Dear Editor:

We are anxious to locate the traveling banner of our club, the Frontier Twirlers of Danville. It was last reported to be in the Pocono Mountains of Pennsylvania. We'd appreciate hearing from anyone who has information as to its present whereabouts.

Dear Editor:

At this time of year, with the new graduates coming forth, one tends to reflect on the experiences and problems of the new dancer and how the transition from class to club could have been made easier and more comfortable. The answer for us was a good summer workshop which tended to clear up the many questionable and more complicated movements. As a new graduate you suddenly realize that your learning period has just begun and your aim is to become a confident mainstream dancer. However, be sure you pick the appro-

BOB DAWSON PASSES: Veteran caller and author, Bob Dawson died suddenly on April 4th in Sarasota, Florida. Best known perhaps for his recording of "Summer Sounds" several seasons ago, Bob created a number of dances, some of which he recorded. Together with Don Bell; he authored "Keys to Calling," a text for callers written in 1961. We join Bob's many friends in extending our sympathy to Shirley Dawson and members of the family.

FILM FOR OVERSEAS PRESENTATION FEATURES S. D.: A 5-minute film featuring the calling of Marlin Hull and a group of square dancers, including two squares who are blind, has been shot recently by the U. S. Information Service. Film was made in late March at MacDonald's Hall, North Hollywood, California.

SQUARE DANCE ROSE PARADE FLOAT TO REPEAT: Success of the '76 Rose Parade square dance float has led to an invitation to repeat the performance Jan. 1, '77. Look forward to it. Of the $35,000 cost of the '76 float, $2,500 remains to be paid.

MISCELLANEOUS NOTE: The special Choreography Seminar to be conducted June 23, just prior to the National in Anaheim, California will cost $15.00. The amount was left off the advertisement which appeared in the March issue of SQUARE DANCING.

May, 1976

HOW LONG HAS IT BEEN since you finished your beginning dancer lessons? One year, two years, five, ten, fifteen? If it hasn't been too long since that big occasion when you "graduated" and moved out into the big world of square dancing, clubs, associations, festivals and conventions, then perhaps you can remember how you felt at that crucial point.

The class that you had been a part of for several months, the friends you had come to know—all of this was about to change. Perhaps you were fortunate and found a square dance home that you have enjoyed in the years that followed. Perhaps you went through a number of traumatic experiences hoping to be invited into a square dance group and, once invited, hoping that you would be welcomed, that your clumsiness might be overlooked and that you would be accepted.

This month literally thousands of new square dancers will be coming out into the world. They will want to be a part of your square, a part of your club. They will look forward anxiously to their first festivals and conventions for they have been told that "square dancers are the friendliest people in the world."

This is your opportunity to prove to them that this is true. It may take a while before they learn all the latest movements and before their reaction time is up to yours, but they bring with them a freshness and an enthusiasm that all our clubs need today.

Here is your opportunity to put out the welcome mat and not merely say "It's nice to see you," but to really mean it!

The Swing to Contras

WHETHER IT'S THE EMPHASIS being put on American dances of the past two hundred years as they tie in to America's Bicentennial, or whether it's a growing interest in a different variety of square dancing, the contras are coming in for considerable attention these days. Recent National Conventions have done a great deal to focus attention on this phase of the activity. As a result, not only are an increased number of callers including a tip or two of contras along with their squares and rounds, but contra groups are beginning to make their appearance in increased numbers across the country.

Although to some a contra dance is an easy dance, this is not necessarily the case. Perhaps the misconception comes from the fact that only a limited number of basics are used in these string or longways figures. One has only to think back a few years to the time when contemporary square dancing also operated on a limited number of basics. Dances such as Rip Tide, Sepulveda Tunnel, Texas Double Star and many other "challenge dances" of their day were also built around a relatively small number of basics.

In contras, where you are working in lines rather than in squares, the ordinary basics come in for a variety of unusual uses. There are many contras where some of the dancers are required to do a certain pattern, while others in the same line are doing a second or perhaps even a third series of figures.

One of the features that appeals to so many is the fact that the dancer must move to the phrase of the music. While there is no time to fool around, the movements such as right and left thru, ladies chain, etc., take eight steps. Well phrased hoedowns and carefully chosen Scottish type jigs and reels make this moving to music a simple matter.

While there is a tendency occasionally to interject some of the ever-changing, often non-descriptive contemporary experimental movements into the contras, the real test comes in seeing how challenging the contras can become without resorting to this shortcut.

A dancer truly needs to be in top mental form in order to do some of the more advanced contras, however, the simple basic contras are proving to be excellent as a means of impressing position dancing on new dancers during their early learning period.

To those of you already dancing contras, and especially to those of you who are teaching and calling them, there are many helpful tips that can be passed along to you by the veterans. Which foot do we start on? How far do we promenade down the hall before turning to come back? How do we avoid getting all the dancers scrunched up at the top or bottom of the hall? All of these questions and many more come to the surface as you dig into this fascinating subject.

In coming issues we're going to tap the brains of some of the truly experienced leaders in the contra field who will help to answer these and other questions.

In the meantime, plan to take in some of the contra sessions at the 25th Annual National Square Dance Convention in Anaheim, California next month. There will be full daytime contra activities, workshops, clinics, panels and program contra dancing, much of it on hardwood floors to some of the world's finest contra callers.

Oh yes, we're featuring a special contra in our three-page Style Lab this issue (starting on Page 29).

New Book on Review

IT ISN'T OFTEN that we go ape over a book but then it isn't often that Ralph Page comes out with one of his informative collections of nostalgia, humor, and knowledge.

"Heritage Dances of Early America"*, published by the Lloyd Shaw Foundation, is a fun book. Issued primarily to tie in with our Bicentennial year, it captures the feeling of the dances done by hearty American pioneers 200 years ago. The dances are contras. Included with each of the 25 dances are the traditional calls the way they appeared in early manuscripts. Terms such as rigadon (which Page describes as, "Leap onto the left foot, extending the right foot to the side; leap onto the right foot, extending left foot to the side; leap, landing with both feet together; make a small jump, landing with both feet together"), hey and others are all included. However following the traditional description is a modern day translation of each dance in terms the average square dancer will be able to understand.

Some of the dances are familiar (British Sorrow, Fisher's Hornpipe and Spanking Jack). Others, such as Elegance and Simplicity (which, while it might be elegant, is certainly not simple), Pickering's Remove, The Young Widow and others may well be newcomers to many of us. And that brings up a very good point emphasized again and again in this book. Old dances are not necessarily easy.

The foreword to this Heritage Dances book is by Lowell Thomas. Charlie Baldwin has put together a most fitting introduction. Whether you're involved in these longways contras or not, just being a dance enthusiast is reason enough to add the book to your library.

SQUARE DANCING no longer comes to a grinding halt during the summer months. True, it may slow down a bit in some of the warmer areas. However, in this age of air conditioned halls and splendid vacation resorts which cater to the activity, it is still possible to enjoy the fun and friendship of square dancing during the warm summer months. The following list contains just a few of these spots. Dear About to Graduate New Dancer,

TO THOSE OF YOU who have been following this series since last fall, there isn't a great deal to add that you haven't already picked up for yourself. Every geographical square dance area differs in one way or another and so it is that your learning period has taught you something about the square dance program in your own community.

Chances are your classes have been held on a once-a-week basis. By this time you have gotten in the habit of square dancing this frequently. Recently a poll of dancer, caller and teacher association presidents, editors of square dance area publications, and a sizeable number of leaders in the activity indicated that once a week was just about the average participation for the person who wished to be involved in what is known as mainstream dancing.

