REPORT OF ALMONERS OF FOSTER FUND
FOR THE YEAR ENDING FEB. 15, 1917.

Today we close the 19th year in dispensing the annual income from Mr. Foster's generous fund to aid the distressed and sick of the people of the town of Warner. There have been a larger number of calls this year than usual, consequently we have paid out more. We could have dispensed as much again if we had had the means. The larger number of the recipients do not apply for aid at all; let some of those who do remember that there are others whose wants may be quite as great as their own. We wish the income was much larger, but we are thankful just the same to the thoughtful donor who gave the gift that enables us to give a little aid to so many needy and deserving people. And all of the beneficiaries I am sure must bless the memory of John Foster.

The following is a record of receipts and disbursements:

Balance from last year	246 83
Received from trustees of trust funds Feb. 12, 1917	202 67
		449 50
Disbursements	222 17

Report of Trustees of Trust Funds.

In compliance with a law enacted by the New Hampshire Legislature in the year 1915, entitled "An act relating to Trust Funds, held by Towns and Cities," the town of Warner did at its annual meeting in March, 1916, elect a Board of Trustees of Trust Funds, which board now begs leave to submit its first annual report.

The town of Warner had at various unknown dates accepted trust funds for several purposes absorbing the same in the general town treasury and paying the interest thereon for the purposes designated in each case.

The law provides that under these conditions, the town may give to the trustees its demand note at 3 1-2 per cent. interest, said interest to be collected by the trustees and disbursed according to the original provision of the trust. This has been done, the amount of the note being $2728. covering these various trust funds, as follows:

Original school fund,	613 00
Original public land fund,	69 00
Original parsonage fund,	371 00

Report of School Board.

During the school year ending July 15, 1916, ten schools were maintained in the Warner Town School District, with an average length of thirty-two weeks. As usual, Grammar, Intermediate and Primary schools were kept in the village school building. In addition schools were kept in the several districts of Melvin's, Davisville, Tory Hill, Lower Warner, Burnt Hill, Schoodac and Joppa. The number of scholars attending these schools, as shown by the report of the truant officer on September 30, 1915, was one hundred eighty-six, of which eighty-one were boys and one hundred and five were girls. The average membership of all these schools was one hundred fifty-three; while that of the three village schools was seventy-eight, or slightly over one-half the average membership. The school having the largest attendance was the Intermediate with thirty-five, the Joppa school having the smallest with three scholars.

The work of the scholars on the whole has been satisfactory, promotions being secured in regular order from grade to grade, with twelve admissions to Simonds Free High School from the eighth grade. The State Program of Study was followed as far as practicable by the teachers and while perfection in its use was not reached, it acted as the model and was of great help in arranging the daily time table and systematizing the school work for the year. This State Program, as adopted by the school board, should form the basis of instruction, whereby time may be saved, the value of energy increased, and the efficiency of the schools materially improved. The constant use of this Program of study is to be recommended for a period of years, the better to accomplish its aims and instructions.

As required by law, instruction in physiology and hygiene, with special reference to the effect of alcohol and tobacco upon the human system, was carefully given in all the schools above the primary grade. The Constitution of the United States and of New Hampshire was used as supplementary reading matter for the eighth grade, thereby causing the scholars to become familiar with the foundations of their government as well as to become conversant with these two excellent models of English. Instruction in regard to the humane treatment of animals, the rudiments of elementary agriculture, and many essential facts concerning nature study have been made a part of the regular program and have been of great interest to the scholars.

For some time past the matter of using the spare room at the graded school building has been under consideration. An amount necessary to obtain new equipment for the extra room was added to the budget of appropriations last year, and the seats and desks and other necessary furniture were installed in the west room on the second floor during the summer, the equipment already there being removed to the spare room below. This located the first and second grades and third and fourth grades on the ground floor, with the fifth and sixth grades and the seventh and eighth grades on the floor above. This arrangement of the schools is a distinct advantage to the scholars, making two instead of three grades in a room, thereby lessening the number of scholars per teacher, allowing more individual instruction with longer periods for recitations. The practical working of the change has even thus far warranted the departure and expense of extra teacher and equipment.

