TWO VICTORIES ONE DEFEAT.

Team Wins From Maine and Fort Williams.

The baseball team played three games in Maine last week, winning from Fort Williams of Portland 13 to 5; beating the University of Maine 3 to 1; and losing to Bates by the score, 6 to 4. Hard hitting and masterly pitching by Adams together with good fielding, won the two first games; while the last was lost on misplays in the field after New Hampshire had obtained a lead of four runs in the first inning.

Game With Soldiers.

Bunched hits in the first four innings and Sanborn's good work in the box enabled New Hampshire to gather 11 runs against the soldiers of Fort Williams in Portland Harbor. This game was originally scheduled with Fort McKinley but discipline prevented it; so Fort Williams was substituted. In the fourth inning Kiley replaced Sanborn in the box, but he was hit heavily and was forced to retire in favor of his predecessor. Kiley, O'Connor, and Sanborn hit the ball consistently while Swasey played a good fielding game. The summary:

Maine Game.

The pitching of Adams for New Hampshire was a feature of the game with Maine Friday when the latter team was defeated by the score 3 to 1. He pitched wonderful baseball, holding the opposing team to six scattered hits and when Maine looked at all dangerous he was always master of the situation. He fanned 11 men.

New Hampshire's runs were made in the first and third innings while Maine was able to make one tally in the third. Welch and Swasey each hit safely three times. Swasey and Welch starred in the field. The summary:

Bates Game.

At the end of the first inning of the game with Bates last Saturday afternoon, it looked as though the team that beat Harvard a short time ago was about to taste defeat, for New Hampshire had piled up four runs on clean hit and errors by Bates men. Anderson, however for the home team settled down after the first round and held his opponents under control. Meanwhile, by a combination of hits and errors by McPheters, Reardon, Jones, and Swasey, Bates tied the score and later was able to obtain a two run lead which could not be overcome. Swasey featured the game by a three-base hit over the left fielder's head. The summary:

STRIKE ENDED LAST MONDAY.

Three Classes Struck. Brackett Suspended.

The strike of the three lower classes came to an end last Monday evening, shortly after six o'clock. The two lower classes refused to attend recitations last Thursday morning, following the action of Pres. Gibbs and the administration committee, to re-instate W. H. L. Brackett, the sophomore class president, who had been suspended for the remainder of the term, while the matter was being arbitrated. Brackett was suspended for ringing a false fire alarm last Monday, and for failure to report to the President's office, when asked to do so.

The junior class struck Friday morning, because the President posted notice that he would take away scholarships, make the classes re-registry one-half annual tuition fees; then, expel them, if they did not return to college in the time limit set, Tuesday noon.

The executive committee of the trustees were in Durham all day Monday, and met the administration committee, and committees of the three lower classes. They left on the 5.33 train, before the matter was settled.

Pres. W. D. Gibbs called a meeting of the class committees in his office after the trustees had left town. The committees voted to call off the strike unconditionally, but set no time limit. Pres. Gibbs then stated he shortened Brackett's penalty to two weeks suspension, and that he placed him on probation for the remainder of the term. The committee then adjourned, and accepting the president's change of decision, voted to call off the strike forever.

Pres. Gibbs stated that students who returned to classes immediately would not forfeit scholarships, or have to re-register, or pay one-half annual tuition fees. Out of town students were given a reasonable length of time to return.

Students returned to their classes Tuesday morning, and notice was sent to students, who had left town during the strike, to return.

A story of the strike in detail from the student's view point is as follows. The trustees state that the student body took a radical action in the matter, in not consulting them, before striking.

Culminating a long list of grievances of the student body against the President and Administration Committee, matters were at last brought to a head by the suspension of W. H. L. Brackett, president of the sophomore class. Every possible means was tried at the start to adjust the matter in a sane and sensible way, and only when it was recognized as being absolutely necessary was the strike declared.

The affair originated in the successful get-away of the sophomores for their class banquet. All arrangements for this had been left to a committee of three consisting of R. W. Smart, R. W. Garland, and President W. H. L. Brackett, and the class voted to take the responsibility for whatever this committee did. The committee delegated Brackett to ring the bell, and accordingly at about 9.45 o'clock on Monday morning he went to the tower and rang it, not, however, in the way prescribed a fire signal, but merely sending forth a conglomerate sequence of disconnected peals. At this the entire student body turned out, and when smoke was pointed out in the direction of Madbury, the two lower classes and few upper classmen who did not know about the ruse started in that direction. Practically all the upper-class men, however, were back by ten o'clock; but nevertheless nearly all had lost forever the appalling sum of fifteen valuable minutes from recitations. The sophomores escaped during the excitement.