In the past few months we have included some typical questions that crossed the minds of new dancers. Along with them we've included a sampling of answers from some of today's dancers. Here to conclude our series are a few more.

Question: Does graduation mean that we are finished with the good times that existed in our class and will we have to forego the friendships that have built up over these recent months?

From C.B.: It's interesting how our learners' group stayed together after class. Most of us joined one club in town and groups of us from the class often get together to visit other square dance clubs.

From J.H.O.: At first it seemed very important to my wife and me that we retain the friends we started out with. As in the case of most of our daily experiences, however, we find that we are constantly making new friends and this has been the case for us as we have attended square dance vacation institutes, danced with different clubs and just in general become more involved in the square dance activity.

Question: Somebody suggested that we should give our caller and those helping with the class some sort of gift. Is there a precedent for this?

From J.P.: We've helped out with a number of classes and we find that no two are alike. Usually someone in the class gets up at graduation to represent the graduates and says "Thank you" for the entire group. On one or two instances someone has cleverly penned out rather personalized certificates which have been given to the caller and the helpers. From our standpoint, just knowing that we have helped to bring some newcomers into the square dance field and that a majority of them are sticking with the activity is thanks enough.

From B.R.: Perhaps the most impressive "gift" I ever received from one of my graduating classes happened several years ago. We'd just finished the dance and the handing out of certificates when I was suddenly aware that all of the dancers had lined up at the front of the caller's stand. Then, actually reversing the ceremony of a few minutes before, each one in turn handed my wife and me a rolled up piece of paper with a ribbon around it. When we opened the "scrolls" we discovered that each one had the name and address of a new non-dancer couple. The class, on a man-for-man basis, had recruited our next beginners' class. This custom has been repeated now for several years and I have a constant reminder of past students in the shape of enthusiasm of a whole new collection of bright-eyed, bushy-tailed newcomers.

From a number of callers comes a composite of thoughts directed to those of you about to graduate:

Dear New Dancers:

Congratulations, you are no longer beginners. You have come through this learning period like real troopers, lending your smiles and laughter and your friendliness to those of us who had the pleasure of doing the teaching. You have discovered that there are many considerations other than simply learning the dances that are important. You have learned to be patient and tolerant. You have developed the ability to react automatically to the calls. You have learned the importance of a sense of humor. You have discovered when to whoop and holler and when to be respectfully quiet so that others may listen and learn. You have come to realize that a prime accomplishment of this class has been the development of an attitude that makes you a desirable member of the square. Remember this. Although your initial class lessons are over, you will always be learning more about this activity. Perhaps one of the greatest things you've learned is how to learn. And so, from all of us whose pleasure it has been working and playing with you these past few months, good luck, and happy dancing!

The 1976-1977 Square Dancer's Directory

• June 1st is the final copy deadline for all listings to appear in the 1976-77 Square Dancers Guide. Published each year as a portion of the August issue of SQUARE DANCING, the Directory has become an all-important communications link for square dancers everywhere.

ASSOCIATION PRESIDENTS: A listing will be made of all current presidents of square dancer associations, caller associations and round dance leader associations. If we do not have your present president listed, please be sure that somebody sends it in so the Directory listing is complete. The only practical way to update the Directory each year depends upon the initiative taken by those in the associations themselves. Current presidents of all associations receive Gavel and Key, a frequent publication put out by SIOASDS as a leaders' newsletter. Our goal is to have every association represented with an up-to-date contact.

SQUARE DANCE PUBLICATIONS: Editors of all area and national square dance publications are listed each year in the Directory. It is important that we have your current editor and address listed.

ARCHIVES CENTERS: Those individuals or organizations that have made available to the public a reference source for square dance publications, books, records, etc. are listed without charge in the Directory. If your group has not been listed before, if it's listing is incorrect, or if it is no longer functioning, please let us know by the June 1st deadline.

INFORMATION REPRESENTATIVES: This is perhaps one of the most important functions of the Directory. Information representatives are volunteers who agree to furnish information concerning dances, classes and the activity in general in their area. In the past, literally thousands of square dancers have availed themselves of the services of these "info reps." Occasionally these contacts drop out of square dancing or for one reason or another they are no longer in a position to render the service. We would be most appreciative to hear from them or others so that their names can be pulled and so that others can replace them who can carry on the service. Check the August, 1975 Dancers Guide to be sure that your area is represented. Generally speaking, space prohibits the listing of more than one information representative in any one area. For the most part new volunteers are added only when the person in their area is no longer able to continue providing the service.

Readers are reminded once again that the spirit of the Dancers Guide is to provide free information to dancers. It is not a booking agency, nor is it intended as a means of making business contacts. Again, our thanks to all of those who contribute the service. Please help us update this year's Directory—thank you.

History of the U.S.A.

The Contemporary Square Dance

in Dance

DURING THE BICENTENNIAL Year many square dance groups will be asked to provide a taste of American square dancing as a part of an area observance. The local shopping mall or civic center may be the scene of a 4th of July pageant at which square dancing will be one of many acts. If your group is asked to perform in one of these, give careful thought to what you feel will be the best possible representation of square dancing.

Not all of what we dance in our clubs today is geared for the spectator. Much of what provides us with great pleasure and challenge might be basically uninteresting from a viewer's standpoint. Interestingly enough, many of the dances we learn in our first ten weeks as beginners, the stars, line figures and circles, do possess the eye appeal that makes a spectator say "Hey, that looks like fun. I think I could do that."

For those interested in putting together a history of contemporary square dancing, endeavoring to portray the activity as it has grown in the last three decades, you'll find that you have some homework to do. There have been a number of marked changes since the big boom period of the late 1940s and a sampling of these in your cavalcade can provide both humor and education.

Single Visiting

Earlier chapters in this series have told how it was with the dances in Texas and across the country up to the beginning of World War II. At the close of the war, the single visiting dances still predominated. One pattern might be used for the entire dance. As a very simple example take the pattern for Lady Round Two and the Gent Fall Thru.

The first couple goes out to the couple on the right and with lady one in the lead and her gent following they move around behind couple two. Lady one goes around behind both dancers while man one goes only behind and around man two. He then splits couple two. During all this couple two remains in place. At this point, man one takes the lead and lady one follows him. They go around behind couple two once again, this time man one is in the lead. He goes around couple two as lady one, following him, goes around just man two and then, splitting the inactive couple, she moves back into the center of the square where she and her partner meet, join hands and circle left with couple two. It would be customary to finish it with a do si do.

At this point couple two stays in place and couple one moves on to execute the same pattern with couple three. Finishing with couple three, couple one moves on to face couple four and repeats the same pattern. Returning home everybody swings, does an alemande left, a right and left grand and promenades home. Then couple three starts the action, moving out to the right to couple four. Each couple in turn has its opportunity to lead the pattern around the circle. Finally, after 12 changes, the dance is completed. Here is the way the caller called it:

The first couple out to the couple on the right with the lady in the lead
Now the lady round two and the gent fall thru
Now the gent's in the lead
The gent around two and the lady fall thru
Circle up four and around you go
Break that ring with a do si do
And on to the next.

There were dozens of these single visiting patterns, many of them available in books such as Herb Greggerson's Blue Bonnet Calls, Lloyd Shaw's Cowboy Dances and Jimmy Clossin's West Texas Square Dances. Dances such as the Grapevine Twist, Dive For the Oyster, Bird in the Cage, Take a Peek, Star by the Right, Two Gents Elbows Swing, are just a few of the figures available to you for your Bicentennial dance.

Colorful

Many of the dance figures of that era had to be taught and memorized, for the calls frequently gave the dancer little directional assistance. Here's an example of what we mean:

Duck in the hole with an old barrel roll
Make a hoop with a backward loop
Roll that barrel down the hill
Duck right out swing the opposite Jill
Circle up four and around you go
Break it all up with a do si do.

