DURHAM, NH – Governor John Lynch’s job approval ratings in New Hampshire have remained high. Concerns about state’s economy and the state budget remain the top problems on the minds of New Hampshire residents.

These findings are based on the latest WMUR Granite State Poll,* conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. Five hundred four (504) randomly selected New Hampshire adults were interviewed by telephone between July 19 and July 27, 2010. The margin of sampling error for the survey is +/- 4.4 percent. Included was a subsample of 453 likely 2010 general election voters (margin of sampling error +/-4.6%).

Gubernatorial Approval

Despite ongoing concerns about the state economy and the state budget, Granite Staters generally approve of the job John Lynch is doing as governor. In the most recent Granite State Poll, 59% of NH adults say they approve of the way he is handling his job as governor, 27% disapprove, and 15% are neutral or don’t know. Lynch’s job approval ratings have held steady since April after having been in decline over the past year. However, Lynch has maintained the support of Democrats (78% approve) and Independents (54%). His support from Republicans is surprisingly high in an election year, currently 38% of Republicans approve of the job he is doing as governor.

Lynch's personal favorability ratings have also remained steady for more than a year. In the latest Granite State Poll, 61% of New Hampshire adults say they have a favorable opinion of Lynch, 22% have an unfavorable opinion, 9% are neutral, and 8% say they don't know enough about him to say. Lynch's net favorability rating, the percentage having a favorable opinion minus the percentage having an unfavorable opinion, is a high +39%. Lynch receives a high net favorability from Democrats (+66%) as well as from Independents (+27%), and his net favorability among Republicans (-6%) is much higher than that given to other state Democrats.

2010 NH Gubernatorial Race – John Stephen vs. John Lynch – Likely Voters

Lynch has faced easy reelection challenges in 2006 and 2008, and is attempting to become the first New Hampshire governor to win a fourth two-year term. Republicans who have declared their candidacy remain largely unknown to voters. Former Health and Human Services Commissioner John Stephen is the best known challenger, though he remains unfamiliar to most state residents. In the most recent Granite State Poll, 18% of New Hampshire adults have a favorable opinion of Stephen, 16% have an unfavorable opinion of him, 5% are neutral, and 61% don't know enough about him to say. Stephen's net favorability stands at +2%, up from -2% in April. Businessman Jack Kimball is running but is largely unknown – only 6% have a favorable opinion of Kimball, 4% have an unfavorable opinion, and 90% are either neutral or don't know enough about him to say.