While Brackett was ringing the bell, President Gibbs went to the tower and asked him who told him to ring the bell. In order to save the valuable time that exhaustive explanations would require, and shouldering the responsibility himself, Brackett replied, "I am ringing it on my own initiative." The President then asked Brackett to report to him at his office when he came down. Every college man, every alumnus, can realize the position that Brackett was in. By being delayed a few minutes, the chances are that he would have been caught, and his capture meant defeat for his class. Naturally, then, he did what any fellow would have done in his place, he left Durham as quickly as possible.

The class then went to Boston and enjoyed their banquet at the American House. There, it was unanimously voted that the class should take the responsibility in full for Brackett's act.

Tuesday morning immediately on his return to Durham Brackett went to the president's office. The latter refused to see him and it was thought that the matter had blown over and was not to be harped upon. At three p. m. of the same day, Brackett received a letter from the president notifying him of his suspension for ringing a "false alarm of fire" (meaning the bell in T. Hall) and failing to report to the president as requested. The letter in full is as follows (insert letter)

At 4.00 p. m. there was a meeting of the sophomores. Since it was agreed that the class was entirely responsible for the act of their president, a committee was appointed to confer with President Gibbs and if possible to have the punishment put upon the class as a whole instead of upon Brackett alone. The committee, consisting of J. A. Tufts, C. J. Dresser, L. S. Riford, J. R. O'Connor, R. H. Foss, H. R. McCartney and chairman G. L. Ham, vice-president of the sophomore class, sent a representative to President Gibbs for an appointment. The latter said that if the committee was to say anything about Brackett he would not meet them, absolutely not. Finally, however, with the understanding that the conference was to be over class affairs and that Brackett's name was not to be mentioned, an appointment was made for the following morning.

At 9.00 a. m. Wednesday, the president met the committee in his office. Brackett's name was used freely by both parties and the president did not "walk out" as he had said he would. The committee stated its case and tried to have the punishment put upon the class as a whole. The president refused to look upon it as a class affair. He said that Brackett was suspended solely on the

A GOOD TRIP.

The trip from which the baseball team has lately returned shows much more favorable results than the two formerly taken. The victory over Fort Williams, followed by the handy one over Maine, and the closely fought contest with Bates which was lost, show that the team is playing a high article of ball. It is particularly fortunate that "Mick" Welch has been able to get back into the game in the backstop position. His clever work there and with the stick have aided greatly in these three games. As for that matter, however there was undoubtedly never a harder hitting team than this sent from the college; nearly every man including Gowen the new recruit, is hitting for one or more bases every game and in a logical way that brings returns. The fellows have struck their strid and from now on there should be no difficulty in annexing a majority of victories in the remaining games.

THE STRIKE.

The feeling of unrest, dissatisfaction, or whatever term may be applied, that has had the student body in its grasp for some time past, has culminated in the acts that have occupied our attention during the week just gone. The strike that was thought by so many to be impossible came and found what surprised the croakers most of all, that the student body could be a unit, practically to a man.

What have been the results? To our mind there have been several. First, the student body, as stated above, found itself able to unify and to follow the lead of well-chosen committees. The three classes knew what they were after and stuck for that object. Second, the faculty found that there was more than "hot-air" and childishness in the grievances as presented by the classes. They found that the cry for a thorough square deal was the thing that could hold a deep place in the heart of every student. Third, the students found that when troubles of a deep nature arise that if the cause be just, a quick response can be had from the Trustees.

Fourth, the Trustees themselves have as a result, come into closer touch with the institution than ever before, and they have a better understanding with it than formerly.

The strike was perhaps premature and came before all other means of settlement had been tried, (which however is an unproven statement), but its object—to show everyone that there was cause for immediate and very definite action—was worthy. Credit must be given to the loyal feeling that prompted the step, whatever private opinion may be.

