

5-1-2021

Covid-19 Rights & Responsibilities: Judicial & Legislative Responses to the Covid-19 Pandemic

Derek Kauffman

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholars.unh.edu/unh_lr

Part of the Law Commons

Repository Citation

Derek, Covid-19 Rights & Responsibilities: Judicial & Legislative Responses to the Covid-19 Pandemic, 19 U.N.H. L. Rev. (2021). available at: https://scholars.unh.edu/unh_lr/vol19/iss2/5

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the University of New Hampshire – Franklin Pierce School of Law at University of New Hampshire Scholars' Repository. It has been accepted for inclusion in The University of New Hampshire Law Review by an authorized editor of University of New Hampshire Scholars' Repository. For more information, please contact sue.zago@law.unh.edu.

Covid-19 Rights & Responsibilities: Judicial & Legislative Responses to the Covid-19 Pandemic

EDITOR'S FOREWORD

Planning a law review symposium during the Covid-19 pandemic felt trite at times. However, the editorial board saw an opportunity to highlight some of the many important legal issues raised during the pandemic. “Covid-19 Rights & Responsibilities: Judicial & Legislative Responses to the Covid-19 Pandemic” discusses personal liberties, how they were affected during the pandemic by state action, and the future implications from these actions. We are pleased to publish three brilliant author’s work, Dr. Cynthia Boyer, Amir Cahane, and Professor Michelle Richards. Thank you to the authors for their cooperation and feedback. Also, a special thank you is warranted to the entire symposium editing team, Jennifer Lyon – Senior Editor, Jennifer Cote – Associate Editor, Anna Pierattini – Associate Editor and John Sheehy – Associate Editor.