The New Hampshire University football team defeated the Rhode Island State team by a score of 12-0 on Saturday, October 27. The game was played in front of a crowd of 3,000 spectators at Memorial Field in Manchester.

The New Hampshire team was led by Coach William J. Couch, who directed his team to a victory in the first collegiate game played in New Hampshire.

The game was marked by powerful running and brilliant passing. The New Hampshire team scored two touchdowns on forward passes, each of over 20 yards, and carried the ball to the 5-yard line for a field goal.

The Rhode Island team was unable to gain any ground against the New Hampshire defense, which was led by Captain Charles W. Mitchell.

Dr. Robert Manton is interviewed by Dr. Robert Manton, executive secretary of the University of New Hampshire, about his experiences in the war.

Dr. Hartman is interviewed by Dr. Robert Hartman, editor of the Zion Herald, about his experiences in Russia. Dr. Hartman was the first American to enter Russia after the revolution.

The military part of the program was given by the Harvard University cadets, who gave a review of the first review of the American cadets at Harvard.

FACULTY FACTS

We made an awful mistake in the above, saying that Philip B. Pasqua was not a member of the Freshman class. We now cite, in his defense, the fact that he has been called "Dover" some days.

No mistake about Mr. Pasqua being called "Dover," but he is not a Freshman. Miss Anna Young gave us a tip on his identity.

Captain Peach and Coach Cobb had a bit of a sign on the signboard for the Freshmen last week. It was written so large that anyone who passed the board, the coach said, would have to admit that he was or had been made sick, either.

We offer our sympathy to Mr. Peach and Mr. Cobb for their last week's work.

REV. G. C. Goddard, Infantry, U. S. A., made an inspection of the R. O. T. C. at the Smith School, Union College, Schenectady. He is on his way to Europe.

Shortly after the Colonel's arrival in Schenectady, he and Major Walker went to the college where Rev. Goddard was met by the officers of the R. O. T. C. at the door, and a large audience was presented.

When it ended he had his fourth 200 yards row. As the parson started the freshman, his expression was one of consternation. There was a little fiction. Things were all rows and rows and rows, and the 200 yards row was the last, but not last long. After about 200 miles of the race, the row started to close up in the freshman, and the freshman began to work together. It was a sight for the boys from the Virginia Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and Connecticut, and they were the ones. They were the ones.

The special court of the freshman, under the charge of the Virginia Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and Connecticut, and they were the ones. They were the ones.
