DURHAM, NH – Democratic candidates for US Senate and Congress face uphill battles in the 2010 mid-term elections. Former Attorney General Republican Kelly Ayotte has widened her lead over Second District Congressman Paul Hodes in the race for the US Senate from New Hampshire while other Republican challengers are essentially tied with Hodes. However, most voters are far from finally deciding who they will support. Congressperson Carol Shea-Porter trails all of her Republican challengers in New Hampshire's First District while former Republican Congressman Charlie Bass and 2008 GOP candidate Jennifer Horn lead the top two Democrats in the Second Congressional District.

These findings are based on the latest WMUR Granite State Poll,* conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. Five hundred (512) randomly selected New Hampshire adults were interviewed by telephone between April 18 and April 28, 2010. The margin of sampling error for the survey is +/- 4.4 percent. Included was a subsample of 462 likely 2010 general election voters (margin of sampling error +/-4.6%), a subsample of 258 adults in the NH First Congressional District (margin of sampling error +/-6.1%), and a subsample of 254 Second Congressional District adults (margin of sampling error +/-6.1%).

2010 U.S. Senate Race

The New Hampshire Senate seat continues to be one of the most closely watched in the country. Both Republicans and Democrats see this seat as critical to control of the Senate. Second District Congressman Paul Hodes is giving up his seat in Congress to run for the Senate against four Republicans -- former Attorney General Kelly Ayotte, Manchester attorney and former gubernatorial candidate Ovide Lamontagne, and businessmen Bill Binnie and Jim Bender – and faces stiff challenges from each of these candidates.

However, the election is 6 months away and most voters have not yet decided on who they will support. Only 14% say they have definitely decided who they plan to vote for, 14% say they are leaning toward a candidate, and 72% say they have considered some candidates, but are still trying to decide who to support.

