

THE GRANITE STATE POLL

THE UNIVERSITY OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

LYNCH APPROVAL AT 72 PERCENT

FOR RELEASE
 February 22, 2006

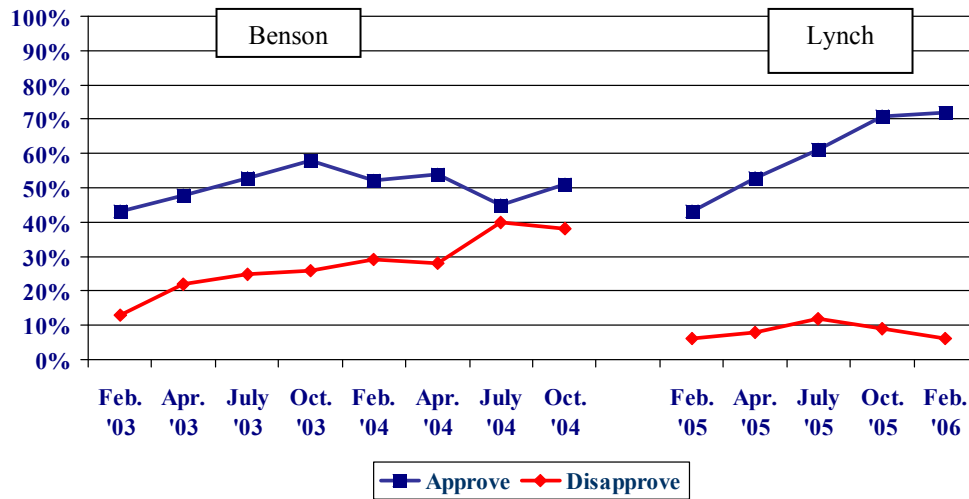

DURHAM, NH – New Hampshire Governor John Lynch’s approval rating has soared to 72 percent. New Hampshire residents are very positive about the direction the state is headed.

These findings are based on the latest Granite State Poll,* conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. The Granite State Poll is sponsored by the University of New Hampshire. Five hundred six (506) randomly selected New Hampshire adults were interviewed by telephone between February 10 and February 17, 2006. The margin of sampling error for the survey is +/-4.4 percent.

Gubernatorial Approval

After one year in office, Democratic Governor John Lynch gets a strong vote of confidence from Granite Staters. In the most recent Granite State Poll, 72 percent of New Hampshire adults say they approve of the job Lynch has done as governor, only 6 percent disapprove, and 22 percent are neutral. By comparison, 52 percent of Granite Staters approved of the job Craig Benson was doing at a similar point in his administration.

NH Gubernatorial Approval

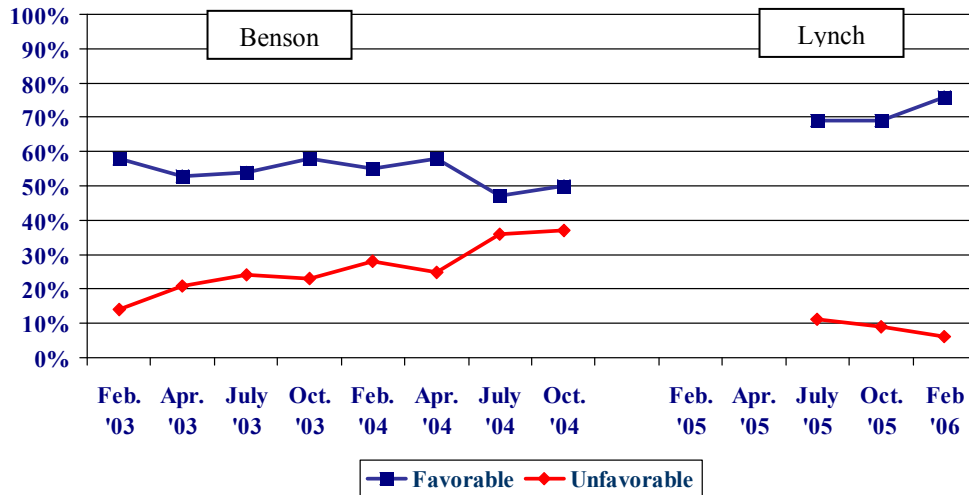

In the Fall Granite State Poll, 71 percent approved of the job Lynch was doing as Governor. At that time, it was thought that some of Lynch’s approval was due to handling of flooding in south-western New Hampshire, but his approval has continued to rise in the months since Lynch gets high ratings from all political groups – 77 percent of Democrats approve of the job Lynch is doing as governor, 71 percent of Republicans and 67 percent of Independents. “The fact that Republicans have such high opinions of Lynch make his re-election in November more and more likely,” said Andrew Smith, Director of the UNH Survey Center.