The employment of a special teacher of drawing in the schools was considered by the board a necessity for the proper teaching of that study, and after conferences with Mr. Ralph F. Pratt, who consented to act in that capacity, an amount sufficient to carry on that branch of the school work was introduced in the budget of appropriations for 1916. The results of his work in the schools are shown by the interest the scholars take in the study and by an examination of the work done by them.

At the last school meeting a vote was passed requesting the school board to investigate the matter of installing fire-escapes on the graded school building. An expert on fire-escapes came to town in March, 1916, and made a personal investigation at the school building with the result that plans and specifications were sent to the board in this regard. Two styles were recommended; one to be erected at the rear of the building from the window sill, taking in the first and second floors with stairway leading to the ground; the other conceived the construction of an escape from either end of the building with stairways reaching the ground near the side entrances.

No definite action was taken by the board, who chose, rather, to refer the decision to the voters at a school meeting. A fire drill has been part of the routine at the village school building during the year, the efficiency of which has been shown by the fact that the building has been emptied of scholars with little disturbance in less than a minute after the fire bell was rung.

The attention of the school authorities throughout the state has been called by the State Department of Public Instruction, to the need of inspecting the school buildings with a view to put all buildings, within the next few years in a thoroughly sanitary and suitable condition. The plan suggested is each year to put one schoolhouse in good sanitary condition with improved facilities as to light, heat and general service. Under special directions from State Superintendent H. C. Morrison, these suggestions have this year been carried out at Melvin's. The light was of bad distribution, coming from three sides and insufficient, due to shade trees. This has been remedied by removing the windows in front and at the right of the children, and placing them at the rear and left. Trees near the schoolhouse have been removed, or trimmed with the owners' consent, which aids materially in improving the light. A new outhouse has been constructed, of two apartments, on a level with the schoolroom, connected with the building by a latticed walk, with entrances from the schoolroom and from the school grounds, thereby replacing the unsanitary building previously in use.

Following the plan outlined in last year's report a room in which the children might prepare and eat their lunches was fitted up in the graded school building and was opened for use in April, 1916. Here, attended at the table by at least one of the four teachers, the children enjoy the noon lunch, which during the cold weather consists of the child's own lunch brought from home, supplemented by hot cocoa, cream soup or chowder.

Before the end of the first term that the lunch plan was in operation the teachers reported noticeable improvement in afternoon work and conduct of the pupils. This was perhaps due mainly to the extra and easily assimilated nourishment contained in the warm cocoa and also the more leisurely fashion in which the children ate when seated at table.

Apart from the nourishment side the lunch room has proved of value in several other ways. Before the room was opened the boys had some eminently practical manual training work in covering the table tops with white oil cloth. The girls hemmed the dish cloths and towels, even the first and second grade pupils helped by making holders for the hot dishes.

Both boys and girls assist in the care of the lunch room, seeing that the dishes, table and floors are left clean after each meal. Prior to this term the preparation of the warm food has been entirely the work of one of the teachers. During the last few weeks the experiment has been tried of having the eighth grade pupils under the direct supervision of the principal do the cooking. The young people are taking hold of the work with whole hearted enthusiasm, both boys and girls seeming to feel that they are gaining something of practical value.

The interest of the parents in the venture and their appreciation of the value of the experiment to their children encouraged the school board this winter to put the necessary equipment into the two district schools most needing the service, Burnt Hill and Melvin.

The schools in town are a vital part of our community and should be made as efficient as possible. The suggestions of any citizen as to management or teaching is always welcomed by the school board. Criticisms by those who never visit school or who are unacquainted with the conditions are of not much value to anyone, but all who are interested in making the schools better will find your school board willing listeners. The State Department instructs its School Boards: "There should be but one answer made by the school board member to the complaining citizen; 'Put your complaint in writing, sign your name to it, our board will give you a hearing and if you substantiate your charges appropriate action will be taken.' "

MEDICAL INSPECTION.

