wish their children to study what they, the children, like best."

My own impression is, after considerable observation, that the first years at school are the most important years of life, and that the training then received goes farther than at any subsequent period towards forming character. It is affirmed with no fear of successful contradiction, that the so called self-made men were what they were through influences brought to bear on them in their earliest years. Certainly Abraham Lincoln, Horace Greelev, Hugh Miller, and others like them, have attributed all they were able to accomplish to the influences brought to bear on them before they were able to decide for themselves what it was best for them to do, by strong minded, sensible, though in the technical sense of the word uneducated parents and friends. They were taught to do a few things and do them well, without being asked if the course met with their approval. Hence the foundation was laid which enabled them to far outstrip those whom we often fancy had greater advantages. Brighter and better scholars come, for the most part. from some schools rather than from others, not so much because of the better materials in those schools to begin with, as from the fact the material is better wrought on. Therefore it is we need the best teachers it is possible to have in our common schools; teachers who have training, experience and common sense enough to understand their pupils' needs, and meet them morally and intellectually; who will train them in essentials, and so help them lav foundations on which they can build through life, however long that life.

Daniel Webster is reported as saying he was never in company with one from whom he did not learn something, however ignorant the person. Such careful observation ought to be the result of the teaching in all our schools. That it may be, our teachers must first practice it themselves. The impression left on my mind, after the care of our schools for a term of years, is, that the training in many of them has been such as to leave the scholars with so little thought and power of observation that they find it difficult to learn after they go into the world for themselves. I am well aware that teachers should not be held responsible when crippled by circumstances beyond their control, as has been the case in some of our schools.

The keeping so many teachers for the whole year has been a great improvement on the past. Let us now reorganize our schools by reducing them to the proper number; by repairing and furnishing our school houses in such a way there shall be means for good work, and then select trained teachers, paying them wages enough so they can be kept from year to year. By such course there is no reason why all our schools should not be what some of them have been—first class.

Total number of volumes,

$24.50 are now required to pay subscriptions to periodicals for 1886, which will leave only a balance of $28.70 to be expended. Books to this amount will at once be placed in the library.

It will be seen by reference to expenditures that the binding of magazines, and the rebinding of old books make quite a large item. And, of course, as the library increases in size the expense of keeping the books in repair will increase. This in addition to pay of librarian, express charges and other incidentals, will use up the larger part of $150.00, the sum which the town has annually appropriated since the opening of the library. It is respectfully suggested that an appropriation of at least $200.00 is required for the current year, to place in the library but a small part of the books needed there.

The circulation of books the past year has been from one hundred and twenty-five to one hundred and sixty volumes a week. It is a matter of congratulation that so many good books have gone into the different families, and at the same time the trustees can but think it would have been more profitable if the reading had taken a wider range, not excluding the lighter forms, but including more of history, biography and science. The saying, common among the Germans, that the good should never be allowed to take the place of the better, may well be borne in mind in this connection.

Let us, by liberal appropriation, make our library what it ought to be, and then use it as it should be used, to bring ourselves into communion with all the best thought of the past and present time. James Russell Lowell, in an address a few days since, said very pertinently, "The opening of a free public library is a most important event in the history of any town. A college training is an excellent thing; but after all, the better part of every man's education is that which he gives himself, and it is for this that a good library should furnish the opportunity and the means. I have sometimes thought that our public schools undertook to teach too much, and that the older system, which taught merely the three R's, and taught them well, leaving natural selection to decide who should go further, was the better."

ENGINEER'S REPORT.

Since my last report the fire department has been called out twice.

1st. On June 8th, fire was discovered in the house of James T. Brown. There was some delay in giving the alarm, and the house was consumed. The department rendered good service in saving the shed and outbuildings.

2d. On August 11th, Messrs. White Brothers had their annual fire in their drying house. The department was called out, but the engine was not used, as the force pumps at the factory was all that was needed.

I think the fire company is the best we have had for many years.

Expense of the department for the past year:

Pay of firemen, Steward's bills, supplies and repairs,

$173 73 26 47

$200 20

M. M. BASCOM, Chief Engineer.

East Jaffrey, Feb. 18th, 1886.

We, the undersigned, have examined the reports of the Selectmen, Town Treasurer, Treasurer of the Literary Fund, Overseer of the Poor, and the report of the Trustees and Securities of the Conant Indigent Fund and Conant High School Fund, the report of the Trustees of the Town Library, Fire Department, Liquor Agent's report, and find them fully vouched and correctly cast.