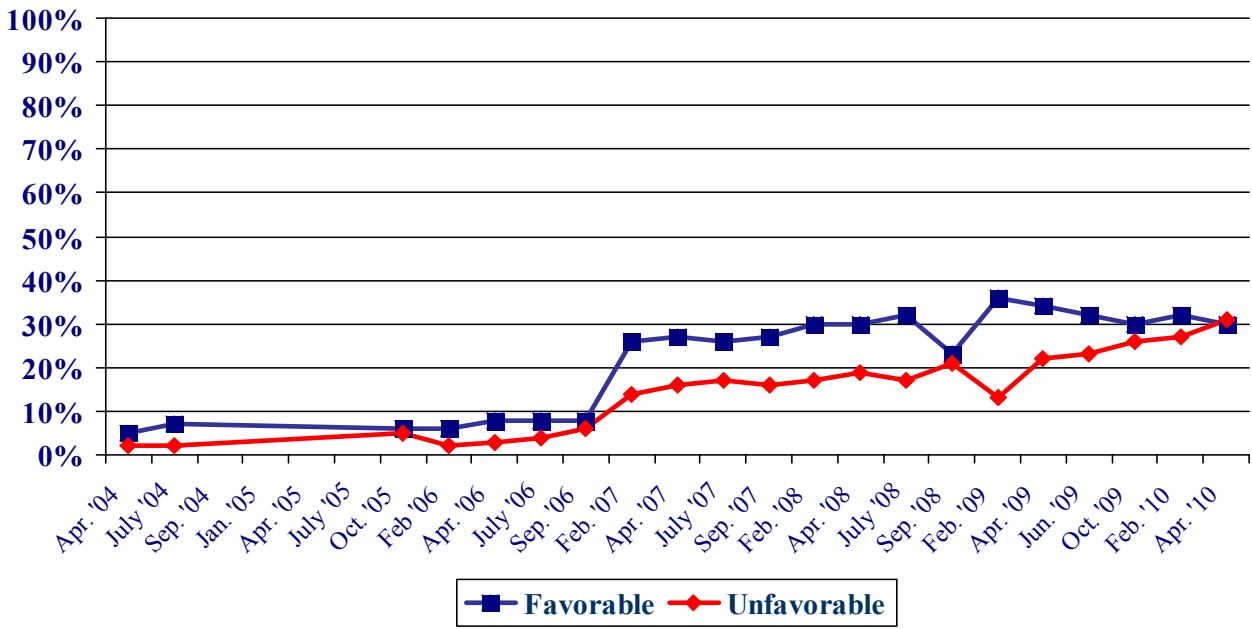

Favorability Ratings of Potential Senate Candidates

Republicans fortunes are improving in this race not because they have done much to raise their visibility to voters, but largely because New Hampshire residents are souring on Paul Hodes. Currently, only 30% of Granite Staters have a favorable opinion of Hodes, 31% have an unfavorable opinion, 10% are neutral, and 29% don't know enough about him to say. Hodes' net favorability rating, the percentage having a favorable opinion minus the percentage having an unfavorable opinion, is -1%, down from +5% in February and has been below +10% since June 2009.

“Hodes' decline in favorability is reflected in how he does in trial heats versus his Republican challengers,” said Andrew Smith, Director of the UNH Survey Center. “He, like other New Hampshire Democrats, is declining in popularity and this is hurting him when he is matched with unknown Republicans, let alone well funded and popular candidates.”

Senate Trial Heats

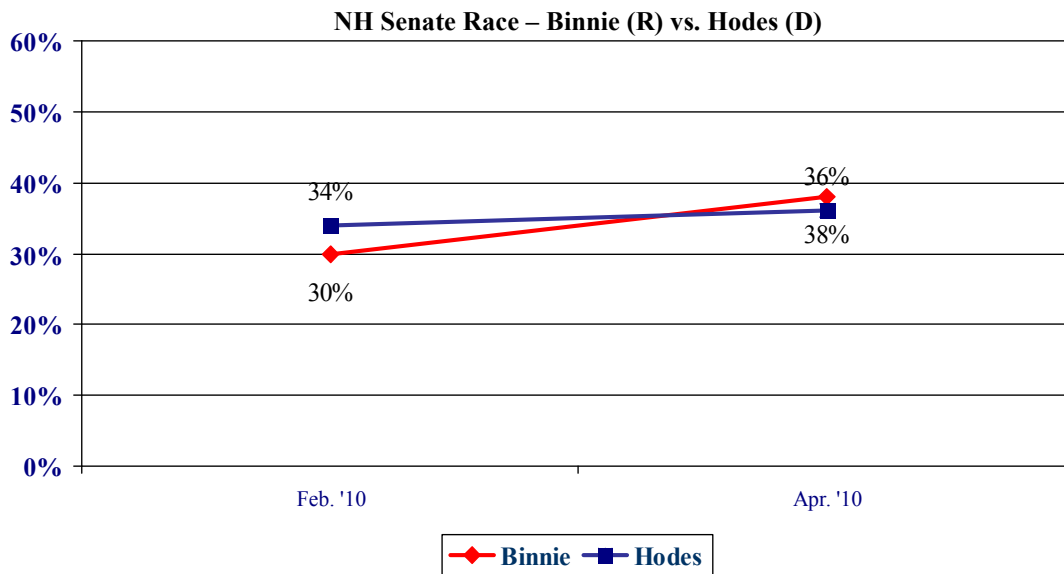

Ayotte continues to be the strongest Republican against Hodes and has widened her lead in the latest Granite State Poll. In a hypothetical matchup between Hodes and Ayotte, 47% of New Hampshire likely voters say they would vote for Ayotte, 32% would back Hodes, and 21% are undecided. Ayotte continues to do better than Hodes among her party, getting 79% of the Republican vote compared to Hodes getting 65% of the Democratic vote. Ayotte has also improved as she now holds a lead among political independents by 44% to 23%. In February, Hodes held a slight lead among independents 31% to 29%.

