PROF. GROVES TELLS OF SOUTH

Discusses Problems of Recently Attended National Conference of Charities and Corrections.

On May 17th, Professor Groves of the department of sociology and psychology returned from a two weeks trip through the South recently, during which he attended the National Conference of Charities and Corrections at Memphis, and incidentally was enabled to make observations and gain some first hand knowledge concerning the life and status of the negro in the South.

The South, he says, is a wonderfully progressive section of the country. Agricultural improvement, especially in Virginia, is remarkable, and the cities are busy industrial centers as truly as are those of the North. In fact the Southerner is progressive in all ways but one; this exception is in his attitude toward the negro. There he holds much the same position that he did in the days of slavery. To him the negro is still a thing apart, a creature less than human, an animal to be kept humbly in his place, to be scorned or ignored perhaps, but never to be treated as an equal. He is right when he says that the negro is not an equal: nor can all the laws that Northerners can pass ever make him so, either in appearance or in actions. The repulsive lack of sanitation and the vicious morals of his home life may be observed by anyone. Besides this, his inherent lack of forethought and of initiative, his incapacity for sustained effort, and his failure to realize his position and responsibility, all demonstrate clearly that he can not hope for centuries to rival the white man in any line of activity. With this in mind, the attitude of the Southerner is perhaps justified.

The treatment of the negro in the South bears out these theories to the full. During his short stay, Professor Groves was informed that three lynchings had occurred in his vicinity while he was there. This he condemns as a crime unspeakably barbarous and degrading, and no doubt the best men of the South feel, the same about it. Yet it is far more common than is supposed, since only the most serious affairs find their way into the newspapers.

In business transactions the negro is everywhere cheated, and his ignorance exploited. He is discriminated against everywhere, even in the courts and at the polls. No Southerner will ever openly show any familiarity or friendship with a member of the black race. Toward the Northerner, the Southerner cherishes no grudge, but yet he is always suspicious of the former's attitude in this matter. No familiarity of a white with a black will be tolerated, and would at once bring dire consequences upon the offender. The visitor finds it necessary to comply with the prevailing customs; a different course would instantly arouse public opinion against him.

What we Northerners must realize is that entire question for our race is this—Can the races be always thus kept apart, or is not final amalgamation inevitable? Some inner realization of this lies back of the feeling of the Southern white man. Already he sees the subtle, stealthily growing influence of the negro upon himself, evinced in such ways as in the bright dress and extreme fashions of the women, as well as in that soft

OPPOSE COACHING FROM BENCH

Prof. Whorisky Reports on the Recent Athletic Conference of Colleges.

The following is the formal report made to Pres. Fairchild by Prof. Whorisky on the recent Athletic Conference of New England Colleges:

My dear Mr. President:—

In accordance with your request I attended the meeting of the Association of New England Colleges for Conference on Athletics at the Boston City Club on Friday evening, May 22. Twenty-one colleges were represented.

The questions of most interest seemed to be the following:

1. The advisability of having the base ball coach on the bench. The consensus of opinion seemed to be that the coach should not be allowed to sit on the bench during a game.

2. The subscription, ticket or tax method of financing athletics. There seemed to be no objection from the delegates to this question, as they felt the subscription, ticket or tax was an absolute necessity. The delegates of the larger colleges said their gate receipts were ample for the support of their athletics. Mr. Garcelon, who has done so much for athletics at Harvard, said that the undergraduates in the small college had a greater opportunity for making a sacrifice for their alma mater than the students in a large college. He felt this was one of the reasons for the intense loyalty of the alumni of some of the small colleges, for a man, after all, was most devoted to that object for which he makes sacrifices. I had an opportunity to speak on this subject and took great pleasure in telling the delegates what a land grant college was. I pointed out our difficulty in financing athletics and in developing schedules and made a plea for greater interest on the part of colleges like Yale and Harvard in the progress of the smaller New England Colleges. This last seemed to strike a responsive chord, for the president of the association, Mr. Garcelon and some of the delegates thought this would be a good scheme, and that there was probably no better means of using the money in the treasury than to send a man like Mr. Camp to the colleges in New England, to give talks on the general question of athletics. Mr. Camp said he would be glad to do all he could, but that only a limited part of his time was available, as he worked daily from 7 A. M. till 11 P. M. From my talk with Mr. Camp and Mr. Garcelon, I am sure New Hampshire can get them both to come to Durham to give talks to the students.

The delegates were deeply impressed by Mr. Camp. Master of football strategy, he has kept in close touch with Yale football for thirty years. He is intensely interested in wholesome athletics, has written many books for boys and is a special writer for several newspapers. He spoke of the new Bowl at Yale, which will accommodate 61,000 spectators. When the Bowl is finished, Yale will have $800,000 invested in playing fields. He told several interesting stories about the archaic method of hooting and jeering at opposing base ball teams. He and Mr. Garcelon were most emphatic in urging the colleges to give more attention to scientific physical training, for ability in this line meant an increase of $300, $500 in salary to prospective teachers.

