Comment

Wim F. Passchier & Wim C. Reij, Risk is More Than Just a Number
Summarizes efforts by the Health Council of the Netherlands to develop a national risk management approach. 107

Articles

Lennart Sjöberg & Britt-Marie Drottz-Sjöberg, Physical and Managed Risk of Nuclear Waste
The authors describe their work on the perceived risk of nuclear waste in Sweden. Three levels of waste were studied, and comparisons between the perceptions of the public, politicians and nuclear experts are made. 115

Carl F. Cranor, The Normative Nature of Risk Assessment: Features and Possibilities
Dr. Cranor argues that appreciating risk assessment to be permeated with normative presuppositions, in contrast with being primarily objective, opens up unforeseen possibilities for risk management. 123

Michael D. Mehta, Risk Assessment and Sustainable Development: Towards a Concept of Sustainable Risk
Dr. Mehta examines two dominant approaches for managing health and environmental risks and suggests that they would better serve if integrated. 137

Janet D. Gough, Environmental Decision Making and Risk Management for Groundwater Systems
With an eye to a specific application in New Zealand, Ms. Gough explores the use of risk management approaches for environmental decision making at strategic, policy, management and operational levels. 155

Ann Bostrom, Vaccine Risk Communication: Lessons from Risk Perception, Decision Making and Environmental Risk Communication Research

Dr. Bostrom reviews the rich variety of empirical findings available to guide risk communication and demonstrates how it can contribute to vaccine risk and safety communication.