For this one the active couple joins hands with a couple it is visiting. The hands are kept joined during the entire pattern. The active couple ducks under an arch made by the inactive pair. Once under the arch the active couple raises joined hands (man's right, lady's left) and backs under its own arch. At this point the four dancers are in a four leaf clover pattern. Placing their right feet into the center of the circle and buzzing or pushing with their left feet, the circle rotates quite rapidly. The active couple then raises its joined hands once again and pulls the inactive couple thru its arch. The inactive dancers do a dishrag and the circle is formed once again.

A Bit of Evaluation

At some point along the line the callers decided to liven things up a bit so, instead of having each of the couples do the identical pattern, they would have couple one go 'around the square with one dance, say Birdie in the Cage. Then couple two in its turn would make the round doing a second pattern, which might be Dive for the Oyster. Couple three would do Two Gents Elbow Swing while couple four might do I'll Swing Your Girl—You Swing Mine. Still later the caller, if he were truly up in his calls, might use a different pattern for each visitation, twelve different dance patterns all combined into one dance. This combining of calls became known as "hash."

The single visiting dance had the characteristic of involving only two couples at a time. This left the two others to simply stand around and wait their turn. Eventually, some daring soul decided to work couples one and three simultaneously, having them move out to the couple on their right, do a pattern such as Chase the Rabbit, Chase the Squirrel, then, having finished it he would direct the two active couples to move across the set so that couple one could be doing the pattern with couple four while couple three would work with couple two.

Others livened the action even more by doing a "follow-up." Couple one would move over to couple two, do a pattern, then move over to couple three. Once having completed the dance with couple three, couple one would move on to couple four. At that point couple two would then move to couple three and all four couples would be busy, each couple following on the heels of the couple ahead and keeping this up until couple four had finally completed its rounds.

Another variation of the "follow-up" had couple one visit couple two and do a pattern such as Lady 'Round Two, Gent Fall Thru which we described earlier. Having finished the pattern, couple one with couple two following moved on to couple three to do the pattern again, this time with two couples active. All six dancers would move on to couple four and repeat the pattern once again, with six dancers active.

THERE'S STILL MORE TO COME—Apparently the more we uncover in America's history of the dance the longer this series will last. This particular chapter, briefly covering the last 30 years of square dancing, will be concluded next month, however, there is so much more on the subject that could be written. For one thing the area differences, the fact that Texas started out by doing all around your left hand lady and see saw your taw "in reverse" and southern California did the same with the call red hot, makes these little bits of information especially important to local pageants. Coming will be information on the double square or Royal and other tidbits.

WHERE Do We Go from Here?

LOOKING BACK over thirty years of round dancing, the changes that have taken place would boggle the mind. Time was when couple dances were more or less "freestyle," with each one doing his own thing in the polkas, schottisches, waltzes and two-steps. As we know, all of that began to change in the late 1940s when dance routines began to emerge.

These early routines were, for the most part, still fairly unsophisticated and consisted of short patterns repeated many times through to the end of the recording. For that reason they were easy to remember and everyone was able to join in the round dancing.

As we danced through the early 1950s the routines became a little more complicated and we began to see 32 measures of dance with only a few measures repeated. Suddenly we were in the era of the "specialized" round dance instructor who could teach the patterns and cue the dancers through them until the dancers were able to do the routine. Once learned, just a reminder on the part of the instructor that Part Two was coming up or that a particularly complicated step was next was all that was needed.

Then in the late 1950s came the "latins," those rhythms that were completely different from anything that had been seen in round dancing to that point. The shock was heard 'round the world of round dancing. Some teachers refused to teach any of these dances and many dancers refused to learn them. When it became apparent that these rhythms were here to stay and that they really weren't changing round dancing that much, they gradually gained acceptance and today these routines are as much a part of round dancing as the waltzes and two-steps.

Throughout this period it was still the same activity. The costumes remained the same, ladies still danced in ballets or flats, and choreographers prepared their dance cues using standard round dance terminology.

Now round dancing is going through another period of change. We are seeing the introduction of International ballroom dancing into the activity. Many of our teachers have spent countless hours and dollars in learning the figures and techniques of International ballroom dancing and some ballroom dance teachers have entered the more lucrative field of round dancing.

Certainly International ballroom dancing brings to the activity a variety of "new" and different steps and patterns. Many of these figures are not difficult to do for the person who is able to devote many nights each month to round dancing. However, some of these figures are finding their way into the easier square dance routines and we wonder if choreographers and teachers have fully considered what the consequences might be if International ballroom figures are thrust upon the unsuspecting square dancer whose round dancing is limited to the more simple routines.

There are many in the square and round dance activity who want to include the less complicated round dances. They are not interested in doing more and most do not have the time to devote an extra evening or two each week to round dancing. If they are unable to continue to enjoy doing a few routines at their square dance club they will be completely turned off to round dancing and they will be lost to this phase of the activity.

International ballroom dancing is bringing other changes to round dancing and there has been some discussion as to whether these changes are good or bad. Completely different techniques involving heel leads, heel turns, postures and body positions are being introduced. A new language is being brought into round dance terminology. And ladies are changing from the comfortable flats and ballets to high heeled shoes.

Will these innovations completely change the activity or will round dancing continue to be a fun recreation which the majority can enjoy without spending hours in learning one particular step or figure? Will the men have to be re-educated to start with a right foot lead? Will round dancing become a specialized activity for the minority who want only this type of dancing with its "feathers," "impetus turns," "throw away oversways," "developes," etc.?

Many of these figures are beautiful to see and pleasant to dance. Is it not possible to include them in round dancing without adopting the difficult, sometimes unnatural and exaggerated techniques? If this is to happen, we won't need round dancing. We can all become International ballroom dancers and leave round dancing to those who feel that square and round dancing belong together and who will limit their round dancing to dancing the square dance rounds between tips at their square dance club.

"Where do we go from here?" The answer must lie with those who are in a position of leadership in the activity. If they accept the entire premise of International ballroom dancing we may just see the demise of round dancing as we know it today.

Gene and Laura Senatore—Philadelphia, Pa.

ASQUARE DANCE OPEN HOUSE brought Gene and Laura Senatore into the square and round dance activity. Following their graduation into mainstream square dancing, Gene and Laura immediately joined a class in round dance basics conducted by Frank and Ruth Seidelmann.

Both having been ballroom dancers, the round dancing appealed to them and they attended more classes each week to learn as much as they could. When round dance leaders, Frank and Emily Reynolds, moved to Tucson, Gene and Laura were asked to replace them.

Since then they have been active in their chosen hobby. Gene and Laura have a weekly basics class and a weekly intermediate-advanced class; they cue for square dance clubs and are known for their devotion to square dancing, never refusing a request to cue for charity and/or benefit dances.

The Senatorens have attended every National Convention since 1966. They were Business Co-Chairmen and Round Dance Afterparty Hospitality Chairmen for the 16th National in Philadelphia in 1967. They have worked as MCs and monitors, have attended panels, clinics, etc. and have taught at the past five Nationals.

Laura has served for two years as Secretary of the Delaware Valley Round Dance Teachers Association and Gene is now President of that organization for the second term.

Laura and Gene make their home in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. When Gene has to travel on behalf of his job in management engineering, Laura teaches and cues in his absence. They are presently involved as Assistant Round Dance Vice-Chairmen for the 26th National Convention to be held on the Boardwalk in Atlantic City, New Jersey in 1977.

The Senatorens have a sincere desire to continue teaching beginners and stay alert to changes in the round dance world. It is their hope that they may be able to maintain an active role in their favorite hobby for many years to come.