* We ask that this copyrighted information be referred to as the Granite State Poll, sponsored by the University of New Hampshire.

Lynch's personal favorability rating is also very high. In the latest Granite State Poll, 76 percent of New Hampshire residents say they have a favorable opinion of Lynch, only 6 percent have an unfavorable opinion, 12 percent are neutral, and 6 percent say they don't know enough about him to say. Lynch's net favorability rating, the percentage having a favorable opinion minus the percentage having an unfavorable opinion, is an astounding +70 percent, making him by far the most popular elected official in New Hampshire (see favorability ratings for Senators and Congressmen below).

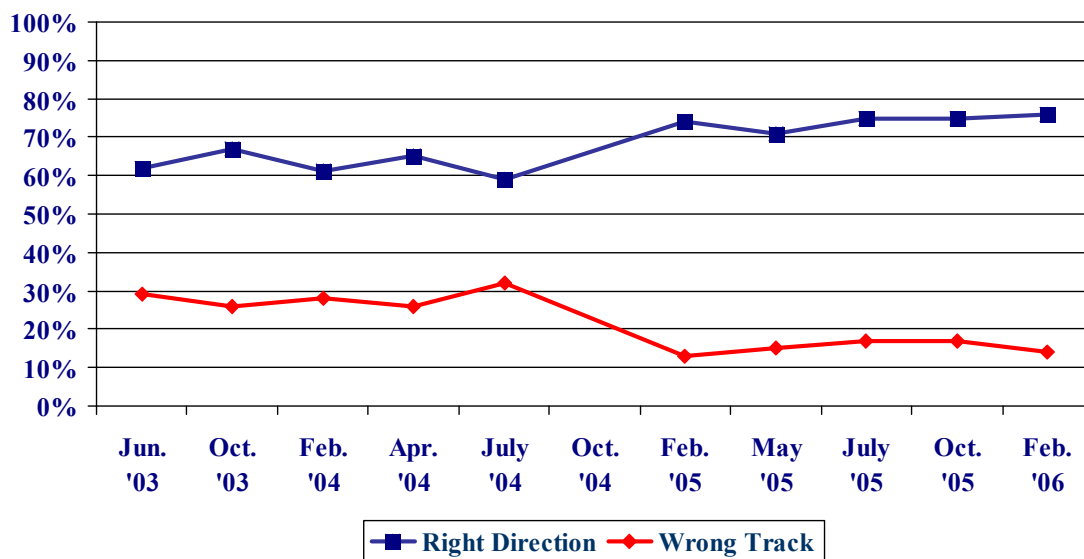

Favorability Ratings – NH Governor

Right Direction or Wrong Track?

Granite Staters are extremely optimistic about the future of New Hampshire. Seventy-six percent think things in New Hampshire are generally going in the right direction, only 14 percent think things are seriously off on the wrong track, and 10 percent say they don't know. This indicator of optimism about the state is at its highest level since the Granite State Poll began measuring this in June 2003.