Medical inspection is productive of good results, as it places the responsibility of maintaining the health of the children upon a professional man, who makes an examination of each child in the schools at least once a year, and recommends that treatment of the defects found be at once obtained. The most important part of the medical inspection is to see that the treatment recommended is secured and properly applied. A defect, as poor eyesight, is found by the school physician, who at once notifies the parents by means of a printed notice that the child has defective eyesight. No special treatment is suggested, but that medical advice be secured. This recommendation should be accepted and the doctor called to tell what to do to improve or cure the defect with which the child is afflicted. If parents could be made to understand what the children need to have corrected, and why it should be done, much more would be accomplished. Co-operation of the parents, by means of education and persuasion, is essential to secure the best results from medical inspection.

The condition of the children in the schools this year is better than at the first inspection made last year. By the introduction of water coolers, individual drinking cups, and paper towels an improvement has been made in the hygiene and sanitation of the schoolrooms. The scholars have clean water to drink, a clean cup to drink from, and a clean towel to dry their faces and hands after washing. Ventilation has been especially considered, and teachers instructed in the best way to improve the ventilation of their schoolrooms. Each schoolhouse has been fumigated at least once during the year. Teachers have been instructed in and are using such measures of preventive medicine, as simple gymnastic exercises, correction of the position of pupils while standing or sitting, adjustment of seats and desks to the proper situation, the abolition of the common pencil box, frequent resting periods, changes of work and gentle treatment during the work of the day.

The school lunch is responsible for a good deal of the advancement of the children. Right methods of eating nourishing food, and proper time taken while eating, are of distinct benefit, and tend to produce corresponding improvements at home.

Treatment has been secured in six cases of defective eyesight, the defect being corrected by means of glasses. The improvement made by these children in their studies is remarkable. Three cases of adenoids and hypertrophied tonsils have been treated by operation for removal, and these children have not only improved in health and general condition, but are decidedly different in disposition, animation and mentality. Only six pupils in the district schools remain unvaccinated, showing a marked change from last year, and those six have submitted to vaccination twice without successful result. Care of the teeth, and proper treatment of defective teeth, have made a distinct change for the better in a number of the children with hypertrophied tonsils, as these two conditions go hand in hand, and care and treatment of the teeth relieves, in a great measure, the tonsil condition.

The following is a summary of the medical inspection work for the last two years in the graded schools.

	1916	1917
Number of children examined	143	134
Defective vision	17	10
Defective hearing	14	.6
Anæmia	4	1
Nervous disease	1	2
Hypertrophied tonsils	48	35
Adenoids	11	6
Defect of breathing	7	4
Unvaccinated	51	.6

DENTAL INSPECTION.

By carefully comparing the statistical record of the dental examination this year with that of last year, one can readily see that there has been some improvement in the condition of the mouths of the children; although not nearly as great an improvement as there should be.

In comparing the record of this year with last year take into consideration the fact that there were 41 less examined this year, due principally to absentees and also "drop-outs" from high school.

One especial improvement is to be noted in the number who are now using the tooth brush. May it become universal.

The number of absolutely filthy mouths is still too great a menace to the health, not only to the particular child, but to the whole community.

It is high time that some of the parents paid attention to the examination cards, and gave their children the benefit of the knowledge thereon, and not have the children say when grown up: "Oh! if my parents had looked after my teeth as they should have, I would not now be suffering as I do, from the loss of so many teeth." (Remark commonly heard in the dentist's office.)

Below is the statistical record of the examination. Please study carefully and compare with last year.

Number of pupils examined,	171
“ “ mouths in good condition,	45
“ “ “ fair “	55
“ “ “ bad “	71
“ “ “ need cleansing,	153
“ “ “ do not need cleansing,	18
“ who use tooth brush,	139
“ “ do not use tooth brush,	32
“ with some teeth filled,	79
“ without any teeth filled,	92
“ of permanent teeth need attention,	350
“ “ baby teeth need attention,	356
“ “ abscessed teeth,	15

(Condition of first permanent molars not included in above.)

Each child should have four first permanent molars. They erupt at about six years of age and are exceedingly important teeth.