HOW

TO A LINE

THE ART OF SQUARE DANCING well makes it necessary to possess a knowledge of many little things. These so-called little things identify a dancer as being smooth, considerate and knowledgeable. As has been mentioned in this series a number of times in the past, it is often these little things that are overlooked. When that happens the basic becomes awkward and, as a result, is sometimes all but eliminated from useage simply because of the misunderstandings that arise.

One of our workhorse movements that has been around for a long time is Circle Four to a Line. Let's take a look at it in our illustrated play-by-play breakdown.

Note that our number two couple is lined up with a vertical marker at the right side of each picture. This mark will parallel the line of four when it has been formed.

Starting from a static position (1) couple one moves out to the couple on the right (2) and circles clockwise (3).

As the lead man (in white trousers) nears the completion of his circling movement (4) he breaks with the lady on his left and stretches the line (5) to allow all four dancers to fit comfortably into the necessary area.

It is at this point that the only real "trick" of the basic takes place. So frequently the end lady will start her turn-under too early. Consequently this leaves her in the center of the square and results in a ragged line. Note here (5) that the line is beginning to form and as the end lady's partner raises his right hand for an arch, she moves under (6) aiming back to her position at the end of the line. Note also that the lead man has moved far enough to provide space for the end lady to do a turn-under (not a spin) when she reaches the end (7). At the completion of the movement the line of four is straight and ready to move forward (8) or follow the next call.

Remember: It's an easy movement like this that will give you trouble unless you take a little time out to understand and practice it.

CALLERLAB's recommended review movement for the quarter gets a checkout by our friends Joe and Barbara.

BARBARA: With the emphasis being put on new movements in our workshop periods, Joe and I have discovered that sometimes we get a bit rusty, or even forget, some of the standard basics. The other night we had an occasion to dance to an excellent out-of-area caller who used several basics that were all but forgotten by a great number of us.

JOE: Perhaps that's one reason why we take our hats off to the folks responsible for the quarterly movements for setting a precedent by suggesting one new experimental movement (Chase Right, described in the April, 1976 issue) and one review movement which happens to be Dixie Style (Basic 71) for the current quarter.

BARBARA: This, as we are reminded by our caller, begins like a Dixie Chain. You'll find that it usually starts in-motion from a previous movement, which places the ladies in the lead and the men following.

JOE: We do it quite frequently following a courtesy turn, when the men simply let the ladies take the lead, and then follow them.

BARBARA: As an example, this is the way Dixie Style to an Ocean Wave works. The men have just finished courtesy turning their partners. The two ladies move forward into the center, giving their right hand to each other (A). They move past and give left hands to the opposite men (B). The dancers move past each other (C) and retaining left hands, they simply turn one-quarter (D) and end in a lefthanded ocean wave (E).

JOE: Dixie Style can work from other setups too, but you can get the principle of the motion from this example. Hope it helps.

BARBARA: In talking over the Quarterly Movements Committee action regarding the spotlighting of an older movement—both Joe and I agree that this is a great idea. All too often we discover that we and the other dancers in the group have no trouble with the latest and the greatest, but when it comes to some of the older less complicated basics we may not have done for a while, we tend to fall flat on our faces.

JOE: There are many new dancers coming into mainstream dancing and these older movements are brand new to them. Since so many are really good movements it seems a shame to drop them. We have suggestions for some that might be reactivated. Perhaps you have others. Why not send them in.

The Dancers

Walkthru

DEDICATED to the BEGINNER

AT THIS TIME OF YEAR WHEN MANY CLASSES are nearing graduation, it's an ideal occasion to look forward to the next class. Many ideas will still be fresh in thought—ideas of what worked and perhaps of what might be improved. Here are some suggestions you may wish to implement next season as gleaned from the Rip-Snorters Square Dance Club of Walnut Creek, California.

Potential Members

As most square dancers have discovered, word of mouth is often the most successful recruitment method for new dancers. To encourage club members to invite friends to join the new class, the Rip-Snorters developed an incentive program. Any member bringing four or more couples to the class (which began in late September) received free a month's dues to the club. The only catch was that the newcomers must still be dancing with the class by the end of November. Any club member bringing two or three couples to the class received a reflective dancer insignia for his automobile. In addition the club participated in exhibitions in a local shopping mall during square dance week and submitted write-ups to local newspapers.

More Than Just Lessons

Once the class was underway, the sponsoring club provided the neophytes with a 360° view of square dancing. In addition to the weekly classes which included some club "angels" each time, the club members decided to put out a monthly newsletter for the group. As the class is known as the Short Horns, the paper was appropriately entitled the Short News. Much like a regular club newspaper, the Short News was a dittoed one or two page sheet containing a variety of information. Items regarding square dance etiquette, a review of current dance figures, suggestions on body maneuvers were featured along with questions and answers. A list of class members and addresses was included with the first edition while later copies provided birthdays and anniversaries. Items about costuming, special events, etc. eliminated taking too much time during the classes for extra announcements.

Committees

While the class did not include regular club committees, the idea of helping was put into practice from the very beginning. A number of couples were asked to bring 1½ dozen cookies to each session. Those responsible were listed in the Short News each month. An interesting aside is how the class covered the cost of coffee. All beverages were provided free of charge; cups cost 10c an evening. Dancers were encouraged to mark a cup and retain it for an evening.

About five months into the classwork, a special Newer Dancers' Hoedown was sponsored by the club and class members were invited to assist on all the committees. This allowed them to become familiar with some of the extra club activities.

Items of Interest

A bulletin board was maintained at the class on which a variety of helpful information was posted. Everything from fashion suggestions to dances open to the newcomer, etc. were listed with the material being changed frequently.

Just a few weeks after the class was underway, a fashion show was put on displaying appropriate square dance attire and telling the newcomers about the fun of dressing for the dance. Two local square dance stores donated 10% discount cards for the activity.

One club member put on a two-evening special get-together (not on a class night) for class members interested in sewing. Patterns for ladies' dresses and men's shirts were shared. Ideas for petticoats and pettipants were passed along. For those gals who didn't sew, names of women willing to sew for them were distributed. A special 10% discount was obtained from a local yardage store to encourage these new dancers to make their first square dance outfit.

At an appropriate time in the lessons, each class member received a copy of The Sets in Order American Square Dance Society 50 Basics Handbook, followed a few weeks later with a copy of the Extended 75 Basics Handbook.

Results

Interesting to note is that the efforts of this club and its caller paid off. 39 couples started the new class. At last note, 30 were still dancing. Of the nine lost to the group, reasons included health and moving out of the area. Ah, but those who left the city were given information on square dancing in the area to which they were going and so a potential for the activity was gained in that new locale.

A lot of work—yes! A great deal of thought put into the planning—yes, indeed! Was it worth it? We'd say, by all means.

IDEAS

SQUARE DANCERS ARE BUSY and inventive people. This month we peek into several areas to see what is going on and what good ideas are on hand to be shared.

Rochester, New York

The Triggers Square Dance Club enjoys company and hopes to encourage local clubs within its area to dance together occasionally. It is starting a "Friendship Night." Every third week of each month, any club couple may invite one couple from some outside club to come and dance with the Triggers free of charge. Or, any couple from some other club may call a club member and ask to be invited by them. As long as each visiting couple has a club sponsor there is no charge. In this way friendships are shared, each visiting couple has a host for the evening to shepherd them and to introduce them to others and a good time is had by all.

Merced, California

The Romp'n Stompers Square Dance Club puts out a yearly calendar which lists its own club dates as well as Central California Square Dancers Association dances and special events to which its members would be welcome.

from HERE and THERE

Loaded with local advertising, the calendar also is a club fund-raiser.