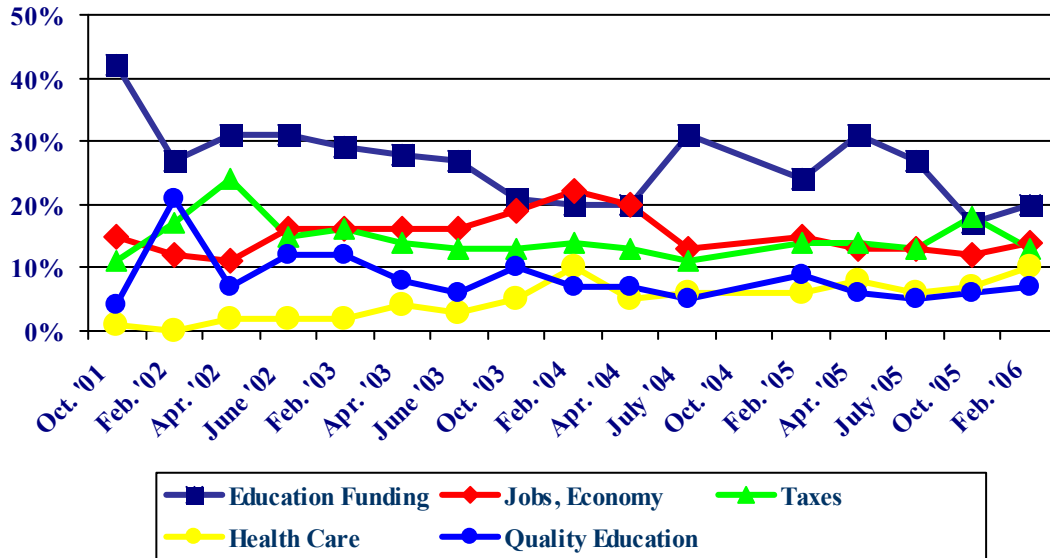

NH Heading in Right Direction or On Wrong Track?

Most Important Problem Facing New Hampshire

How to fund primary and secondary education is seen as the important problem facing the state of New Hampshire (cited by 20 percent of respondents) followed by jobs and the economy (14%), high taxes and desires to change the tax system (13%) health care issues (10%), the quality of education (7%), and population growth and sprawl (3%). There has been little change in the top three most important in recent months.

Most Important Problem Facing NH

Favorability Ratings of Senators and Congressmen

The New Hampshire Congressional delegation continues to get high favorability ratings from Granite Staters a year before the 2006 mid-term elections. Senator Judd Gregg remains the most popular -- 59 percent of New Hampshire adults have a favorable opinion of Gregg, 15 percent have an unfavorable opinion, 14 percent are neutral and 12 percent don't know enough to say. Gregg's net favorability rating is a strong +44 percent, up somewhat from +38 percent in Fall 2005.

John Sununu, New Hampshire's junior Senator also is viewed favorably with 55 percent of New Hampshire adults having a favorable opinion of him, 23 percent having an unfavorable opinion, 13 percent are neutral and 8 percent don't know enough to say. Sununu's net favorability rating is +32 percent, up from +22 percent in Fall 2005.

Turning to New Hampshire's Representatives in the House, 51 percent of 1st District residents have a favorable opinion of their Congressman, Jeb Bradley, 16 percent have an unfavorable opinion, 16 percent are neutral and 17 percent don't know enough about him to say. Bradley's net favorability rating in the 1st District is +35 percent, essentially unchanged from Fall 2005 when it stood at +36 percent. Bradley's net favorability rating statewide is +27 percent.

2nd District Congressman Charlie Bass remains quite popular in his District and statewide. Fifty-one percent of 2nd District residents have a favorable opinion of Bass, 19 percent have an unfavorable opinion, 18 percent are neutral, and 13 percent don't know enough about him to say. Bass' net favorability rating in the 2nd District is +32 percent, up from +24 Fall 2005. Bass' net favorability rating statewide stands at +36 percent.

Two rivals for the Democratic nomination in the 2nd District to oppose Bass are Concord Attorney Paul Hodes, who ran against Bass in 2004, and businessman Brett Clemens. Both of these candidates are essentially unknown in the district. Ten percent of 2nd District residents have a favorable opinion of Hodes, 1 percent are unfavorable, 11 percent are neutral, and 78 percent know too little about him to say. Three percent have a favorable opinion of Clemens, 1 percent are unfavorable, 9 percent are neutral, and 86 percent know too little about him to say. The lack of public awareness of these candidates means that it will be extremely difficult for either to upset Bass in the fall.

Granite State Poll Methodology

These findings are based on the most recent Granite State Poll conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center from February 10 to February 17, 2006. A random sample of 506 New Hampshire adults, selected by a procedure known as Random Digit Dialing (RDD), was interviewed by telephone. In 95 of 100 cases, the statewide estimates will be accurate to plus or minus 4.4 percent. Results reported for other subgroups have potential for somewhat larger variation than those for the entire population.

The data have been weighted to adjust for numbers of adults and telephone lines within households, respondent sex, and region of the state. In addition to potential sampling error, all surveys have other potential sources of non-sampling error including question order effects, question wording effects, and non-response.