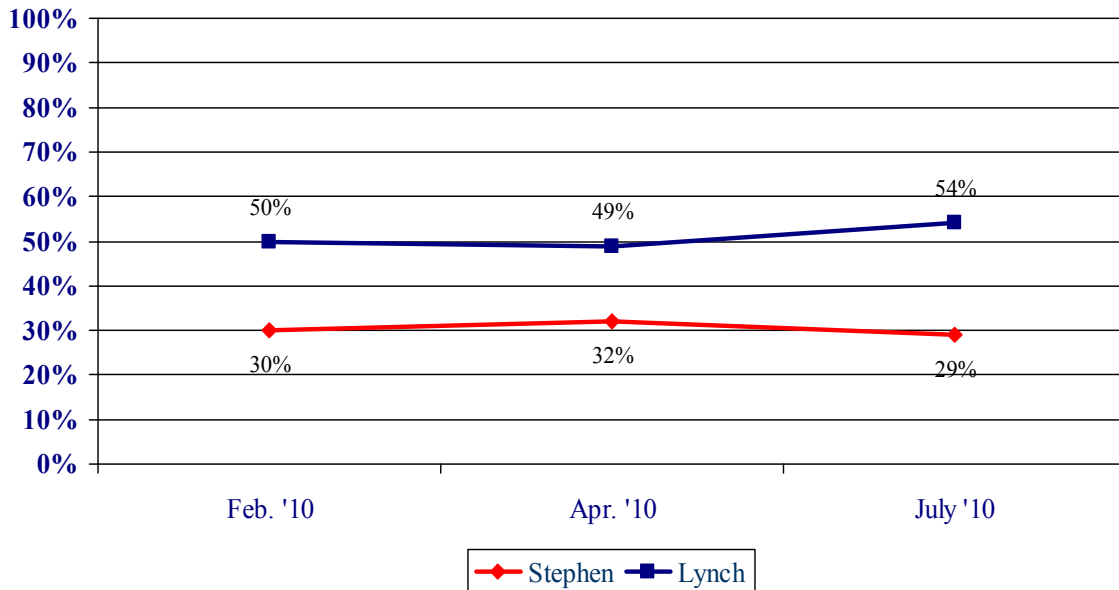

Favorability Ratings – John Stephen

In a hypothetical matchup between John Lynch and John Stephen, 54% of likely 2010 voters say would vote Lynch, 29% would vote for Stephen, 2% would choose some other candidate, and 15% are undecided. Lynch receives strong support among Democrats (86%) and half of Independents (50%), as well as receiving the support from nearly a quarter of Republicans (22%).

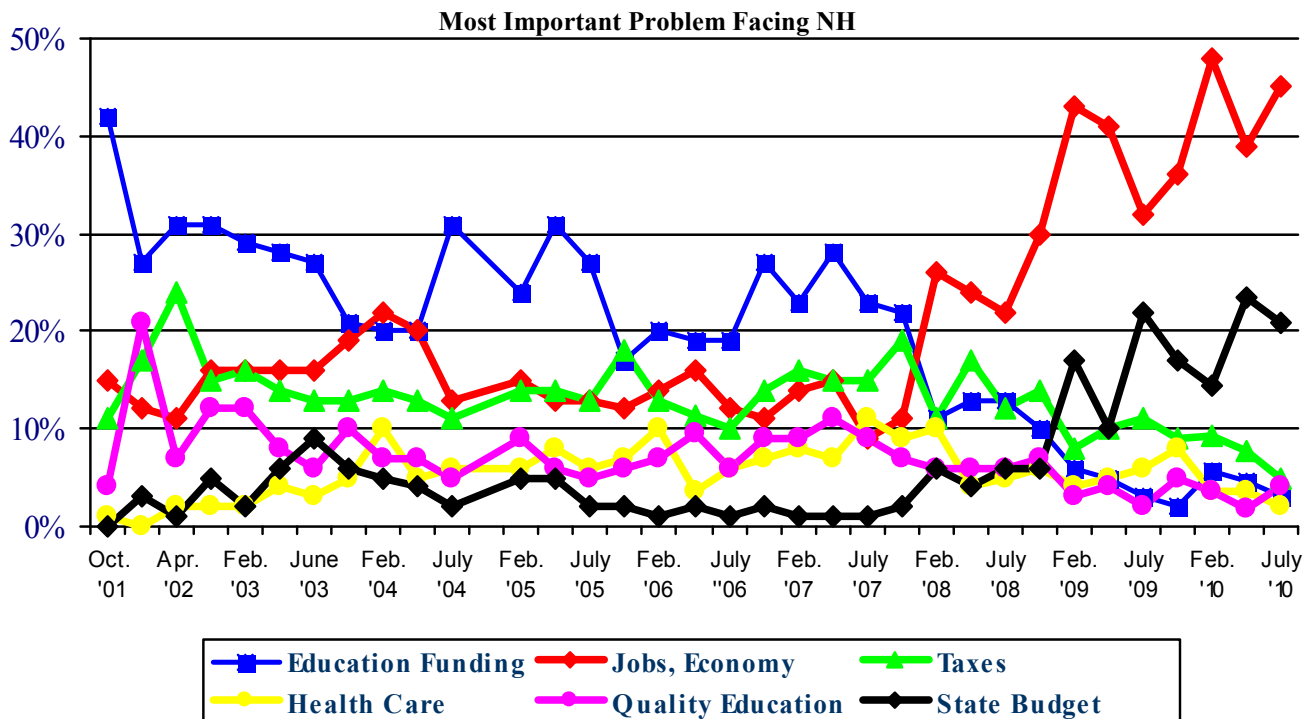

“Lynch has maintained strong approval and personal favorability ratings for over a year now,” said Andrew Smith, Director of the UNH Survey Center. “And as the state’s economy and state budget continue to improve, it will be very difficult for Stephen to gain ground on Lynch.”

