E. W. MASTERS LECTURE

Evolution of Lamp Development - Materials Used in Manufacture of Products - Description - Comparison Made Between Poor and Lighted Features

A meeting of the Engineering club of The New Hampshire, Wednesday, November 7, was held in the Science building. The speakers were Messrs. E. W. Masters and E. S. Reed, who gave a very instructive lecture on the materials used in the manufacture of electric lamps. The speaker started by giving a very instructive talk on the different types of lamps and why they have been used and have caused so much discussion. The lamp which has the most to do with the evolution of the electric light is the bulb lamp, which was made of thin glasses and was found to be the most economical and efficient method of lighting. This lamp was later improved by the introduction of the filament lamp, which was made of a thin filament and was found to be more efficient in the production of light. The filament lamp was then improved by the introduction of the gas-filled filament lamp, which was found to be more efficient in the production of light and had a longer life. The last improvement was the introduction of the high-pressure sodium lamp, which was found to be more efficient in the production of light and had a longer life.

SIR CHARLES DREW UNIVERSITY OF MEDICINE AND DENTISTRY OF HARLEM, NEW YORK

An interesting lecture on the subject of the evolution of the automobile with particular reference to its development and its effect on the social and economic life of the nation was given by Mr. C. E. R. Drew, of the University of Medicine and Dentistry of Harlem, New York. Mr. Drew spoke on the history of the automobile, its development, and its effect on the social and economic life of the nation. He pointed out that the automobile has had a great effect on the social and economic life of the nation, and that it has had a great effect on the development of new industries and new products. He also pointed out that the automobile has had a great effect on the development of new industries and new products, and that it has had a great effect on the development of new industries and new products.
The Pulsation Test
Take out your watch and time the pulsations at a DeLaval Milk. You will find that every part of the barn, no matter if there are a dozen, is moving at exactly the same rate. This is not as easily seen as it is in the DeLaval Milk. Try it, and you will believe me. I think most of you do not realize the importance of one of the reasons why the DeLaval Milk is so good. The DeLaval.
