ROMNEY LEADS UNSETTLED GOP FIELD IN NH

DURHAM, NH – Mitt Romney continues to lead a very unsettled field vying for the Republican presidential nomination in New Hampshire. Romney is viewed more favorably than his competitors in almost all policy issues and personality characteristics

These findings are based on the latest CNN / WMUR New Hampshire Primary Poll conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. Seven hundred eighty-four (784) randomly selected New Hampshire adults were interviewed by telephone between May 17 and May 22, 2011. The margin of sampling error for the entire sample is +/- 3.5%. Included was a sample of 347 likely 2012 Republican Primary voters (margin of sampling error +/-5.2%) and 289 likely Democratic Primary voters (margin of sampling error +/- 5.8%).

NH Republican Primary

In the past several weeks, there has been significant change in the field of potential candidates for the Republican nomination. Mike Huckabee, Donald Trump, Haley Barbour, and Mitch Daniels have all decided not to run, while Newt Gingrich, Herman Cain, Ron Paul, Tim Pawlenty, and Rick Santorum have formally announced their candidacies. In addition, several nationally known Republican figures have not officially entered the race, but have also not discounted a run, including Mitt Romney, Sarah Palin, Rudy Giuliani, Michele Bachman, and Jon Huntsman. But among New Hampshire Republicans, Mitt Romney continues to hold a sizable lead over other Republicans.

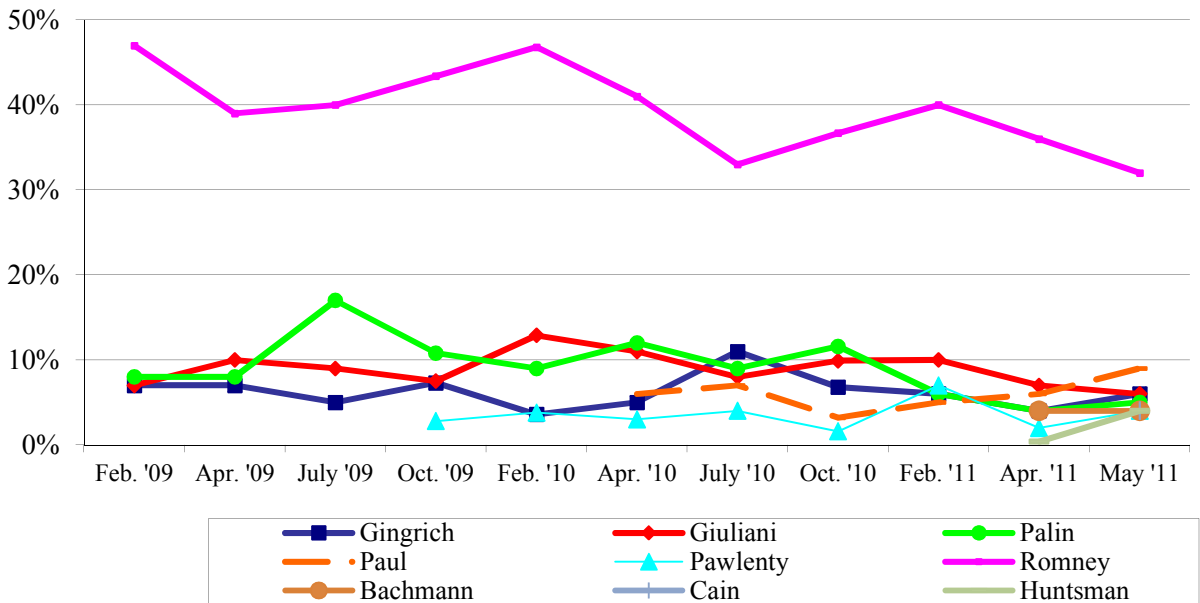

In the most recent CNN / WMUR New Hampshire Primary Poll, 32% of likely Republican primary voters said they would vote for Romney if the election were held today, followed by Paul (9%), Giuliani (6%), Gingrich (6%), Palin (5%), Bachmann (4%), Pawlenty (4%), Cain (4%), Huntsman (4%), Santorum (2%). Mitch Daniels, who dropped out of the race Sunday, held 4% of the Republican vote, 3% preferred some other candidate and 17% were undecided about who they would support.