Number of first permanent molars lost,	60
“ “ “ “ with crowns gone,	64
“ “ “ “ with cavities,	226

17 other permanent teeth with crowns gone.

15 other permanent teeth lost.

Many baby teeth need extracting to give room for permanent teeth. Baby teeth need as much care as permanent teeth.

FREE-HAND DRAWING.

The teaching of free-hand drawing was begun in the schools last spring. Being a new study in our schools a word of explanation may be of interest. Free-hand drawing for children is not given with the idea of making artists, or with the aim to make pictures, although some of the children show talent, and this study may be the means of these children taking up the study of art later in life, to become artistic illustrators, designers and architects.

Free-hand drawing is for the training of the eye to see correctly and at the same time to teach the hand to work in unison with the eye and draw on paper what the eyes see. This training will enable the child later in life to make simple drawings for use in his life work, and also be of value in the study of manual training.

As in music the early training of the child in this study is of importance. A set of wooden models has been procured for every school in town. The children have used these models in their lessons. So far they have studied the solid types, of sphere, half-sphere, and cube and objects resembling these types.

With the drawing, attention has been given to margins, borders, composition, and simple primary rules of perspective. All of which the teachers correlate, when possible with her regular studies.

The lessons given have not been with the object of the child making a "show" drawing to carry home but with object of the child being taught to see the models correctly and to begin at the beginning and lay a solid foundation for future work.

As drawing was new to many of the teachers they have drawn with the pupils and so have become better able to carry on the drawing lessons. A lesson has been given to each school in town every month. At each visit an individual criticism has been given every pupil, and work laid out for the teacher to carry on till the next visit. At the close of the spring term I suggested to the children that they draw during the vacation, say on rainy days, and form little drawing classes. When school opened in the fall I found over half the children had made drawings, which shows interest.

Throughout the schools the teachers have taken up the study with enthusiasm and this cooperation has been a great help in starting the work. A fair average of drawings has been made; and a substantial start has been accomplished in free-hand drawing.

RALPH F. PRATT,
Supervisor of Drawing.

Simonds Free High School.

This report begins with the spring term of 1916. There was no change of teachers at this time and the progress made in all of the courses to the end of the school year in June was highly satisfactory. Instead of the usual junior recital, a Shakespearean play in three parts was represented by the junior class from the stage in the town hall on the evening of June 9th. A large audience was highly delighted with the entertainment. Graduation exercises were held in the town hall on Thursday afternoon, June 15. The graduating class consisted of three members: Katharine W. Bean of Warner, Hermann Foerster of Sutton and Lester F. McDowell of Bradford. The essay by Miss Bean and the orations by Mr. Foerster and Mr. McDowell showed clear thought and ability—they were presented with diplomas. The Blaisdell and Nevers orchestra furnished delightful music. The annual alumni reunion held in the evening was largely attended. Dancing followed a pleasing program.

At the close of the school year last June, Head Master Geo. H. Hammen, a teacher of experience and thoroughly equipped, after three years of valuable service with us, was called to a desirable position as science teacher in the Fitchburg high school. Harlon C. Dyke, who for two years had charge of the agricultural course with good results, left us at the end of the school year.

The fall term opened Sept. 11. James J. Quinn, Jr., had been procured for head master and Chauncey W. L. Chapman had been engaged for instructor in the agricultural course. The enrollment of pupils at the beginning of the current school year was about 74. Fifteen were admitted to the freshman class—7 boys and 8 girls. A few are at present staying away from school on account of sickness.

The pupils in most of the classes kept up with the standard of requirements during the fall term, but in some instances several were falling behind by lack of a little encouragement and assistance. This, however, has been corrected and all are putting forth their best efforts to arrive at the end of the year with the satisfaction of a full year's work accomplished. During the fall term Mr. Quinn did all he could to equip the school with text and reference books and all needed supplies. Mr. Quinn did the clerical work and had classes in algebra, geometry, English 1, 3 and 4, German 2, and Latin 1 and 2. This gave him more work than he expected to do when he accepted the offer of the committee and at the end of fifteen weeks he tendered his resignation to take effect at the end of one week. The prudential committee accepted Mr. Quinn's resignation, and after considerable research were fortunate in procuring Miss Eleanor Hoffmann, a student of Radcliffe, 1917, to fill the vacancy. Miss Hoffmann has passed her examinations at the college and will receive her degree and diploma next June. Miss Hoffmann teaches all the French, German, Latin, English and algebra classes. Mr. Chapman attends to the clerical work and the guidance of the school in addition to his other work. A senior class of fourteen is in line for graduation next June.

