Acknowledgments

I would like to thank Professor David Bachrach for all of the support and guidance he provided for me during the writing of this thesis. Without his patience and counsel I would never have taken on this project and would never have been able to see it through to completion. I would also like to thank Michael Hayes Gregory for helping me to become interested in the topic and for his constant advice and support. Professor Cathy Frierson was incredibly helpful as well as the Honors advisor for the department and has my heartfelt thanks. I would like to extend my appreciation to Professors Gregory McMahon and Cynthia Van Zandt, who served on my Thesis Defense Committee and who gave me wonderful advice about how to proceed with the topic in the future. Finally I would like to thank the institutions that made these manuscripts available to me, specifically the British Royal Library, the Bibliothèque Nationale de France, and the Bodleian Library at Oxford. Without their digital collections this research quite literally would not have been possible, and I am grateful to them for opportunity that they have provided for myself and all other researchers.
Table of Contents

Introduction 1

Chapter One: Historiography 10

Chapter Two: The History of Outremer 25

Chapter Three: Les Grandes Chroniques de France 45

Chapter Four: The Roman d’Alexandre en Prose 65

Chapter Five: Conclusion 82

Bibliography 88