Mason City, Iowa

Famed for "The Music Man," Mason City also boasts a fairly new club, The River Squares. Composed of 22 couples with a current class of better than five squares, The River Squares emulate the enthusiasm of square dancers everywhere. They dance twice a month. In addition they had such fun on a club hayride that they plan to make it an annual event. They have given exhibitions of square dancing at nursing homes, county homes, a handicap village and in street dances. During Christmas 17 couples plus their children sang carols at five locations for shut-ins. A variety of special fun badges including square dancing on roller skates and in snowmobiles have been obtained.

When planning the club badge, one clever member suggested they use "Shrink Art," thus making each badge individual as well as cutting expenses. This is an ingenious type of craft which permits a person to write, draw or trace on a special type of plastic. The design may then be colored if desired. After the pattern is cut out, it is placed on a teflon cookie sheet or on aluminum foil and baked in a kitchen oven. The overall size shrinks while the design intensifies in color. (A delightful idea which might be put to use in a variety of ways. Check your local craft or hobby stores for more information.)

Sun Valley, California

SQUARE DANCING reader, Chuck Pratt, each month reads the "Take A Good Look" section of the magazine to keep abreast of new movements and how to execute them. He relates that by using four different crayons, he colors in the circles and squares which indicate the four couples. In this way it is easier for him to follow the pattern of the movement as it unfolds. A simple but effective idea. Give it a try.

BADGE OF THE MONTH

With the Bicentennial so much in thought these days, we're all taking a look over our shoulders at what our forefathers did and how they lived. Reminiscent of early travel is the badge of the Shilo Prairie Schooners, formed at the Canadian Air Force Base in Shilo, Manitoba, in 1966.

Shilo is just a few miles off the Yellow Quail Trail which saw many oxcarts, ox-wagons and covered wagons, or prairie schooners, as they were known in the early days.

The badge is white on woodgrained plastic. It also has been reproduced in a 20" x 30" banner all done in needle-point by a talented club member.

SQUARE DANCE DIARY by a square dancer

In many areas the month of May marks the culmination of dance classes that started last September. And so it is to all these new graduates that we salute you at

This is the final section on this chapter about one-night stands. A sometimes overlooked segment of SQUARE DANCING, the one-nighters without a doubt reach the greatest potential of the square dancing public. If a person only has one crack at square dancing during his lifetime, it will be at one of these one-time specials. That's a good reason to make the dance as truly representative of the best that is in the activity as possible. Here are a few nitty gritty suggestions that may come in handy when setting up a one-nighter.

• The idea of presenting a "square dance party" comes quite frequently from someone who has never square danced before but who knows someone who has. If it is the first time a sponsoring group has ever presented a square dance One-Night Stand, you can be sure they have very little idea of what modern square dancing is all about.

Usually the reasons for considering such an evening boil down to (1) a desire for a recreational evening, (2) a method of attracting a large group of people for any one of a variety of reasons, or (3) a means of fund-raising.

Regardless of the underlying incentive, the caller is looked upon as an "expert" and should be able to provide what is necessary.

The preplanning for one of these events is important. The caller who has been given the responsibility of making the event successful can pass along to the "hosting" group suggestions and tips that will play an important part in the evening's success. Here are some of the points that will need to be covered:

When: Quite frequently the sponsoring group will already have selected the date by the time the caller is contacted. If you are to be the caller and the date is clear with you, then you might point out any obvious conflict which you feel the group might have overlooked in selecting this date. (Mother's Day, the night before a three-day holiday, etc.) It is well to discourage an exceptionally long evening. Square dancing can be rather strenuous exercise for those who are not accustomed to it.

Where: Success of a One-Night Stand very frequently depends upon the surroundings. A good, clean, well-located hall with a good floor and good acoustics is essential. You may have to point this out to the sponsors and perhaps even suggest some possible locations.

What: Suggest that the folks call it a Square Dance or a party evening of mixers and games. Discourage the use of the name "barn dance" even if the dance is being held at a barn-like structure. The inference often represents the evening as being something other than what you hope it will be.

Helpful Tips: In the course of the pre-planning you may be in a good position to offer the sponsors suggestions which may not have occurred to them. Some of these may be passed on to the members to help make this a more successful evening. Encourage informal wear, ladies to wear full skirts and low-heeled shoes; the men long-sleeved shirts, etc. Stress that the floor should be clean and be sure to caution the sponsors against using any dance wax. Once you arrive on the scene you'll know best whether to add Spee-Dup or Slo-Down.

Additional Entertainment: Unless you explain carefully, folks who know little about square dancing will think that a full evening of this activity will be just too much and that they will probably need some ballroom dancing and other bits of entertainment tossed in. You should be able to assure them that your program will more than fill the time and, except for providing the hall, the participants and the refreshments, you will provide everything else. This includes sound system and records.

"No drinking!" We say that, and while we know it may be difficult to hold to under certain circumstances, you are at the same time in a position to win respect for square dancing by sticking to your guns. You will be wise to explain early (perhaps even before accepting the assignment) that square dancing can only be successful if the bar is closed and suggest that the only beverages served be non-alcoholic.

Actually, the potential sponsors will not realize that the success of their party depends to a great extent upon the "no liquor" requirement. Once the situation is explained to them clearly (and gently) you will often discover they are more than desirous of going along with the idea, realizing that it could be a solution to problems of previous parties. Their goal is, after all, a successful evening.

You will learn to be ready for all types of "surprises" as you work with One-Night Stands. One of our memorable experiences started out by our "hosts" assuring us that it would be a Western Dance. It was Western, all right—Western Mexico, that is. Have you ever called to maracas and marimbos?

When possible, it is best if you can personally sit down and talk with the sponsors. Find out what they actually have in mind. Discover what their idea of square dancing is (it might surprise you). If you work with the sponsors far enough in advance, you will be able to provide them information they can include in their printed invitations.

If the dance is to be held in a hall that is not familiar to you, it is a good idea to go over and take a look at it—well in advance. See what type of a floor it has. It is strange what ideas people will get. Your dance surface could be a lawn. It could be a convention center. You can find ways of adapting to almost anything, but it is better to be prepared than to be "surprised."

Finances: What does a caller charge for calling a One-Night Stand? This is something that depends entirely upon the circumstances, the area and the particular dance and group involved. This must be worked out in advance by the caller and the sponsors.

Adapting This Program to Special Groups

Many of the simple dances and some of the procedures used in this program adapt well when teaching special types of groups. For instance, when working with the blind, dances that have a maximum of continued contact work well. The mixers can be adjusted so that there is no progression and each dancer stays with his own partner during the dance rather than facing the confusion of moving ahead to someone new.

Surprisingly enough, the great majority of dances can be done by those in wheelchairs. The timing has to be altered, of course, but even this can become, in time, very smooth.

If there is any one virtue which is more requisite than any other when working with these "special interest" groups, it is patience. It is not the dancers who come around to adjusting to the caller but the caller-teacher who must adjust his way of thinking to fit the abilities and possibilities of those with whom he is working.

By the same token, in no phase of square dancing will the rewards be greater and the personal satisfaction for the caller-teacher reach a higher summit.

The Exciter Dance

An excellent method of bringing new "recruits" into a series of lessons, is through a One-Night Stand. Quite frequently, the square dance club or caller will be the sponsor of such an evening. While the format remains basically the same as for the garden variety one-nighter, the significant difference lies in the fact that those attending are aware that there is a "follow-up," and that they will be invited to join a group if they enjoy this one evening.

At an "exciter dance" quite frequently experienced square dancers will personally conduct their non-square dancing friends to and from the dance and be ready to dance with them, space permitting.