The lyceums have been successfully carried on, and other public entertainments held by the school have been of a high order and greatly appreciated by large audiences.

REPORT OF COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT.

The work of this department for this year is materially the same as for last year.

We proved the efficiency of the "machine way" in shorthand in our graduating class of last year, who, with one year's work on the stenotype, met the state requirements for two years' work in shorthand.

The value of music as an adjunct in teaching typewriting in beginning classes is apparent this year in the class who began that subject in September and before the middle of the year had passed the speed required at the end of the first year. We have purchased our Grafonola, and use it in both typewriting and stenotype classes.

Some of our classes, especially those in typewriting, have been a little more in touch with the business life of the town through having various kinds of outside work brought in for class work. This is a step in the right direction, and we gladly welcome all "real work" that we are able to handle.

Mr. Busy Business Man: Haven't you a few letters that you want written, now and then? Just ask us for a stenographer and we will gladly loan you one, machine and all.

REPORT OF DOMESTIC ARTS DEPARTMENT.

The work in the first and second years of the Domestic Arts has not changed very much since last year, except that instruction in canning in Domestic Arts I covered a broader field than in the previous fall term. All goods—vegetables, fruit, cans, etc.—were purchased outright, and on the completion of the canning Mr. George C. Chase kindly offered space in his store for a sale of the goods. From the proceeds of the sale the class were able to pay all expenses of the cooking laboratory up to date and have a small amount over, besides keeping a sufficient quantity of canned goods to supply the demands of the laboratory for the entire year.

The third year's work in Domestic Arts consists of instruction in physiology, in the home care of the sick, and in invalid cookery. The course as planned is not intended to send out trained nurses, but it does attempt to give the girl such instruction as will best help her to understand and care for her own well-being and for those in the home.

A manikin purchased this year by the department is a valuable adjunct in the physiology class.

REPORT OF AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Shop Work.

Carpentry—Wagon jacks, trapnests, sewing horse, hot beds, sharpening and care of tools, repair work about buildings and repair of articles brought from home.

Blacksmithing—Care of forge and fire, making staples, hooks and bolts, for bending, fulling and drawing-out exercises; tempering and welding; making of a serviceable chain with ring and hooks. Repair of home materials and connected with carpentry course.

AGRICULTURE III.

1. Elementary Zoology—Facts and principles of life; cells and their different forms and purposes; essential organs found in all the higher forms, respiration, digestion, nutrition, sense organs and nervous system, reproduction.

Study of simple chemical principles connected with oxydation, and their connection with life processes. Principles of heredity, the evolutionary process, principles of natural selection; the phenomena of parasitism.

2. Common domestic animals—(a) Horses, cattle, sheep, swine, poultry. (b) Types, breeds, breeding, feeding. (c) Dairy-ing, milk testing, study of products.

Projects—Feeding dairy herd and accurate records of feeds and products; swine, raising and fattening; poultry, housing, feeding, selection with accounts.

Judging of corn and potatoes.

Study of soils, classification, management; fertilizers, plant foods, value, liming soil. Early care of crops.

We now have earnest, faithful and efficient teachers, and pupils of good ability. Much depends upon the interest and support shown by the public. Warner has in the past shown a spirit of progress in relation to her schools and in other public matters as well, and we now believe that she will continue to give to her schools wise and generous support, realizing that well educated minds are needed in all the affairs of life.

Respectfully submitted,

EDMUND C. COLE,

Local Superintendent.