N. P. LOSES IN PITCHING DUEL

Hard Fought Game Goes To Bates 1-0.

In a hard fought contest, Bates defeated New Hampshire Saturday, May 23 by the score of 1 to 0. The game developed into a pitchers' battle between Stinson for Bates and Bissell for New Hampshire. Both pitchers were given gilt edged support but Bates managed to bunch a couple of hits in the second which gave them their only run. Bissell fanned six men and Stinson three. The feature of the game was a three bagger by Butler, who scored soon after on a single by Moore.

Looses To Boston College By Score Of 10-0.

Boston College defeated New Hampshire, Wednesday, May 20th in a one-sided contest by the score of 10 to 0. It was an off day for New Hampshire as is shown by the errors and poor hitting.

Woods pitched air-tight ball for the Boston team, striking out six men and allowing but four hits. Bissel started the game for New Hampshire, and although he pitched fairly good ball, his support was ragged. Paulson took his place in the sixth inning, but faired little better.

SUPPORT A TEST OF LOYALTY.

It is customary to support the victors. Whether the contest be one of an athletic nature, political, literary or some other form, it is natural to award our support and praises to the winners. It is altogether proper and fitting that we should feel proud of the success of our favorites, but if we rejoice in their successes we should not fail to support them when defeat is imminent. This is no less true in athletic contests than in any other line of endeavor. If an athletic team is playing its best and doing all in its power to bring about a victory, it is no discredit to go down to defeat, merely because it is playing a superior team. Such a time calls for the most loyal support. Then, if ever, is the loyalty of a student-body to its college tested. To cheer a team when winning is a grand thing, but to cheer when losing calls for the deeper spirit of loyalty to assert itself, and gives opportunity for the larger manhood to express itself. This is the kind of loyalty we need here at New Hampshire, and can have if each one resolves to contribute his share towards making it.

OPPOSE COACHING FROM BENCH

An interesting statement was made by the delegate from Mass Agr. College. After vain efforts to interest the legislature in a playing field, the graduates and undergraduates just put their shoulders to the wheel and bought the field themselves. In addition, every undergraduate pledged five hours' work per week to get the field in condition for their sports.

Yours truly,

Richard Whorisky.

DE LAVAL CREAM SEPARATORS are used exclusively by 98% of the World's Creameries

TEN YEARS AGO THERE WERE a dozen different makes of creamery or factory separators in use. Today over 98 per cent of the world's creameries use De Laval Separators exclusively.

IT MEANS A DIFFERENCE OF several thousand dollars a year whether a De Laval or some other make of separator is used in a creamery.

EXACTLY THE SAME DIFFERENCES exist, on a smaller scale, in the use of farm separators. Owing to the fact, however, that most farm users do not keep as accurate records as the creameryman, or test their skim milk with the Babcock tester, they do not appreciate what the difference between a good and a poor separator means to them in dollars and cents.

NOW IF YOU WERE IN NEED OF legal advice, you would go to a lawyer. If you were sick you would consult a doctor. If you had the toothache, you would call on a dentist. Why? Because these men are all specialists in their line, and you rely on their judgment and skill.

WHEN IT COMES TO BUYING A separator why not profit by the experience of the creameryman which qualifies him to advise you correctly? He knows which separator will give you the best service and be the most economical for you to buy. That's why 98 per cent of the world's creameries and milk dealers use the De Laval exclusively.

THERE CAN BE NO BETTER recommendation for the De Laval than the fact that the men who make the separation of milk a business use the De Laval to the practical exclusion of all other makes of cream separators.

Southern speech that is in reality only an adaptation of the negro dialect. It is for this reason that he is bent upon keeping the negro in his place, in denying him that education that will raise his aspirations too highly. He sees only too clearly that every privilege that he grants him is by so much a step toward social equality—and social equality surely leads to intermarriage. On this point, public opinion feels more strongly than ever before. Lately it has expressed itself in an unwritten edict regarding illicit relations between the races, and the birth of a mulatto child will soon be regarded as evidence of a crime that would merit even death. Yet Professor Groves still believes that social equality leading to inter-marriage will be the ultimate solution.

At least the North must see that this is true—that the South, living in close association with the negro, and realizing as no others can the realities of the problem, has a right to its opinion, may well be justified in its beliefs, and may even be wise in its methods. It is entitled to sympathy and consideration in its instructive struggle to maintain the purity of the Anglo-Saxon race. Least of all should the South be criticized by ignorant Northerners, who, having no first hand acquaintance with the question, and basing their opinions on time-worn theories alone, do not hesitate to condemn an entire section of our country inhabited by a people of the same race and with feelings and intellect precisely as themselves.