The experienced dancers dancing with non-dancers must realize, of course, there is "only one caller" in the hall. The greatest help they can give will simply be to fill in squares so that all newcomers have an opportunity to dance. It may be that the caller will want to use the experienced dancers for a demonstration some time during the evening, but even this may not work out with the program.

A word of caution to the "helpers." Let the new dancers discover the movements for themselves; don't try to pull them through.

Let's Do It Again!

There is no better compliment for the caller, and no better testimonial for square dancing, than to have someone come up and say "What, is the evening over already?" or "When can we get together and do this again?", or "Where can we learn more?"

Repeat performances for a group happy over their first square dancing experience are not uncommon. With this in mind, you may want to keep track of what you call in order to help in your planning the next time around. Don't feel that you have to change the program radically or come up with something entirely new. Chances are that if you do, you may find that a great part of your group has changed. Those who come a second time are looking forward to doing some of the dances over again (that same old "familiarity" pattern). Those who are getting their initial experience will want all the fun you presented originally.

"I Just Happen to Have My Card With Me"

If folks had a good time at their One-Night Stand, there is a good chance they are going to want to get in touch with you again. It isn't a bad idea to have your business card unobtrusively handy, just in case. It is also a good idea to carry copies of announcements of new beginner classes, just in the event someone is "sold."

It is always good to be ready for an opportunity to let folks know something about square dancing. When the opportunity comes, remember to keep it short, interesting and to the point. You may want to say something like this:

The old barn dance isn't with us any more. In its place is its wonderful descendant, American Square Dancing. You will find folks enjoying this activity in every one of the United States, in all the provinces of Canada, and in over 50 countries overseas. It is estimated that more than 6 million people are taking part in square dancing today. The way it is growing, many more will be a part of it tomorrow. We don't dance in barns much any more. Instead, our hall could be a modern school auditorium, a church recreation hall, a hotel ballroom, or a modern, attractive, air-conditioned hall built just for square dancing. We have our national conventions too and more than 22,000 have turned out for one of these yearly, three-day affairs. You'll have to hunt a long time before you'll find a more wonderfully friendly, exciting couple activity than Square Dancing.

Music for the One-Night Stand

In general, the music you use for your One-Night Stand will play a great part in the evening's success. As part of your preplanning, it is important to listen carefully beforehand to each record you plan to use. And, while you are about it, you might listen to the record all the way through so that you won't be fooled on the night of the party by a record that has a tricky ending or a defect somewhere in the final grooves.

Music for your one-nighter should include the very best that square dancing has to offer. Try to stick to the sounds of contemporary American Western Square Dancing. Avoid records with "too squeaky" a fiddle or anything that might be "too far out." The tempo of your record selections should have the new dancers in mind. It will be a while before they learn to relax to the music, but good, rhythmic hoedowns, well-played singing calls and toe-tapping mixers with hoedown tempos somewhere in the neighborhood of 128 to 130 metronome beats per minute, should do the trick.

The new dancer, particularly the very young and exuberant, will tend to skip. In our case, we teach how not to skip, and not just because it is poor square dancing. We remember that it may not matter one jot to these people whether they square dance again or not, but skipping does tire a person out and the music is much easier to follow with a comfortable, easy shuffle. For that reason, there is a much better opportunity of providing a good time for all if the folks dance to the music.

A tremendous quantity of records suitable for One-Night Stands have been produced by more than 35 specialized record companies over the past 15 or 20 years. Not all of these recordings still are available. However, by shopping around and adapting hoedowns and singing call records that you can find, you will be able to come up with plenty of variety. Square dance record dealers specializing in this type of music are listed each month in SQUARE DANCING the Official Magazine of The Sets In Order American Square Dance Society, 462 No. Robertson Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90048.

Here is a sample list of hoedown records to start with. There are many more available.

On occasion a large one-nighter will feature "live musicians." This is fine if the caller is apprised of the situation and if the orchestra knows square dance music and the techniques of accompanying a caller. A caller would do well to consider not accepting a one-nighter featuring live music unless he has confidence in the musical group. More than that, he needs the opportunity to work out tunes, keys and tempos with the group ahead of time. A careful check of the entire program beforehand is a definite prerequisite when working with a band.

Much, much more can be written about the art of conducting a One-Night Stand. If you have the opportunity, watch a veteran caller handle one of these evenings. Take note of what pleases the crowd. Determine what techniques you would like to "borrow." Notice those things which you feel should be omitted.

We can learn much as we go along and the highly successful caller is continually on the lookout for methods of improving his One-Night Stand performance. It is the one plateau of square dancing that reaches the greatest percentage of our population. For that reason it deserves our greatest effort.

This concludes the section on one-night stands. We still have a few chapters to go, some additional thoughts on sight calling, additional "How To Do" segments on couple dancing and a few others that are "musts" for a complete up-to-date callers' textbook.

THE CONTRA ROADRUNNER

FOR THOSE OF YOU who are discovering the challenge and pleasure of moving to music that comes with doing the longways or contra dances, here is a contemporary contra that captures much of the traditional feeling. You who are purists in this field or in the field of contemporary square dancing will sometimes note in contras certain license that is taken, which is understood by the dancers and explained by the prompters (callers). Those who have danced traditional contras in New England will remember that a balance is often a freely interpreted movement with each dancer doing his own thing to the rhythm of the music. As we will be showing in these pictures, the dancers will be doing a step-swing balance in unison.

In contemporary square dancing we are told that a couple wheel around is done with the person on the left (the one in the man's position) always backing up, while the person in the lady's spot always moves forward. In this dance you'll note later on when the inactive couples do a wheel around, that the couples are reversed and the man, even though on the wrong side, backs up.

Enough for introductions. This contra written by Don Armstrong is unique in that it involves everyone most of the time. It is a duple crossed over, which means that after first "forming on" with all of the men on the caller's right and all the ladies on the caller's left, the 1st, 3rd, 5th and every other couple is active and these couples have exchanged places with their partners (1).

To start the dance each person faces his corner — the men face left and the ladies face right (2) and do a do sa do (3). Then each dancer faces across the set and does a do sa do with his partner (4) and backs up into lines once again (5).

Joining hands in the two long lines, each dancer balances on his right foot, swinging the left foot across (6). Then, placing his weight on his left foot, he swings his right foot across (7). Releasing handholds in the line, all of the dancers swing their partners (8) and, having swung, face down toward the foot of the hall in contra promenade position (9). This is simply a regular promenade position with the right hands held in front. The left hands are not held.

On the last steps of the measure the dancers backtrack, turning individually (10), and walk up toward the head of the hall (11) in four steps.

It is here that the only real “trick” of the dance occurs. The actives release handholds with their partners and, in a zoom or cloverleaf type of action (12) they move out and around the couple behind them. Simultaneously the inactives move forward and begin to wheel as a couple (13). Completing the wheel they are joined by the actives and circle four 8 steps to the left (14).

Switching from the circle to a left hand star (15), the dancers move back to the lines they were in when they started (1), only now each active couple has moved down one place and each inactive has moved up. This leaves one couple inactive at the head and one at the foot. They simply wait out the next time through the dance until they are told to cross at the head and cross at the foot, at which time they again get into the routine.

At this point (16) each person, with a new corner, begins the dance by doing a do sa do as was done in the beginning (3) and the dance continues.

This dance can be called and danced to any number of good, well-phrased jigs or reels.

THE 25TH National SQUARE DANCE Convention[®]

June 24, 25, 26, 1976

CALIFORNIA

"A Past to Remember — A Future to Mold"

ALL ACROSS AMERICA, as dancers travel to the 25th National Square Dance Convention in Anaheim, California in June, they will be stopping for the night and looking for a square dance. We're listing those dances for which we have received information, however, it might be a good idea to check around when stopping for the night. There are probably countless trail dances being held that are advertised only in the local areas.