To the Trustees of the Pillsbury Free Library:

In looking forward, whether to some important change you contemplate, or a trip you hope to take, or whatever it may be, a year seems a long time ahead; but when it comes to making a yearly report one feels that only a few months have elapsed since the last one, and there is not much that is new to be said, and it has become more than a twice-told tale.

One librarian of my acquaintance confines herself entirely to statistics, getting them into the smallest possible compass, the result being that one year is very like another, only a change of a few figures.

Another gives her trustees a great deal of advice as to what should or should not be done, something wholly unnecessary in our Library, where every request is met so cheerfully that one would hesitate long before even hinting for anything that was not very essential.

Our circulation has been larger than for several years: 494 cards have been issued—93 more than last year—and 8710 books borrowed (not including those in school cabinets) and 369 magazines. 258 books have been purchased, 13 given, and 5 added by binding. We have bought many valuable works, some that we could not have had except for the Pattee fund,—books of travel, history and biography for the most part. Stanley Hall's "Adolescence," in two volumes, has been added, and an exhaustive work on "Birds of the World," of 870 pages, which will be valuable for reference.

Mr. Fred Harris made two much-needed book stacks, like those he made for us a few years ago. Every Library has expensive and important books and documents, many of which are given with the understanding that they are not to be taken from the building, such as the costly set of the Luther Burbank books, and some now out of print that cannot be replaced. For such as these Mr. Harris made two elegant bookcases, with glass doors and with closets underneath, all furnished with locks.

In reading the papers in the Library journals we find various suggestions of "how to increase your circulation," and the like. Many of them we have tried for years with more or less success. In regard to bulletins on special subjects, they do not always meet with the response one would expect. During the year we have bought a large number of books relating to children and schools.

After the formation of the Child Welfare and Parent-Teachers' Associations, a partial list of those especially helpful was printed and the volumes placed on a table, where they would be easily accessible to those interested, but very few have availed themselves of the opportunity, and some of those that did was in consequence of the personal effort of the school board. One exception should be made. Many of the teachers have used them faithfully.

A large number of books of travel have been read and enjoyed. There are readers to whom nothing appeals but travel, biography and history, and their number increases.

Our young people are doing finely, and most of them showing good taste in what they select. One little fellow whose head hardly comes above the counter was very much disappointed because "Frederick the Great" was not in.

Some of the boys have been reading Ian Hay's "First Hundred Thousand," and "Kitchener's Mob," and I have no doubt they can give a good synopsis of them.

There are not many persons who show such powers of observation and knowledge of wild flowers as some boys I know. It is a pleasure to hear them talk of what they have seen in their walks.

No one has a better opportunity to know boys than a person in a public place, and it is very gratifying to have such boys as we have here, both big and little, growing up to be our future citizens. Our hope and our confidence is in them and they will not fail us.

Before closing I must mention a few of the appreciative words that are spoken of our Library from time to time. One minister, whose home was in a large town with a "Carnegie," with everything modern, children's room, paintings, statuary, said: "I wish we could have some of your books—we don't have them." Another man who moved to a large city, with everything to be desired in the way of a Library building, said: "They may have good books there, but I have not been able to find them." We hear similar remarks very often, and the complaint comes from the larger libraries with plenty of money.

There have been many and great changes in our town in the last few years, and it is very depressing to turn back over the record, and see the names of so many who were constant readers, who have moved from town, of families that have become extinct, and of the great number who have passed from our sight to that country, where, to quote one of our friends, Gen. John Eaton, who has himself joined the Great Majority, they have something "infinitely better than books."

Respectfully submitted,

MARY BARTLETT HARRIS.

Report of Health Officer.

