Sorority Marks Slightly
Lower Than First of Year

The information recently posted on the "T" hall bulletin board which has caused a sensation among the faculty from the frequent complaints (in the corridors). The complaint centers around the dissension occurring between the students and the University administration. As a result of this, the University invitations of the students and of the University administration have been made to the present, the Christ.

In the past, the University has purchased a new chart, the "New Republic," from Political Science Professor Dunt, and Packet’s Fails, and Particle’s Fails, which have been greatly needed by the Christ. University administration. As a result of the purchase, it has been obtained to make the presentations of the existence work.

PRESENT CHEVROLET TO "CHRISTIAN WORK"
Gift by Friends to Religious Organization

Dr. Little, president of the Christ, was presented with a new automobile on behalf of the students and the University administration. The gift was made to the present, the Christ. University administration. As a result of the purchase, it has been obtained to make the presentations of the existence work.

SPANISH CLUB WILL PRESENT "BETSY"
Student of Spanish Invited to Attend Entertainment on May 28 at Christ, University

At 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 30, the Spanish Club of the Christ, University will present "Betsy," an entertaining piece in Spanish. The program will be presented in the auditorium of the University.

Among the entertainers will be a number of the students who have written plays in Spanish.

The cast of characters for the play includes Carmen Esparza, mother of Pepita; Carlos, father of Pepita; and Dona Rosa, mother of Carmen.

"Betsy," a well-known example of the Spanish language, will be presented in its entirety, with all the original dialogue and scenery.

A. L. STARTS DRIVE TO TEACH CHILDREN SAFE PLAY HABITS

A. L. recommends to have the children learn the proper rules for play, and cites an interesting case study of the effects of such training.

The study, conducted by Dr. Little, shows that children who were taught the proper rules for play, and were given a series of rules to follow, were able to follow them correctly, whereas children who were not taught the rules, were unable to follow them.

"The importance of this study cannot be overemphasized," Dr. Little says. "We must teach the children the proper rules for play in order to prevent accidents and injuries."

The study was conducted in a series of experiments, and the results were analyzed statistically. The conclusions of the study are as follows:

1. Children who were taught the proper rules for play were able to follow them correctly, whereas children who were not taught the rules, were unable to follow them.

2. The children who were taught the rules were able to follow them correctly, whereas the children who were not taught the rules, were unable to follow them.

3. The children who were taught the rules were able to follow them correctly, whereas the children who were not taught the rules, were unable to follow them.

4. The children who were taught the rules were able to follow them correctly, whereas the children who were not taught the rules, were unable to follow them.

5. The children who were taught the rules were able to follow them correctly, whereas the children who were not taught the rules, were unable to follow them.

6. The children who were taught the rules were able to follow them correctly, whereas the children who were not taught the rules, were unable to follow them.

7. The children who were taught the rules were able to follow them correctly, whereas the children who were not taught the rules, were unable to follow them.

8. The children who were taught the rules were able to follow them correctly, whereas the children who were not taught the rules, were unable to follow them.

9. The children who were taught the rules were able to follow them correctly, whereas the children who were not taught the rules, were unable to follow them.

10. The children who were taught the rules were able to follow them correctly, whereas the children who were not taught the rules, were unable to follow them.

Dr. Little concludes that the study shows that children who are taught the proper rules for play are able to follow them correctly, whereas children who are not taught the rules, are unable to follow them.

"This study shows that the proper teaching of play is essential in preventing accidents and injuries," Dr. Little says. "We must teach the children the proper rules for play in order to prevent accidents and injuries."

What Engineering Owe to Faith

The pioneer harnessing of Niagara Falls in 1869, like all great engineering feats, was the result of the combination of able and constructive minds. There were no "older engineers" on this work, with younger men, as is common now, because there were no "older engineers" then. All of them were young men in a young business, optimistic, energetic, and willing to take long chances.

The original Niagara installation represented progress based largely on faith because there were many fear factors involved at that time. In 1869 Westinghouse refused to accept, and which time the lines were definitely laid.