Daniels dropping out of the race has little impact on the field. When the second choice of Daniels supporters is included, Romney still leads with 33% , followed by Paul (9%), Gingrich (7%), Giuliani (6%), and Palin (5%).

A further indication of the unsettled nature of this race is that the great majority of New Hampshire Republicans have not decided who they will eventually support. When asked how sure they are in their support, only 4% of likely Republican primary voters say they have definitely decided who they will vote for, 9% say they are leaning toward voting for a candidate, while 87% say they have no idea who they will end up voting for.

“The shifting nature of the Republican field and a perception that the ‘perfect candidate’ candidate has not appeared, has led many New Hampshire Republicans to support the best known candidate, Mitt Romney,” said Andrew Smith, Director of the UNH Survey Center. “Romney has been the clear favorite among New Hampshire Republicans for more than two years and no other candidate has persuaded voters to move away from Romney.”

NH 2012 GOP Presidential Primary – Likely Republican Primary Voters

Candidate Qualities

Likely Republican primary voters were asked several questions about characteristics of the Republican candidates. Romney leads the Republican field in each category. Romney is seen as the strongest leader, named by 40% of likely GOP primary voters, followed by Giuliani (12%) and Gingrich (11%). He is also seen as the candidate with the right experience (37%), and most importantly, as the candidate who can beat President Obama in November (42%).

“Republicans are looking for someone who can take on President Obama, and right now, Romney is seen as the only Republican who can do that,” said Smith.

In other characteristics, Romney is seen by 29% as the most likeable candidate, followed by Palin (10%), Giuliani (8%), and Paul (7%). Romney is also seen to be the best representative of Republican values, named by 24% of likely Republican primary voters, followed by Paul (9%), Gingrich (8%), and Bachmann (7%).

Romney’s greatest difficulty comes in the area of believability. When asked which candidate is most believable, Romney is named by 20% followed by Paul (12%), Gingrich (7%), and Palin (6%).

Issues

Likely Republican voters were also asked about which candidate they thought could best handle several issues facing the country and Romney leads the Republican field in three out of four of these issues. Romney is seen as the best person handle the economy, named by 44% of likely GOP Primary voters, followed by Gingrich (7%), Paul (6%), and Cain (4%).

When asked which candidate could best handle the budget deficit, Romney is named by 37%, followed by Paul (7%), Gingrich (7%), and Daniels (5%).

Despite Republican’s animosity toward national health care reform and his Massachusetts version of health reform, Romney is seen by 31% of likely Republican primary voters to be the best candidate to handle health care issues, followed by Paul (8%), Gingrich (7%), and Palin (5%).

When asked which candidate can best handle terrorism, Giuliani is named by 19%, followed by Romney (16%), Gingrich (13%), and Paul (5%).

A Democratic Primary?

New Hampshire Democrats are solidly behind President Obama as their 2012 candidate. When asked if they would vote for President Obama or another Democratic candidate, 73% of likely Democratic primary voters said they will vote for Obama, only 6% said they would vote for another Democrat, and 21% are unsure. The percentage of Democrats who say they will vote for Obama is at its highest point, and indication that there is little support for a Democratic challenge.

CNN / WMUR NH Primary Poll Methodology

Seven hundred eighty-four (784) randomly selected New Hampshire adults were interviewed by telephone between May 17 and May 22, 2011. The margin of sampling error for the entire sample is +/- 3.5%. Included was a sample of 347 likely 2012 Republican Primary voters (margin of sampling error +/-5.2%) and 289 likely Democratic Primary voters (margin of sampling error +/- 5.8%). Results reported for other subgroups have potential for somewhat larger variation than those for the entire population.

The data have been weighted to adjust for numbers of voters and telephone lines within households, respondent sex, and region of the state. In addition to potential sampling error, all surveys have other potential sources of non-sampling error including question order effects, question wording effects, and non-response.