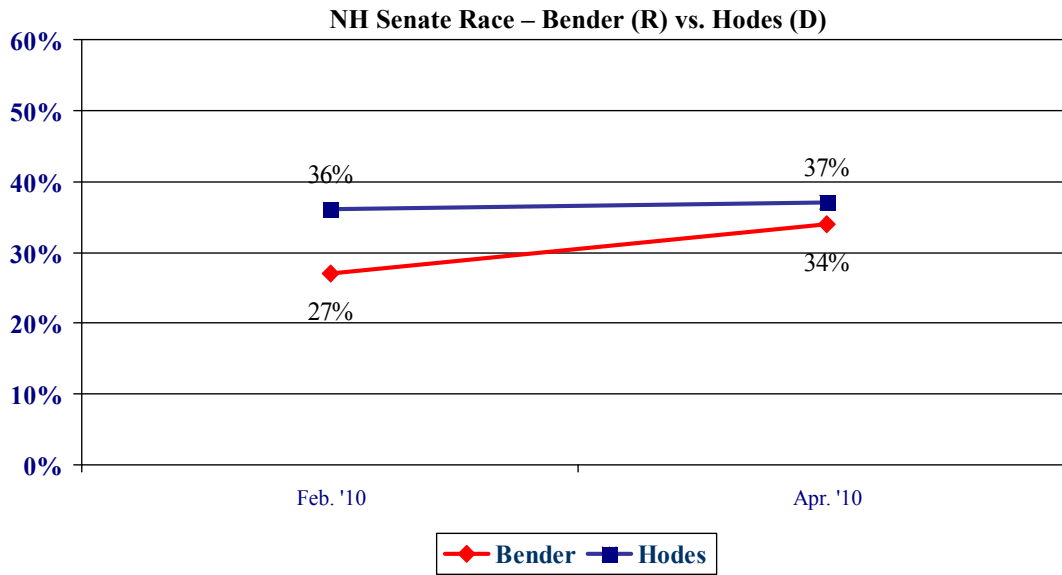

Manchester attorney Ovide Lamontagne has gained ground against Hodes in recent months and is now in a virtual tie – 37% of likely voters say they would vote for Lamontagne, 36% would vote for Hodes, and 26% are undecided.

1st Congressional District

In New Hampshire's First Congressional District, incumbent Democrat Carol Shea-Porter faces a difficult re-election as her favorability ratings in the District continue to decline. Favorability Ratings –Sean Mahoney NH 1st District

Carol Shea-Porter faces an extremely difficult task in winning a third term in Congress. In hypothetical matchups between Shea-Porter and her Republican challengers, all four Republicans currently hold narrow leads over the incumbent, an ominous sign for her reelection chances. “Congressional races in which an incumbent seeks reelection are typically referenda on the incumbent,” said Smith. “Shea-Porter does not break 40% against any of her challengers, a signal that she faces an extremely difficult challenge to keep her seat.”

