DURHAM, NH – Republican Kelly Ayotte is in a strong position to defeat Democrat Paul Hodes in the race for U.S. Senate in New Hampshire. Most voters have now made up their minds who to support in this race.

These findings are based on the latest WMUR / UNH New Hampshire Election Poll,* conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. Eight hundred and eighty-five (885) randomly selected New Hampshire likely voters were interviewed by telephone between October 27 and October 31, 2010. The margin of sampling error for the survey is +/- 3.3 percent.

2010 U.S. Senate Race

Former Attorney General Kelly Ayotte has increased her lead over her Democratic challenger, Congressman Paul Hodes in the final weeks of the campaign for the U.S. Senate seat from New Hampshire. This had been seen as a close race, but Hodes has not been able to cut into Ayotte's lead. Currently, 54% of New Hampshire likely voters say they will vote for Ayotte, 36% back Hodes, 1% say they will vote for Libertarian candidate Ken Blevens, 1% will vote for Independent Chris Booth, and 8% are undecided. Ayotte's lead over Hodes is unchanged since late September.

When undecided voters are allocated to the candidate they are most likely to support, Ayotte gets 58%, Hodes gets 40% and other candidates get 2%.

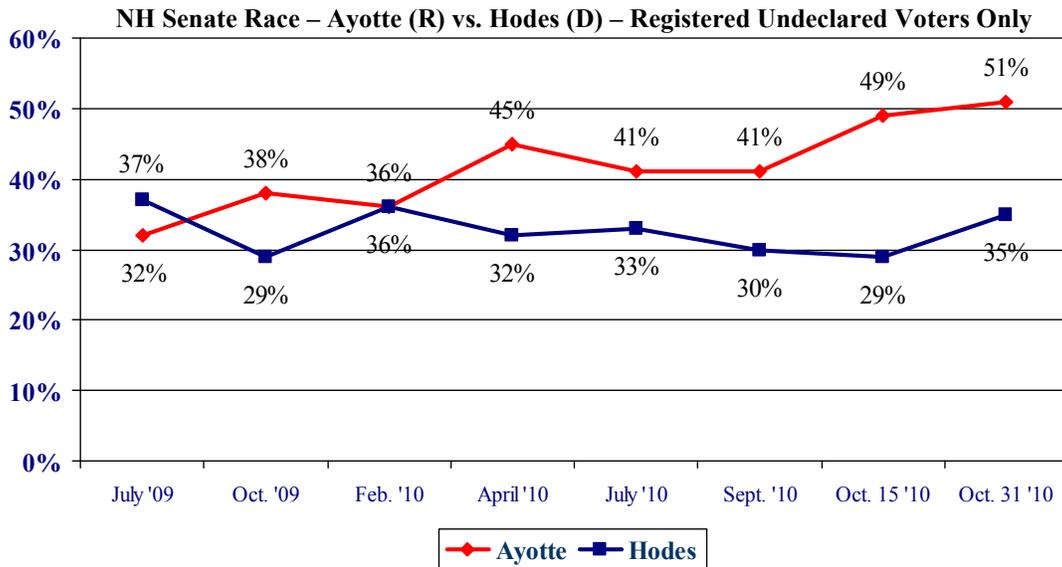

Ayotte gets her strongest support from Republicans and voters in towns along the Massachusetts border. Hodes' strongest support comes from Democrats, voters with post graduate educations, and residents of the Concord area and the Connecticut River valley.

Ayotte also benefits from greater enthusiasm among Republicans. Among voters who say they are extremely interested in the election, Ayotte holds a 58% to 36% lead over Hodes. And among voters who say they are excited about the elections in November, Ayotte holds an even larger lead, 71% to 22%.

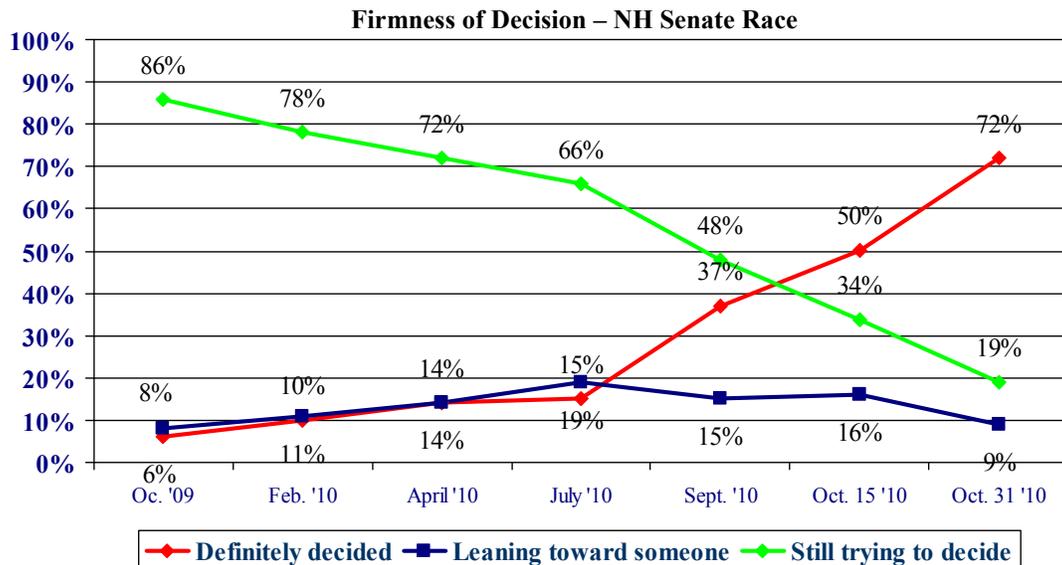

Ayotte has neutralized the traditional advantage Democrats have held among women voters in New Hampshire. Among women, Ayotte leads 47% to 40% and she holds a 60% to 32% advantage among men.

Ayotte also leads among Undeclared voters, often referred to as Independents, by 51% to 35%. Ayotte also has stronger support among her partisans than does Hodes – 89% of registered Republicans say they will vote for Ayotte while only 77% of registered Democrats say they will vote for Hodes.

Decisions Being Made

As the election approaches, most voters have definitely decided on who they will vote for. Currently, 72% of likely voters say they have definitely decided who they will vote for, 9% are leaning to a candidate, and 19% are still trying to decide. Ayotte leads Hodes by 58% to 40% among voters who have definitely decided who they will support.

These findings are based on the latest WMUR / UNH New Hampshire Election Poll, conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. Eight hundred and eighty-five (885) randomly selected New Hampshire likely voters were interviewed by telephone between October 27 and October 31, 2010. The margin of sampling error for the survey is +/- 3.3 percent.

The data have been weighted to adjust for numbers of adults and telephone lines within households, respondent sex, and region of the state. In addition to potential sampling error, all surveys have other potential sources of non-sampling error including question order effects, question wording effects, and non-response.