The attention of the inhabitants of the town is called to the following conditions necessary for the maintenance of the public health. A pure water supply is essential to the health of any community, and in this regard our town is particularly fortunate to have an abundance of water of excellent quality. A clean milk supply with proper care of the milk until used is also essential, and again in this regard we are well served, our several milkmen possessing clean cows and stables, and exercise proper care in handling and distributing clean milk of the best quality. Sanitary disposal of drainage from sinks and closets needs consideration. Connect your buildings with the sewer system if possible. If not, install a septic tank, but in any case use care that proper disposition of the drainage is made and that no water course or supply is contaminated. Flies breed in manure, and mosquitoes in water; the free use of lime on and the frequent stirring of the manure pile will prevent the breeding of the former, while the cleaning up of water about the buildings in pails, tin cans or pools will help exterminate the latter. Fresh air is good at all times, but the best method of application is at night while you sleep. Nail up the bedroom window. Personal cleanliness and neatness of all premises and grounds is good preventative medicine. The children, our most valuable asset, need much care. Their correct feeding while infants lays a solid foundation on which to erect a sound body; early recognition and prompt treatment of eye and ear defects are invaluable; frequent attention to their teeth is important and supervision of their health while in school is essential. Eternal vigilance is the price of success in many ways and best of all in the matter of health. Consult the health officer on any subject that comes to your attention along these lines and assistance will be cheerfully given.

A measles epidemic extending from the second week in November, 1916, to the last week of January, 1917, is worthy of consideration. The disease was brought to town by a scholar in our village schools who attended school with the prodromal cough of measles for a day before it was recognized, with the inevitable result of an epidemic of measles of 91 cases. All ages were afflicted from seven weeks to 69 years. Most cases were of the mild type, causing little disturbance, but one death resulting at 65 years with complication of pneumonia.

New Hampshire's Health Day occurred this year on January 19th and arrangements were made with the teachers of the schools in town, whereby discussions and lectures on health topics were held as a part of the afternoon program. Care of teeth, face and hands, ventilation and exercise, effects of tobacco on the human system, and the circulation of the blood were the subjects generally used throughout the schools. More attention should be given to this Health Day that it may be properly observed in some of the many ways which would tend to improve conditions conducive to health in our state.

Infantile paralysis created some excitement during the past summer and as a result these few facts concerning the disease will be of interest. Poliomyelitis or infantile paralysis is a disease of the spinal cord or of its extensions into the brain. The cause of infantile paralysis is a microorganism, or so-called virus, which has been positively identified, and which is present in the nervous tissues and other organs of those who have died of the disease, and also in the secretions of the nose and throat and bowel discharges of those suffering from the disease. Evidence shows that infantile paralysis may be spread from person to person. The disease takes a mild form where there is no paralysis and a more severe form with paralysis. The recognition of the milder form is difficult and may be responsible for the fact that contact between two distinct cases can seldom be traced. The incubation period is less than two weeks and in a majority of cases from three to eight days. Infants and young children are most often affected, older children and adults less frequently so. The onset of the disease may be very sudden or gradual.

The early symptoms are usually fever, weakness, irritability, sometimes convulsions and vomiting. At first there may not be pain, but later there is pain in the neck, back, arms and legs, with great weakness. Stiffness of the neck is an early diagnostic sign. If paralysis is to occur it usually appears from the second to the fifth day after the sickness begins. The disease is contracted by receiving the virus into the nose and throat, where it grows rapidly and soon invades the brain or spinal cord through small passages in the upper part of the nasal cavity. The walls of the blood vessels supplying the nerve cells are invaded, their blood supply shut off by a constriction of the vessel, degeneration of the nerve cells results, with a consequent paralysis of the muscles supplied by these nerves.

To guard against the disease parents should keep their houses clean, never allow dry sweeping, screen windows against flies, and kill all flies in the house. Do not allow garbage or refuse to accumulate about the buildings. Pay special attention to body cleanliness by giving children frequent baths, keep them outdoors, and give them plenty of vegetables and clean milk. In other words, sanitary measures about your home and personal hygiene for your children thereby increasing the individual resistance to disease by keeping them in good health.

There is no specific treatment of established value for infantile paralysis. During the acute symptoms the treatment is rest in bed, relief of symptoms and passive support for the prevention of deformities. Active measures during this stage are useless, and are apt to cause serious or permanent injury. The child should go to a hospital if possible. The best chances of recovery from the after-paralysis demand long continued care under the direction of a physician familiar with such cases.

L. H. COGSWELL, M. D., Health Officer.