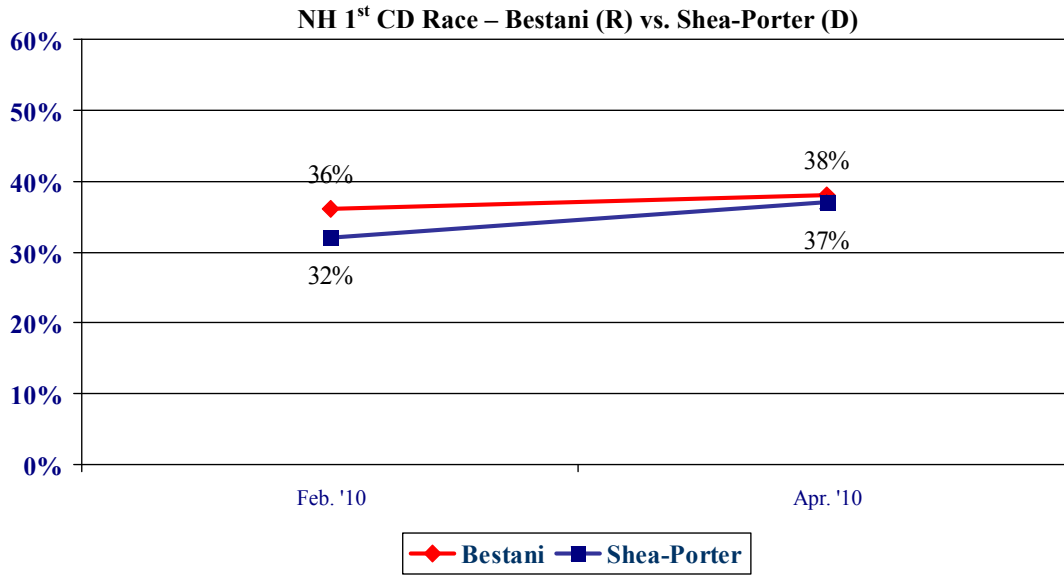

In a race between Shea-Porter and her best known challenger, Frank Guinta, 42% of likely 1st CD voters say they would vote for Guinta, 38% would vote for Shea-Porter, 1% prefer some other candidate, and 19% are undecided. Currently, 8% of 2nd CD adults have a favorable opinion of Kuster, 4% have an unfavorable opinion of her, and 88% are either neutral or don't know enough about her to say. Kuster's net favorability rating is +4%.

Former State Representative John DeJoie is also running for the Democratic nomination in the 2nd CD, and he is largely unknown to District residents as well. Currently, 4% of 2nd CD adults have a favorable opinion of DeJoie, 3% have an unfavorable opinion of him, and 93% are either neutral or don't know enough about him to say.

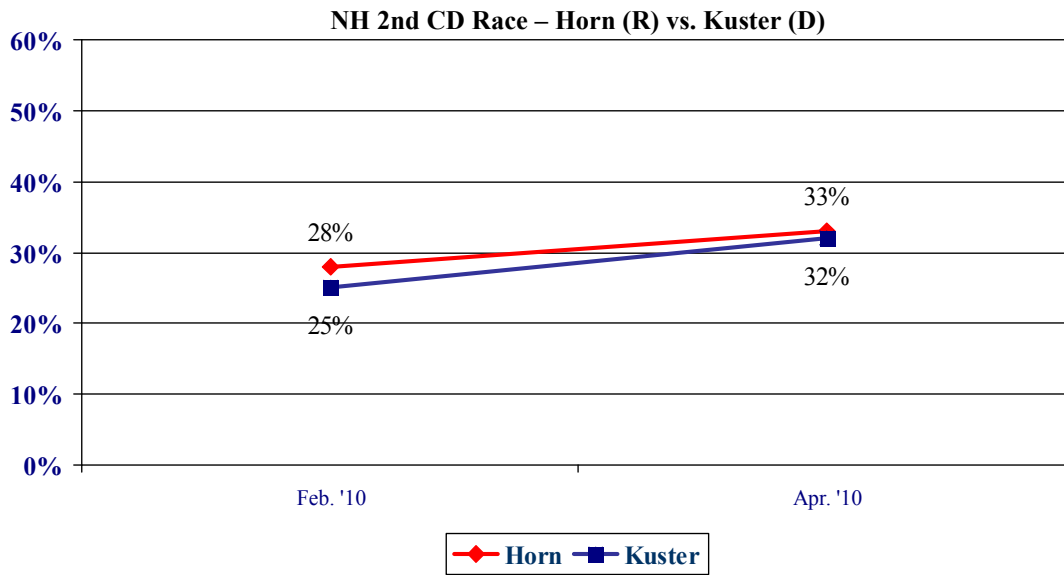

The top two Republicans and top two Democrats in name recognition and finances were matched in trial heats in the most recent Granite State poll. In a hypothetical race between Charlie Bass and Katrina Swett, a rematch of their 2002 race, Bass currently is favored by 44% of 2nd CD likely voters, 27% prefer Swett, 1% prefer some other candidate, and 29% are undecided. In his final year in office, Republican Senator Judd Gregg is still popular in the Granite State. These findings are based on the latest WMUR Granite State Poll, conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. Five hundred (512) randomly selected New Hampshire adults were interviewed by telephone between April 18 and April 28, 2010. The margin of sampling error for the survey is +/- 4.4 percent. Included was a subsample of 462 likely 2010 general election voters (margin of sampling error +/-4.6%), a subsample of 258 adults in the NH First Congressional District (margin of sampling error +/-6.1%), and a subsample of 254 Second Congressional District adults (margin of sampling error +/-6.1%). The data have been weighted to adjust for numbers of adults and telephone lines within households, respondent sex, and region of the state. In addition to potential sampling error, all surveys have other potential sources of non-sampling error including question order effects, question wording effects, and non-response.
