DURHAM, NH – Democratic candidates in the races for the New Hampshire House of Representatives, Senate, and Executive Council hold small leads over their Republican rivals. However, these Democratic leads are slightly wider than they were in October 2018. Despite these small Democratic leads, control of the New Hampshire House, Senate, and Executive Council are up for grabs with less than a month before election day.

These findings are based on the latest Granite State Poll, conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. One thousand and thirty (1,030) Granite State Panel members completed the survey online between September 24 and September 28, 2020. The margin of sampling error for the survey is +/- 3.1 percent. Included were 972 likely 2020 general election voters (MSE = +/- 3.1%). Data were weighted by respondent sex, age, education, and region of the state to targets from the most recent American Community Survey (ACS) conducted by the U.S. Census Bureau, as well as party registration levels provided by the New Hampshire Secretary of State and 2016 election results in NH. Granite State Panel members are recruited from randomly-selected landline and cell phone numbers across New Hampshire and surveys are sent periodically to panel members.

New Hampshire House of Representatives

The Democratic Party currently controls the New Hampshire House of Representatives and likely voters in November indicate a slight preference for them over Republicans. If the election for the State House were held today, 41% of likely New Hampshire voters say they would vote for the Democratic candidate(s), 35% would vote for the Republican candidate(s), 16% would vote for some Democrats and some Republicans, 1% would vote for the other candidate(s), and 7% don't know or are unsure. When those who are leaning towards a candidate are included, 42% support Democrats, 35% support Republicans, and 17% support some Democrats and some Republicans. In October of 2018, Democrats held a smaller advantage, leading Republicans 45% to 43%.

Based on evaluations of past "generic ballot" polling in New Hampshire and actual election results, these findings translate into 218 seats for Democrats and 182 seats for Republicans.

Granite State Poll Methodology

These findings are based on the latest Granite State Poll, conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. One thousand and thirty (1,030) Granite State Panel members completed the survey online between September 24 and September 28, 2020. The margin of sampling error for the survey is +/- 3.1 percent. Included were 972 likely 2020 general election voters (MSE = +/- 3.1%). These MSE's have not been adjusted for design effect. The response rate for the September 2020 Granite State Poll is 37%. The design effect for the survey is 2.5%.

Data were weighted by respondent sex, age, education, and region of the state to targets from the most recent American Community Survey (ACS) conducted by the U.S. Census Bureau, as well as party registration levels provided by the New Hampshire Secretary of State and to 2016 election results in New Hampshire.

The Granite State Panel is part of an effort by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center to investigate new ways of gathering and understanding the opinion of New Hampshire residents. Approximately 5,750 New Hampshire adults were recruited from randomly selected landline and cell phone numbers to participate in the panel. Panelists are then asked to participate in online surveys sponsored by the UNH Survey Center.

The number of respondents in each demographic below may not equal the number reported in cross-tabulation tables as some respondents choose not to answer some questions. Due to rounding, percentages may not sum to 100%.

For more information about the methodology used in the Granite State Panel, contact Dr. Andrew Smith at (603) 862-2226 or by email at andrew.smith@unh.edu.

A historical analysis was done looking at the results of the "generic ballot" question and the actual number of seats won by Republicans in the New Hampshire House and Senate in the 2000 through 2018 elections. This was presented at the annual meeting of the American Association for Public Opinion Research (AAPOR) Annual Meeting, and is available from the UNH Survey Center.

The model developed in this paper used for estimating House seats from the generic ballot question is:

$$\text{HOUSE SEATS} = -269.923 + (\text{two party GOP estimate} * 993.803)$$

In this Granite State Poll, the two party estimate of House vote percentage with leaners for Republicans, 45.5% (35% GOP / (35% GOP + 42% DEM) = 45.5%) is calculated and inserted into the formula above. This results in an estimate of 218 Democratic House seats and 182 Republican House seats.

The model developed for estimating Senate seats from the generic ballot question is:

$$\text{SENATE SEATS} = -18.457 + (\text{two party GOP estimate} * 64.822)$$

In this Granite State Poll, the two party estimate of Senate vote percentage with leaners for Republicans, 46.7% (42% GOP / (42% GOP + 48% DEM) = 46.7%) is calculated and inserted into the formula above. This results in an estimate of 12 Democratic Senate seats and 12 Republican Senate seats.
