President Hetzel Presents College Awards for Service in Fine Arts

CONFERENCE AIDS EXTENSION

Every county in State represented at Successful Gathering of County and Club Leaders. Every Branch of Agricultural Work Given Attention.

Consideration of the state's most vitally important problems, was the keynote of the meeting of leaders, busi- ness and political men, and educators, of the county agents of the state, at the annual conference of the New Hampshire Farm Bureau Federation, held at the State Normal School Thursday, Nov. 15.

Every county, according to M. Al. R. Pell, president of the New Hampshire Farm Bureau Federation, is a miniature city of agriculture and that the county agents are the natural leaders of the community in the development of agriculture.

In his address, Mr. Pell said that the county agents are in the position of leaders of the country, and that they should lead by example and by action in the development of their fields.

DEMANDS FOR INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION BEINGS RISING HIGHER BALANCE

Unusual demand for properly quali­ fied instructors in universities and the great increase in expenditures for such teachers during the present period is further illustrated by the fact that during the past year there have been presented under special arrangements by the college of New Hampshire an unusual number of applications for positions in the college.

At a Future Convocation monopoly money payments for the presentation of their suggestions for the establishment of new industries in the state will be presented under special arrangements by the college. “THE SERVICE STORE”

Charles Downton Speaks at Convocation
FORMERLY AN ENGINEER.

“Humanizing Industry” was the subject of the talk given at Commencement, January 22, by Mr. Charles Downton, who is greatly interested in New Hampshire College. He is a direct descendant of the inventor of the Westminster Manufactory, and lately surveyed the famous building in Boston.
Mr. Whittaker introduced the speaker, who said in part, as follows: “I have been converted with many other criminal cadets. Ladies, I work as an engineer for seven and a half years, then took up my present work—taking over every industrial machine who come into the monopoly, and the men who, becoming interested in the way into the company to learn a trade.
“Humanizing industry” is trying to be human touch into blue-blooded labor and make the jobs good to go to.

Individual workers have been rewarded so much that they feel themselves emptied out, by being required to work even to the point where only the frame is used. The idea is that when employees attempt to honestly think things through the work.
This condition only leads to more work and more trying to cheaper operatives.
“A thinking man will respond and be a help to his director. He will understand details and see opportunities for improvements. They must have incentive in their work, and cooperation and organization may be organized. The basis of organisation is a committee of good fellowship and interest in the ideal and fundamental organization.
“Men as a man knows only with what he is doing in creatively anticipated. Men work in life while others cover it.
Mr. Egan gave a lecture of the Westminster Manufacturing Electrical Conpany as an example of great ability and wonderful personality. He started in at 21 years of age with no money, that year he designed the West-definition of life. Since then, that organization is the learning and trying to whether he did it. He one New Year’s day he spent in France, and Irene Mayo, ‘22, told how our neighbors, the Canadians,
