DURHAM, NH – Hillary Clinton and Barack Obama are neck and neck in New Hampshire and the race will likely be close, down to the wire.

These findings are based on the latest CNN / WMUR New Hampshire Primary Tracking Poll* conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. Three hundred fifty-nine (359) randomly selected likely New Hampshire Democratic primary voters were interviewed by telephone between January 4 and 3 p.m., January 5, 2008. The margin of sampling error is +/- 5%.

After his dramatic win in Iowa, Illinois Senator Barack Obama hopes to ride a wave of momentum into New Hampshire where he has trailed New York Senator Hillary Clinton throughout the past year. In the latest CNN/WMUR tracking poll, Obama and Clinton are tied -- 33% say they support Clinton, 33% support Obama, 20% favor former North Carolina Senator John Edwards, 4% prefer New Mexico Governor Bill Richardson, 2% favor Ohio Congressman Dennis Kucinich, 1% want some other candidate, and 7% say they are still undecided.

Clinton gets her strongest support from voters with older voters and those with lower levels education. Obama's support is fairly evenly balanced across demographic groups but is strongest among younger Democrats.

New Hampshire Democrats, like those in Iowa, believe "change" is more important than experience in 2008. Sixty-one percent said change is more important, 29% think experience is more important, and 10% don't know. Ninety percent of Obama supporters say change is more important than experience while 59% of Clinton supporters think experience is more important

Undeclared Voters

Undeclared voters, often referred to as Independents, can vote in either the Democratic or Republican primary. Currently, 56% of undeclared voters say they plan to vote in the Democratic primary. Among those undeclared voters who say they will vote in the Democratic primary, Obama holds a narrow lead over Clinton by 38% to 28% with 20% favoring Edwards, and 5% supporting Richardson. Obama has led among undeclareds for the past month.

NH Democratic Presidential Primary – Undeclareds Voting in DEM Primary

But according to this latest poll, registered Democrats make up 60% of likely voters and among registered Democrats, Clinton holds a 36% to 29% lead over Obama with 20% favoring Edwards and 4% preferring Richardson.

Still Making Up Their Minds

Even though there are only 3 days until the election, only 52% of likely Democratic primary voters say they have definitely decided who they will vote for, 26% say they are leaning toward a candidate and 23% said they are still trying to decide. Among voters who say they have definitely decided who they will vote for 41% support Obama, 35% support Clinton, and 20% name Edwards.

Favorability Ratings

One reason this race is still close, and that many Democrats have not yet made up their minds, is that all of the top Democratic candidates are viewed very favorably by Democratic voters. Eighty-seven percent have a favorable opinion of Obama, 10% have an unfavorable opinion of him, 2% are neutral, and 1% don't know. His net favorability rating, the percentage with a favorable opinion minus the percent with an unfavorable opinion, is +77%.

Edwards is almost viewed as favorably as Obama. Eighty-two percent have a favorable opinion of Edwards, 13% have an unfavorable opinion of him, 5% are neutral, and 1% are not sure. Edwards' net favorability rating is +69%.

Clinton has somewhat lower favorability ratings. Seventy-four percent have a favorable opinion of Clinton, 19% have an unfavorable opinion of her, and 6% are neutral. Clinton's net favorability rating is +54%.

Candidate Qualities

Likely Democratic primary voters were asked several questions about characteristics of the Democratic candidates. Clinton had been leading the field, in part, because she is perceived as the Democrat who has the best chance of winning in November. But Obama's victory in Iowa has raised his electability in the eyes of Democratic voters. Thirty-six percent of likely Democratic primary voters believe Clinton has the best chance of defeating the GOP candidate in November, 35% think Obama has the best chance, and 12% think Edwards has the best chance. Earlier this week, Clinton held a 45% to 22% advantage over Obama on this measure.

Clinton is still seen as the candidate with the right experience to be President – 46% name Clinton, only 14% name Obama, 13% name Edwards, and 7% name Richardson.

Obama is seen as the candidate best able to bring needed change to the U.S. – Obama is named by 41% followed by Clinton (28%) and Edwards (16%).

Obama is also seen as the candidate who best represents the voter's values – 32% think Obama best represents their values, 28% think Clinton does, 22% name Edwards, and 4% name Richardson.

But perhaps Obama's greatest strength is his ability to inspire voters – 60% say Obama the most inspiring candidate, 18% name Clinton, and 12% name Edwards.

Historic Candidates

Most Democrats think the country is ready to elect a black candidate – 78% think the country is ready, 16% think the country is not ready, and 7% are not sure. Similarly, 80% think the country is ready to elect a woman president, 14% think the country is not ready, and 6% are not sure.

CNN / WMUR NH Primary Tracking Poll Methodology

The CNN / WMUR New Hampshire Primary Tracking Poll is conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. Three hundred fifty-nine (359) randomly selected likely New Hampshire Democratic primary voters were interviewed by telephone between January 4 to 3 p.m. January 5, 2008. The margin of sampling error is +/- 5%. Results reported for other subgroups have potential for somewhat larger variation than those for the entire population.

The data have been weighted to adjust for numbers of voters and telephone lines within households, respondent sex, and region of the state. In addition to potential sampling error, all surveys have other potential sources of non-sampling error including question order effects, question wording effects, and non-response.
