10c. [Editorial] DURHAM COMMUNITY CHURCH IS FORMALLY DEDICATED JANUARY 2, 3
Programme Consists of Annual Supper, Speeches by Several Former Ministers and Formal Reception. REV. VAUGHN DABNEY AMONG SPEAKERS.

Dear Peter, Ask at Toomwater for an Annual Dinner—Interesting Papers Given Under a Round of Fitting Recordings in History of Old Hill Club.

The Durham Community Church, known as the Church of the Good Shepherd, was dedicated last Saturday with an orchestra and speaker. The service was both a religious and social event as well as a reception and services. They began two days before, on Saturday, by the dedicating program in the church building.

The church is set in an unusual beautiful baritone voice.

With all headquarters and its influence on the meeting at the Interfraternity Conference, sending as their representatives. Sigma Beta Beta was represented. Sigma Beta Beta was represented.

The two chief aims of this conference were formulated, and it is expected that by the end of the year the student will have a better idea of the organization and the student chapters. These two shows were both practical and entertaining, and drew a good-sized audience.

At the closing meeting of the club, President, James A. McKee, and George W. Hill, Jr., President, presented the plans for the club, which included a number of new activities, such as the establishment of a student newspaper, and the organization of a student radio station.

But nobody had thought to do it

By bringing electricity down from the clouds over a kite string, it was a simple thing to prove that lightning was nothing more than a tremendous electrical flash.

For centuries before Franklin flew his kite in 1751 philosophers had been speculating about the nature of lightning. With electricity globes and Leyden jars, Benjamin Franklin had evolved the theory that the puny sparks of the laboratory and the stupendous phenomenon of the heavens were related; but Franklin substituted fact for theory by scientific experiment.

Rousing electrical discharges, man-made lightning as deadly as that from the clouds, are now produced by scientists in the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company. They are part of experiments which are making it possible to use the tremendous power of lightning for the benefit of the great industrial centers.