June 17—Trail In Dance, Municipal Auditorium, Pensacola, Florida

June 17-19—3rd Annual Trail In Festival, Red River Community House, Red River, New Mexico

June 18—Trail Dance, Loveland High School, Loveland, Colorado

June 21, Trail Dance, Del Webb Town House, Phoenix, Arizona

June 21—Trail Dance, New Convention Center, Albuquerque, New Mexico

June 22—Red Boot Roundup Trail Dance, Fairgrounds, Tulare, California

June 23—A special Trail End Dance will be held at the site of the First National Square Dance Convention in Riverside, California. This dance will feature callers who participated at the First National and will mark the silver anniversary of the National Square Dance Convention.

Convention Highlights

A two-hour pageant will depict "American Square Dancing Through the Years." In all there will be ten segments, each portraying a different aspect of the last 200 years of square dancing.

Truly a show to behold, the fashion show will be more of an extravaganza than a show. It will be produced to enable the more than 6,700 spectators in the Arena of the Convention Center to have a bird's-eye view of each participant. Seats will be at a premium for this one time only showing so plan to arrive early and enjoy the entire show.

Every conceivable topic will be covered under one of the panels, seminars and clinics. Special displays will be on continuous view and other rooms will also provide constant activity. National dignitaries will be on hand to represent the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration in tribute to the fact that this Convention is a National Bicentennial Event. Each of the fifty states will have a space reserved for them as will many foreign countries in the Parade of States. It's quite likely that this will be a Parade of Nations.

Following these special events and over 300 hours of dancing, the 25th National will be brought to a unique conclusion with a night of revelry at world-famous Disneyland. Beginning at 9 pm, Saturday, June 26, until 5 am Sunday, dancers will be able to enjoy the entire park as their very own pleasure realm. The park will be closed to the public, so Disneyland will truly be giving square dancers a private party. With unlimited use of all Disneyland rides and attractions (except shooting galleries), and with four locations for square and round dancing in two areas, this will be an occasion to be remembered. In addition there will be dance music by a Dixieland Band and a Rock Band. Still another feature will be the 10 pm running of "America On Parade."

Dancers are reminded to complete the Advance Registration Application and return as soon as possible. Advance registrations will be accepted until June 1st, however, confirmations will not be mailed out after May 1st. Those received after May 1st will have to be picked up at the Convention. Outstanding accommodations for housing are still available in the areas surrounding the Anaheim Convention Center for those dancers who submit their request through the 25th National Housing Committee. All accommodations assigned by the Convention Committee will be served by a regularly scheduled shuttle bus system. These buses will run frequently from early morning until the conclusion of the Convention each day.

Square dancing stepped into the limelight and presented a 30-minute program at the Governor's Ball. The floor of the Coliseum was filled with dancers from all over the state. This was not the first square dancing at the Governor's Ball, however. Finis Nabors called to two squares at the Inauguration Ball for Governor Paul Johnson several years ago.

WHAT ARE THE REQUIREMENTS for a good square dance call? To be sure there are many; among them is the need for smooth motion or flow. Much of the success of a call depends upon the caller, on his ability to deliver the call in an intelligent and danceable manner. Equally important is his ability to select good material. Not all callers create their own material, but many spend countless hours going over patterns in order to make them smooth and danceable. Our collection this month comes from Bill Higgins, Fairfax, Virginia. Though not necessarily original, the dances are ones he finds particularly pleasurable in using with his groups.

BILL HIGGINS

Bill and Kathi Higgins discovered square dancing thirty years ago when they happened on a "Pappy" Shaw dance while vacationing in Colorado. Returning home to St. Louis, Missouri, they immediately "jumped" into the activity and have been avid square and round dancers ever since. Bill started calling in 1951; much of his calling has been in Japan and Europe while serving on active duty with the army. Bill and Kathi were Co-Founders of the European College of Square and Round Dancing in 1963. Following a return to the States in 1967 and a tour in Vietnam in 1969, Bill retired as a Colonel in 1972 with 30 years service and the Higgins now make their home in Fairfax, Virginia. Here Bill regularly teaches and calls for two clubs on a weekly basis. They also teach and cue rounds and for a night of relaxation they belong to a weekly round dance club. Bill is a member of CAL-LERLAB (serving on the Basics and Round Dance Committees), a LEGACY Trustee, and has twice been President of the Washington, D.C. Area Callers Association. The Higgins are General Chairmen of the Overseas Dancers Association and will host its 14th Annual Reunion in Washington, D.C. this August. Kathi is a prolific artist; Bill makes all of her picture frames and somehow they manage to spend some time on the golf course each week. Their latest venture is the formation, with Lou and Decko Deck, of a Square and Round Dance Institute (SARDI) which features multi-caller classes at all levels. The Higgins wholeheartedly subscribe to the motto of the Overseas Dancers Association, "Friendship is Square Dancing's Greatest Reward."

ABOUT THESE QUADRILLES

The intense interest shown by a number of round dance leaders and round dance specialists has led us to believe that the quadrilles, like the contras which are done to the phrase of the music and are cued in a manner similar to the rounds, may indeed prove popular to those who round dance. With that thought in mind, we include another one this month.

CALLER of the MONTH

Ken Kernen, Canoga Park, Calif.

BORN IN THE RANCHING COMMUNITY of Del Norte, Colorado, Ken Kernen became acquainted with square dancing as a Saturday night entertainment shared with friends and neighbors.

It was while attending the University of Colorado at Boulder that Ken began taking the square dance activity a bit more seriously by dancing with the University club, Calico and Boots. The club soon found itself without a caller and Ken picked up the mike. With much assistance and moral support from Gib Gilbert, he began calling in 1962 and served as coach of the exhibition team for the next four and one half years. It was here in 1963 that Ken and Sharon met and both have felt that square dancing not only brought them together but over the years has become a philosophy of life.

Ken and Sharon have attended the Lloyd Shaw Fellowship in Colorado Springs for the past ten years and Ken serves on the Board of Directors of the Lloyd Shaw Foundation.

After Ken earned his degree in Electrical Engineering, the Kernens moved to Phoenix, Arizona, where Kirsten, now eight and Burke, now six were born.

In 1973 Ken made the decision to change careers and devote himself to the activity that had become such an important influence in his life. The Kernens moved to California and joined the staff of The Sets in Order American Square Dance Society where Ken is Administrative Assistant to Bob Osgood and Manager of Callers' Supply. Sharon also works at Sets in Order and is Bob's secretary.

Since his arrival in California, Ken has been actively calling and is particularly noted for his work with one-night stands. In 1974 he became a member of CALLERLAB.

Ken says, "We live very full and busy lives, lives built on the joy of dance and warm fellowship. We are thankful for the opportunity to be involved so fully in the square dance activity."

Dear Editor:

In January, 1975, Leo's doctor told us he would have to go on dialysis (kidney machine) because of renal failure. In June he had a coronary attack which left him almost helpless. The doctors advised open heart surgery but considering the two strikes against him, they were more than a little concerned. . . . they decided to go ahead, not knowing what the outcome might be. Meantime medical bills were piling up and everyday bills were collecting. In October our wonderful square dance friends gave us a "Helping Hand" dance. . . . Collected enough money for us to pay our bills and live until Leo's Social Security would come through in January '76. Leo had open heart surgery in November and came through with flying colors. We are back in round dancing (the slow ones so far) and it won't be long before he will try square dancing. Thanks to all the wonderful people of square dancing who have made this possible, plus a wonderful God above who helped the doctors. We will be forever grateful.