But the trouble is over, and the matter is settled with what we hope is a finality such that nothing of the sort can ever be known here again. The quick and able response given by the committee of the Trustees when they were called upon, the action of the faculty in giving verbally their unanimous support to the President, and the reasonableness of the freshman, sophomore and junior class committees in accepting the final settlement are all to be commended most heartily.

Now, that we are once again going along in the usual way it is of paramount importance that all feeling of a personal nature which may have been aroused be forgotten, and that everyone pull together to wipe out adverse opinions concerning the college that may have been promulgated, in spite of the unusual fair accounts that have appeared in the newspapers. We must all pull together with a surer feeling than ever before, of respect and love for the college itself.

merits of his ringing the bell and failing to report at the office as requested. During the conference he tried three distinct times to get the committee to say that they intended to strike, but each time it was said that no such action had been taken by the class, but that their purpose was merely to investigate the matter and arbitrate if possible.

He then asked them if they wanted to know what would happen if they did strike. They did care to know. He pressed his point and they allowed him to say "When you strike you lose your scholarships, and to register again it will cost you thirty dollars." He also said that he would suspend the entire class for a time and if they were not back by a certain time the entire class would be expelled. "If necessary I will expel every man in college," said he.

At ten a. m. Wednesday a class meeting was held and the report of the committee received. The class then voted to appeal to the student council, which is supposed to have complete jurisdiction over class contests. At four o'clock the student council met in the president's office. The sophomore committee was called to state its case. This they did and then retired. The result of the secret session of the student council was that, since unjust punishment had been inflicted on President Brackett, a delegate, D. B. Keyes, was to appear before the administration committee in his behalf. The administration committee, however, could not be met until twelve o'clock the following day.

At 5.30 p. m. Wednesday the sophomore class met, and drew up this motion which they placed in the hands of the administration committee through President Gibbs:

"Moved, seconded, and carried that W. H. L. Brackett be reinstated by 8 a. m., May 2, as a member of the class of 1914 in former standing during all arbitration."

President Gibbs said that the administration committee would not take action upon it. He looked upon it lightly, saying that it was a good joke and fit to frame.

At eight o'clock Thursday morning the class met and was informed that Brackett was not reinstated. After discussion, it was unanimously voted to cease attending recitations until the matter was suitably adjusted, and that a petition be placed in the hands of each of the trustees asking for immediate action on the matter. A formal notification of their action was sent to the president, and also the class of 1915 then in session was notified and urged not to strike, but to act on its own responsibility.

The class of 1915 considering the punishment of the sophomore class president as being out of all proportion to the misdemeanor and his refusal to arbitrate this class affair as being unreasonable, voted to cease attending recitations until the matter was suitably settled. The sophomore class numbering forty and the freshman class numbering seventy-five made a total of one hundred fifteen students on the strike. Many at once left for their homes, and all negotiations were left in charge of committees.

That noon, Pres. Gibbs posted notices on bulletin board stating freshmen and sophomores would lose scholarships, have to re-register, and pay one half annual tuition, if they did not return by Friday noon. Later, this time was extended until Monday. They would be expelled if they did not return by Tuesday.

On the following day the junior class held a class meeting at 7.30 a. m. At this meeting it was voted that they, the juniors, deemed the alternatives laid down for the sophomore and freshmen

AN AID TO DO BETTER WORK

Accessories or supplies tending to promote the Dairy Industry are quickly appreciated by those interested. They may be either time savers, means of economy or aids to better work.

is just such an accessory. Its peculiar properties makes it such.

The cleansing ingredients of Wyandotte Dairyman's Vleaner and Cleanser do more than merely remove the common surface accumulations, it does the exceptional by removing the unseen bacteria which are the most dangerous enemies to pure clean milk. Furthermore, it adds the distinct, fresh odor of cleanliness wherever it is used.

No other dairy celaning material approaches Wyandotte Dairyman's Cleaner and Cleanser either in quality of its cleaning or in the idealness of its composition. These facts are confirmed in the recommendations given Wyandotte Dairyman's Cleaner and Cleanser by men no less prominent than State Dairy Inspectors and Agricultural Authorities.

If you wish to spend less time cleaning your dairy and still do your work better, or if you want to keep milk in the freshest, cleanest condition just ask your dealer for a sack of Wyandotte Cleaner and Cleanser, or write your supply man for a keg or barrel.

Satisfaction is guaranteed.