Most Important Problem Facing New Hampshire

New Hampshire residents remained concerned about the state’s economy and unemployment, and the state’s budget problems. In the latest Granite State Poll, 45% of New Hampshire adults say the economy and jobs is the most important issue facing the state, followed by the state budget (21%), high taxes (5%), education funding (3%), and health care (2%).

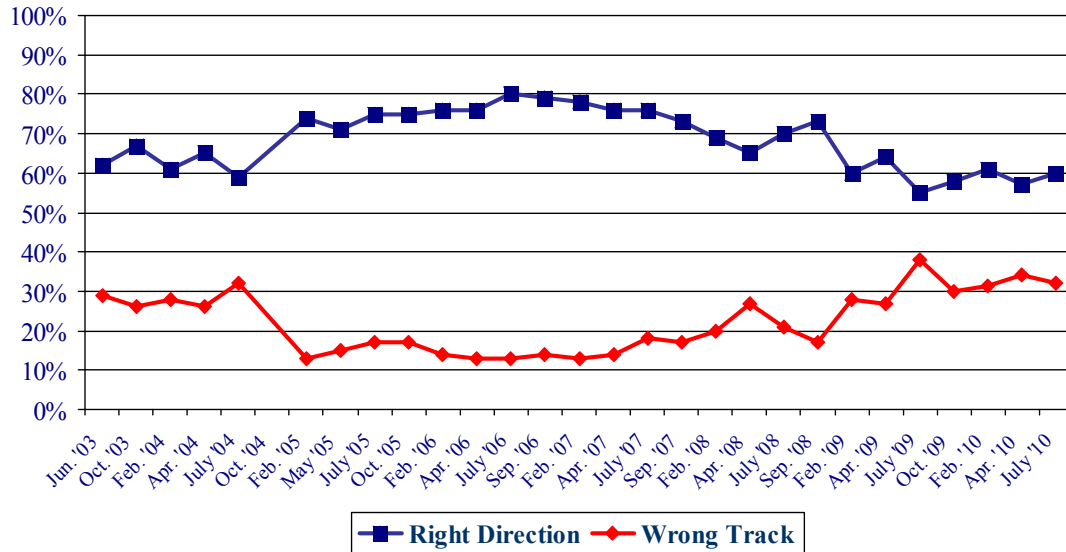

Right Direction or Wrong Track?

Although economic and budget problems persist, New Hampshire residents continue believe the state is headed in the right direction. Currently, 60% of New Hampshire adults feel the state is heading in the right direction, 32% think the state is seriously off on the wrong track, and 9% don't know.

Democrats, liberals, and upper income residents are most likely to think New Hampshire is headed in the right direction while Republicans, conservatives, and low income residents are most likely to say things are off on the wrong track.

Granite State Poll Methodology

These findings are based on the latest WMUR Granite State Poll, conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. Five hundred four (504) randomly selected New Hampshire adults were interviewed by telephone between July 19 and July 27, 2010. The margin of sampling error for the survey is +/- 4.4 percent. Included was a subsample of 453 likely 2010 general election voters (margin of sampling error +/-4.6%).

The data have been weighted to adjust for numbers of adults and telephone lines within households, respondent sex, and region of the state. In addition to potential sampling error, all surveys have other potential sources of non-sampling error including question order effects, question wording effects, and non-response.
