They were all in uniform with splendid colors on, completed by Major C. E. Penney, Mr. Charles Mount, Miss Dorothy Finley, Miss Jennie Finley, Miss Ruth Davis, Miss Bertha Adams, Miss Helen M. COLLEGE HERD DISEASE FREE

On Accredited List of Federal Department

United States Live Stock Sanitary Association Originaries of Kansas Accredited Herd—Immune—Effective in Protecting Herd from Brucellosis—Decrease in Infant Mortality

"The dairy herd daily stays of the Federal Accredited herd. This statement was made last Friday by Dr. Clark, a veterinarian from the Bureau of Animal Industry, after he had completed a thorough examination of the herd. It is estimated that the herd contains about 2500 cows, of which about 1800 are accredited. The fourth herd, which was not accredited, is of the health of the herd as far as tuberculosis is concerned.

ACCREDITED HERDS SUMMER

The uniform accredited herd plan was presented by representatives of accredited cattle holding associations and the committees representing the United States Live Stock Sanitary Association in December. In 1877 it is said that the accredited herd plan was introduced and that this was the first accredited herd plan that was attempted. The idea of a herd of accredited cattle was cordially received and the accredited herd plan was adopted and a number of accredited herds were formed. In 1901, the accredited herd plan was adopted in England and on the Continent.

PUBLIC HEALTH IMPROVED

There is a direct relation between the health of the herd and the public health. In 1881, the accredited herd plan was adopted in England and on the Continent.

Fracking children's tuberculosis

The percentage of tuberculosis among children under five years of age and adults is small. The outstanding feature of tuberculosis in the United States is the high percentage of children under five years of age. It is estimated that 10,000 children die annually from the disease. Fracking the tuberculosis among children is the only practical method of controlling the disease.

COACH COWELL HAS NEW OFFICE SUITE

Change Gives More Room to Athletic Department—Will Be Greatest in Efficiency in Departmen

The change of the offices of the athletic department into a new, larger and better suite on the second floor of the gymnasium building is indicative of the increase of the importance of athletics at New Hampshire college. With 35 students who are interested in athletics, it is considered that the new suite will be able to accommodate them adequately.

New office of the coaches will be more commodious and will enable the coaches to control the athletic teams more easily. The coaches will be better able to obtain satisfactory results in their work. Furthermore, the old office was always occupied with legitimate business, and the new office will serve as a check room for police and also as a meeting room for referee meetings. These improvements have been made necessary in the interest of efficiency as an athletic office and consequently to move into larger and more commodious quarters.

OFICE MADE PRIVATE

Formerly offices of the assistant director and also those of the managers were in the same room with Coach Cowell. Now, the office of the assistant director is railed off from the remainder of the room. This is of no assistance to the athletic manager with the athletic files, where the athletic equipment may be placed every morning and also for the conveinience of the coaches.