Dear Editor:

We, the Black Gold Chainers Square Dance Club, have been in existence about three years. We have around 150 members. Thanks to the SIOASDS. . . . we have learned a lot of good things through your magazine. We love the western square dancing but it is hard not to clog if the beat of the music is just right. I believe we will double our members through the Bicentennial year. . . . hope to make a real good image of square dancing here in the mountains of Eastern Kentucky.

Two years ago I introduced square dancing here in the resort area of Long Beach, N.C. Lewis H. Conley was the first to sign up for the beginners' class. Today he is the club caller. He directed the class for me while I was hospitalized and did such a good job I told him to carry on. Since then he has graduated two classes of his own. Train more callers who will keep the floor moving with the 85 basics and let's keep the flower of friendship blooming.

SQUARE DANCING magazine) and we think they are outstanding. One especially has proven to be a good manager's tool. I refer to the "New Dancer's Special." I am presently teaching two classes, and as in every class there are one or two individuals who don't get the hint. When we showed them these articles they came around and no one was embarrassed. Good work!

Dear Editor:

Our association had a discussion on a couple of subjects and we decided to write to see if you could help us. Is it still considered standard to twirl when you meet your partner for a promenade, also on reaching home? Also, on the courtesy turn should the girl place her hand at her back, or is skirt or skaters position the standard now? Hand positioning was what the discussion was on. Thanks

While we still indicate that the twirl is standard both before and following a promenade, we have noticed that it is being dropped by many dancers. We still suggest that it be taught, but that the new dancers be primed to adjust to the style used by different groups they visit. In time this will probably be clarified by CALLERLAB or we may make a survey of various areas and suggest what the majority seems to be doing. It may be that with the increased complexity within a square such frills will logically disappear (to the delight of some and the dismay of others). When it comes to the courtesy turn we suggest that dancers be aware of both positions.—Editor are featuring patterns of yesteryear. Thrift shops also are a good source of suits and dresses which, if they don't exactly fit the date you are looking for, often can be altered to accommodate your need at a minimal cost.

Here is one idea you might consider. Starting with the square dance attire of 1976, you could use one or more ladies and men in today's square dancing outfits. Then leap backwards to the 1950's and show a squaw dress or similar outfit of mid-calf length. Another ten years backward will take you to the ankle-length dresses for the gals and the fringe shirts for the men.

Then back to the 1920s to the Henry Ford dancers of Dearborn, Michigan, where formal attire was appropos. This would mean the man in a tuxedo, the lady in a formal dress. From then on back through the 1800s and the 1700s you can let your imagination take over. There are a variety of simple and elegant outfits—those of the ballrooms of the Eastern seaboard, the plains of the West, the courtyards of the Spaniards. For fun you might want to include the prospector of the mid-1800s where the heavy-booted, rough-garbed miner came to town to dance polkas in the saloon with the dance hall queen, who could be garbed appropriately in an American version of a French cancan dress.

A fashion show such as this will give you great latitude to discuss some of the peculiarities of early costuming: the "mobcap" used both day and night by Colonial ladies to keep their tresses clean; the fact that at one time shoes had no distinction from right and left but a pewter or steel buckle kept the shoe conformed to the foot; that britches of leather often had no opening flaps so that when wear occurred the pants could simply be reversed and worn front to back; that "fillers," predecessor to the bustle, were worn to hide the swaybacked condition of many women, and so on.

Social structure, economic necessity, area—all played a part in how our people dressed and how they danced. Have fun joining one to the other in your fashion show.

HOW TO USE THE RECORD REPORT

To get the best possible analysis all singing calls are checked and rated by two sources. First, a rating is made by a square of dancers that actually dances to each record. The records are then sent to another reviewer who rates them on recording quality, instrumentation, clarity of commands, and body mechanics. The final "star" rating is based on a consensus of the reports from both. In all cases and unless otherwise noted, it may be assumed that singing calls are recorded in a medium range. In the case of hoedowns the key will be included.

Each report gives an analysis of the record and the dance. The shaded area in the chart indicates the voice range used by most recording companies. By comparing the voice range letters in each analysis with those on the chart, you should be able to determine the record's suitability to your voice. Occasionally a report will be starred (*) in which case you will find the call reproduced in the Workshop section of the same issue.

Some of the square dance records reported will have rating symbols at the end of the "Comment" section. These represent the opinion of the reviewing committee. Symbols used indicate as follows: ☆ Average, ☆☆ Above Average, ☆☆☆ Exceptional, ☆☆☆☆ Outstanding.

Comment: Cue on grand square on introduction makes dancers wait for proper execution. Tune does not adapt to good square dance use. Caller seems to try to make music fit the figure.

SALUTES THE BICENTENNIAL, 1976

Square Dancing—truly an American tradition among thousands, will hopefully become an American heritage and culture. How happy and thankful we should be!

The torch of leadership will pass, but prayerfully—to even stronger hands to hold it high so countless others, too, will become a part of the true America that made us a great, altruistic country!

The Peoria area round dance groups will host their first Round Dance Weekend—the Round-a-Vous—beginning Friday evening May 14th and extending through Sunday noon, May 16th at the Peoria YMCA. Featured on Saturday and Sunday will be round dance instructors Wayne and Norma Wiley. The Friday night "Foolin'-a-Round Dance" will feature request rounds. On Sunday morn-

Department is again sponsoring its annual Calico Spring Festival May 7th, 8th and 9th. The weekend musical celebration is widely attended and offers activities of interest to every member of the family. It will feature old time contests, campfire entertainment, barbershop singing, fiddle playing and, of course, square dancing by the Barstow Bunch Square Dance Club at Calico's Silver Bowl.

In an effort to provide an afternoon of good dancing for members of all the clubs on the Monterey Peninsula, Ken and Lola Bain of Taw Twirlers spearheaded a dance party on February 15th at the Moose Hall in Del Rey Oaks. Some ten squares enjoyed the calling of Brad Bradford and the round dance cueing of his wife, Barbara. Included was a nostalgic look back at "Birdie in the Cage," which was a real novelty to the newer dancers and fun for everybody. Dancing was followed by an excellent steak dinner put on by the Moose Lodge for the dancers.

BOOK REVIEW

The Square Dancer's Handbook of Skits & Stunts, Games & Gimmicks by Russ and Opal Hansen is available from ProAm Publications, 219-221 Parkade, Cedar Falls, Iowa 50613. A soft-bound compilation of what the title implies, the book is easily readable and neatly packaged. Skits are clearly defined as to (1) Participants, (2) Equipment Required and (3) Routine. A wide variety of stunts is included from those suitable for outdoor campouts to those more appropriate to the indoor situation. The authors have called upon their years of square dance experience to "reminisce about the great fun square dancers have had"

and which they have personally seen at clubs, camps, festivals and institutes to gather under one cover many of these well-known stunts and skits.

IN MEMORIAM

We join with friends in extending condolences to the families of the following square dancers who passed away in recent months.

Glenn Zent, Phoenix, Arizona. For over 40 years a willing and able worker in the activity, Glenn lent his support and encouragement to every new caller who came into the area. He is survived by his wife, Maxcine.

Nat Dicianna, Eugene, Oregon. First Vice-President of the Oregon Federation, Nat held many offices in the Emerald Empire Area and his friendly smile and willingness to serve will be long remembered.

fashion feature

Barbara Lane of Estes Park, Colorado, needed seven yards of a dacron-voile fabric for this cool, comfortable, easily packable dress. The color is moss green with a lighter green dot print. A gathered ruffle is set on a scalloped neckline. The three tiers in the skirt are trimmed with light green lace and hang loose. The trick here is to set the ruffles on a circular-cut lining, backed with pella, which keeps the skirt from sagging. Try it.
